Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—All breweries must close on Dec. 1, and beer and other malted drinks will disappear from the market as soon as the stock then on hand is exhausted.

A decree to that effect was issued tonight by the Food Administration, with the approval of President Wilson. Manufacturers of other drinks, including mineral waters, also were warned that the demand for labor, transportation, and coal by war industries probably would result in a further radical curtailment of their output.

As far as possible the plants of the manufacturers thus affected will be used for war purposes.

The decision, which it is believed by many will make beer an obsolete drink in this country within six to eight weeks after the breweries close, was announced after a conference attended by President Wilson and representatives of the Fuel, Food, and Railroad Administrations. The Food Administration issued this statement:

"On July 3 brewers were notified by the Fuel Administration that their coal consumption would be reduced by 50 per cent., pending the period of exhaustion of materials that they had in process, and were given preliminary warning that they might not be able to continue their operations at all after such exhaustion. At that time the Food Administration directed the cessation of further purchases of raw materials for malting.

"After the conference between the President and representatives of the Fuel, Food, and Railway Administrations and the War Industries Board, it has been determined that the further necessity of war industries for the whole fuel productive capacity of the country, the considerable drouth which has materially affected the supply of feeding stuff for next year, the strain upon transportation to handle necessary industries, the shortage of labor, caused by enlargement of the army operations, renders it necessary that brewing operations of all kinds should cease upon Dec. 1, until further orders, and that no further unmalted grains be purchased for brewing purposes from this date. The Food Administration has been directed to issue the necessary regulations to this end.

"In addition to the above, these administrations wish to warn the manufacturers of all beverages and mineral waters that for the same reasons there will be further great curtailment in fuel for the manufacture of glass containers, of tin plate for caps, of transportation, and of food products in such beverages."

BREWERS ARE NOT SURPRISED.

But Did Not Expect Closing Order to Come So Soon.

Local brewers received the news last night that the manufacture of beer would have to cease on Dec. 1 in philosophical fashion. The decision by the Food and Fuel Administrations to cut off supplies of grain and coal from the brewers was evidently not surprising to them, although they said the necessity for so drastic a step had not been looked for until some time next year if war demands on essentials continued to increase.

"If the Government has found it necessary to stop the making of beer," said George Ehret, Jr., "in order to conserve materials to win the war, the brewers, of course, will take steps immediately to meet the ruling. I had believed for some time that the day would come when grain would be withheld from the breweries, but I had not expected this event to occur before May 1 next or thereabout.

"The Ehret interests have not made any plans in advance to convert their manufacturing facilities to some other use than the manufacture of beer. I don't know now what we could do, ex-

Germans Captured in France May Be Brought Here

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Publication today of orders providing for a substantial increase in the corps of interpreters of the army revived reports of plans for bringing to America large numbers of Germans captured on the western front.

The new orders provide that in addition to the commissioned personnel of the Interpreter Corps already authorized there will be "one First Lieutenant, one Second Lieutenant, and one Sergeant for each 500 prisoners of war interned in the United States."

In this connection it is known that the shipment of civilian goods on returning army transports and supply ships recently was sharply curtailed by the military authorities.

M'ADOO REJECTS MORGAN DEMANDS

WANTED INTEREST AT 9¾

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Director General McAdoo tonight issued a statement in which he characterized as misleading the intimation that the Federal Railroad Administration was to blame for the failure of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company to meet at maturity on Sept. 1 its $15,000,000 one-year collateral trust notes.

"Commenting on the failure," said Mr. McAdoo's statement, "a New York newspaper stated that the Federal Railroad Administration was to blame because it had declined to advance the necessary funds and had refused the company permission to borrow at a rate higher than 6 per cent. Those statements are misleading.

"The facts are that some weeks ago officers of that company asked aid of the Director General regarding this maturing note issue and stated that negotiations for its renewal were pending with the company's bankers. The company was advised to pursue negotiations with its bankers and if unable to renew with them to try elsewhere. On Aug. 23 the company advised the Railroad Administration that its bankers had made no progress toward the renewal of the loan.

"Telegraphic inquiry was then addressed to the bankers, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., as to the prospect of renewal. This inquiry developed on Aug. 28 the position of Messrs. Morgan & Co., that if the Director General in writing would have the Government guarantee rentals sufficient to pay interest on notes and other charges they would try to renew the loan for one year at a cost to the company of approximately 9¾ per cent., of which 7½ per cent. was interest and 2¼ commissions for syndicating, handling, and selling. They indicated further that if the commission was increased to 2¾ per cent. they would attempt, if desired, to place the loan for two years on the same basis. On Aug. 29 the Director of the Division of Finance telegraphed Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. that the Director General 'is willing to insure the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company a rental which, added to its other current income, will be sufficient to enable the company to pay the interest on its present outstanding bonds and one-year notes and sinking fund requirements on bonds, and also taxes and other miscellaneous rentals,' and pointed out that this would enable the company during the period of Government control to pay promptly interest upon the $15,000,000 issue at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

Terms Called Excessive.

"The telegram further indicated that the terms proposed by J. P. Morgan & Co., of approximately 10 per cent. per annum for a one-year well-secured loan, whose interest they had stipulated should be guaranteed by the Government, were excessive and unwarranted, and that the Director General was not willing to approve those terms. The telegram concluded with the expression of hope that the bankers would be able to renew the loan upon a 6 per cent. basis, secured on property claimed by them to be so valuable, with the Government agreeing under the lease to guarantee the interest.

"The Director General communicated by wire to all the twelve railroad companies using or interested in the Chicago & Western Indiana terminals his willingness to guarantee the rental as indicated to the end that they might be definitely advised as to the basis upon

HINDENBURG BIDS GERMANS RESIST WAR WEAKENING

SAYS PEACE CAN BE FORCED

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has issued a manifesto to the German ueople declaring that the enemy, in addition to the armed offensive, is conducting an offensive by printed matter containing "most insane rumors." The manifesto is published prominently in all the German newspapers. It begins:

"We are engaged in a severe battle with our enemies. If numerical superiority alone were to guarantee victory, then Germany would long since have lain crushed on the ground. The enemy knows, however, that Germany and her allies are not to be vanquished by arms alone."

The proclamation says that along with the battle against the German armies the enemy is waging war against the German spirit. "We should not treat lightly this plan of the enemy," it says.

Von Hindenburg then refers to leaflets dropped on the German lines, of which he says 10,000 are gathered up daily. These leaflets speak of the good treatment which German prisoners receive and give extracts from letters of such prisoners.

Some of the leaflets, according to von Hindenburg, read:

"Your fight is hopeless. America will cook your goose. Your submarines are of no use. We construct more ships than you sink. Your trade is destroyed and we shall cut off your raw materials after the war; then Germany's industries must famish. You shall never see your colonies again."

"What are the facts?" asks von Hindenburg. "In the east we have forced peace, and in the west we also are strong enough to do so despite the Americans. But we must be strong and united."

The manifesto proceeds to say that the Allies are trying to force neutral nations to fight against Germany "because we are a match for them. Why does the enemy incite colored people against the German soldiers? Because he wants to annihilate us."

Referring to a leaflet advising the Germans to fight against the Hohenzollerns and capitalism and to help the Entente give Germany a better Constitution, the proclamation says:

"The enemy knows what strength resides in our State and empire and endeavors to open wounds in the German body politic with leaflets and rumors. He endeavors to sow dissension and distrust among the Federal States. We seized on Lake Constance many thousands of leaflets which were being sent to Bavaria to stir up feeling against the North Germans.

"There have always been traitors to the Fatherland, witting and unwitting. They mostly dwell in neutral countries in order not to be obliged to share our battles and deprivations or be executed as traitors."

"Be on your guard, German Army."

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's manifesto, according to a dispatch from Berlin, warns the people "to be unanimous against this enemy, who fights with scraps of paper and rumors intended to sow dissension and disunion among ourselves and between us and our allies," and exhorts all Germans to remember that "these poisoned scraps" come from the enemy.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6, (Dispatch to London Daily Express.)—The situation on the western front is aptly summed up by the Nieuve Rotterdamsche Courant in the suggestion that whereas it was feared last month that the Americans might arrive too late to save the Allies from defeat, appearances today are that they arrived too late to beat the Germans, as the Germans may already be beaten before the United States armies are at their full strength in the field. It seems that the anxieties of Hindenburg and Ludendorff run on

Hsu Shih Chang Is Elected President of Chinese Republic

PEKING, Sept. 6.—Hsu Shih Chang, former Vice President of the Privy Council, has been elected President of the Chinese Republic by a large majority.

Hsu Shih Chang became prominent during the latter days of the Chinese monarchy. He was one of the leading statesmen who conducted the negotiations preliminary to the settlement of the relations between Japan, Russia and China as the result of the Russo-Japanese war.

When the Constitutional Government was established Hsu became Vice Prime Minister, and at one time was thought to be in line for the post of Premier. In June, 1917, he was named dictator by a rebel conference at Tientsin. When Hsuan Tung relinquished the rôle of Emperor in the Summer of 1917 Hsu was appointed his guardian. It was later suggested that he might replace President Feng, and last month he was nominated for the Presidency by the Generals of the Northern Chinese army.

BIG TROOPSHIP HIT, RETURNS TO PORT

ATTACK NEAR FRENCH COAST

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—A German submarine has been foiled in an attempt to sink the large American troop transport Mount Vernon, formerly the German steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, better known as the "gold ship" by reason of her experience when war started between Germany and England.

Secretary Daniels was notified by cable this afternoon that the Mount Vernon had been torpedoed about 200 miles off the French Coast, but had returned to port under her own steam. The Mount Vernon had just completed a voyage to France with troops and was returning. She is the fourth largest of the remaining German steamers taken over by the American Government. The Mount Vernon has a gross tonnage of 19,503 and is 685 feet long. She belonged to the North German Lloyd Line before the war, and was one of the speediest German vessels afloat.

According to the announcement made by Secretary Daniels the torpedoing of the Mount Vernon was probably without loss of life. It read:

"The U. S. S. Mount Vernon was struck by a torpedo yesterday while on the return voyage about 200 miles from the coast of France, but returned to port under its own steam. There was no mention of any casualties in the dispatch, nor did it state how badly the vessel was damaged, but it is supposed that the damage is not very serious, as the ship made its way back at a speed of fourteen knots an hour.

"The Mount Vernon was formerly the German steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which was interned in American waters, and when this country entered the war was taken over by the Government and converted into a troop transport.

"The Mount Vernon is commanded by Captain Douglas F. Dismukes. The vessel had landed the troops she carried overseas and was returning when torpedoed."

The Navy Department was notified today that the steamship Lake Owens was sunk by gunfire in foreign waters on the morning of Sept. 3. All the members of the naval armed guard were saved.

Only one, Chief Boatswain's Mate H. W. Lincoln, is reported in a hospital. His injuries are not regarded as serious. Five of the ship's crew are reported missing. All the other members of the crew have been landed, six seriously wounded and six slightly injured. The names of these were not given in the dispatch. The Lake Owens was a cargo ship of 2,308 tons.

GERMAN STAFF'S FLIGHT.

Two Special Trains Take All Headquarters Documents from Belgium.

GENEVA, Sept. 6.—The German Great General Staff, which had been installed at Spa, Belgium, for more tha a year, ad occupied six of the principal buildings of the city, was removed Monday. Several hundred officers and employes superintended the removal of all the military archives, including the correspondence and orders of General Ludendorff, Crown Prince Wilhelm, and Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria.

Two special trains were required to bear away the huge volume of documents, which were heavily guarded. The destination of the train is unknown.

A dispatch from Amsterdam Tuesday said that the German main headquarters had been transferred to Verviers, fourteen miles east of Liege, while on Wednesday the correspondent of The Associated Press ith the American Army in France telegraphed that partial confirmation had been given to a report that headquarters had been removed to Bonn, Germany.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Sept. 6.—During this morning it became evident that before the victorious pressure of Debeney and Humbert the armies of von Hutier had abandoned hope of putting up a serious defence on the line of the Somme and were retreating rapidly toward their old positions from St. Quentin, by Tergnier, to the St. Gobain massif.

Cavalry patrols of Humbert's right found Chauny unoccupied and pushed on to the edge of Viry-Noureuil, which is only three miles from Tergnier. At the northern end of the line Debeney's foreguards reached the Péronne-Ham high road from La Croix Moligneaux to Matigny at 7 A. M.

This was a sudden and bracing change of fortune for the regiments which to late last night had been struggling without pause to win their way across the Ingon and the Somme east of the Vesle. Behind the marshy loop of the Ingon, Hill 77 rose in broad bare slopes, and beyond this great position lay the Somme Canal and the swampy course of the river again.

Yesterday morning a few men managed to get over further north, to throw light bridges across the Somme and eject the boche from the ruins of Flavy. At the same time French companies which had, as they say, infiltrated around Hill 77 and been driven back from Voyenne by a strong counterattack again captured the village, making 200 prisoners, and, crossing the river, occupied Offoy.

Threatened on South Flank Also.

With two passages of the Somme thus forced the German Alpine and other troops which held out so stubbornly must have felt the case to be hopeless, especially as they were being more and more nearly threatened on the south flank. Here the village of Esmery-Hallon, extending for about a mile along the ridge which overlooks all the countryside southwest of Ham, had been the scene of a stiff encounter Wednesday night, and was solidly occupied yesterday morning. During the day Humbert's left had advanced to Berlancourt on the Ham road, north of Guiscard, and his right up the Oise Valley to near Dampcourt.

Such marches look on the map much more easy than they are. In fact, precautions against ambushes, great and small, must be taken. For instance, the large château of Bethancourt, situated a mile west of Guiscard, blew up this morning. Before evacuating their comfortable home the enemy had arranged this explosion by means of a time fuse; but the French advance guards are used to such traps by now, and are not to be easily caught.

But the most remarkable thing in this changed situation is Mangin's rapid progress on either side of the Ailette. On the northern half of this sector we are practically back on the old front in face of the vast forest block of St. Gobain and, between Viry-Noureuil and La Fère, across the Oise, which, enlarged by marshes to the width of over a mile, is like the moat of a prodigious stronghold. South of Ailette we have reached the borders of Vauxail-

German Soldiers Kill Commanding Officer Who Tries to Check Their Panic Flight

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 6, (Associated Press.)—Sparks of revolution seem to be flying even thicker in certain parts of the German Army. Numerous prisoners taken by the British mention the distribution of pacifist and revolutionary pamphlets among the troops.

One prisoner who recently had returned from leave said that when in company of a large number of Bavarians he saw revolutionary pamphlets which he was told were being widely circulated. All the pamphlets, he added, were violently anti-Prussian and appealed to the men to refuse to fight.

It was asserted that in the recent fighting the commanding officer of the 137th Pioneer Battalion of the 52d Division was shot by his men when he attempted to stop a panic-stricken rush from the trenches.

A battalion surgeon captured said that all the regimental officers he knew believed that General Ludendorff would fight delaying actions until the allied offensives had died out, the same as Germany's did, at the same time saving his "élite divisions" for a counterstroke, preparations for which were being made.

If the Allies ever reached the Rhine, said the doctor, Germany would make peace, no matter at what price.

The doctor seemed apprehensive that the Rhine might be reached.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY, Sept. 6.—Now that over the battlefront proper patrols have taken up the work of divisions and prisoners come to the cages singly rather than in battalions, the fighting all the way from Ploegsteert to Péronne takes on similar features.

The northern section, where I was this morning, is perhaps the most active and most interesting. In the south we feel some gratitude that the enemy will be driven back within so many days or weeks, it does not very much matter which, to his Hindenburg line, and though this is outflanked and turned in the north at the Canal du Nord, which rather resembles a dry moat outside an old-fashioned fortress, it still gives a powerful defensive position.

In the north, on the other hand, no one knows how far the retreat may go. British patrols have crept forward at surprising speed during the last day or two in front of La Bassée, where there has been little or no movement since the end of 1914, and the enemy is going back faster than he meant to do. It is quite certain that he intended to hold Hill 63, which faces and threatens Messines. The defense of it crumbled so quickly in yesterday's attack that the British troops progressed from the summit far down the hill.

The peculiar knowledge of the district and skill in attacks of the British troops engaged there were doubtless the chief cause, but the 100 prisoners confess that they did not fight as they would have fought earlier, and some said that the only hope of an early peace was an allied victory. The British troops retired before a strong counterattack from the eastern slope, but keep the crown of the hill and Ploegsteert Village, leaving the enemy on the slopes of Ploegsteert Hill in possession, but the British very nearly approach the positions held from 1914 until the famous battle of Messines.

On no part of the front is the artillery, as far as I have seen, very active, but the use of gas increases continually. The enemy yesterday doused the area north of the Scarpe with gas, and the British have not been idle.

I noticed yesterday in going up to inspect some newly captured parts of the Hindenburg line how many German notices were still fixed to tree stumps and bits of walls warning the soldiers to have their gas masks ready. "They love not the person who did poison use." The whole area is littered with the round

NEW TROOPS IN PURSUIT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 5.—The Americans and French, pursuing the retreating German divisions, have reached and occupied the heights which dominate the Aisne River. We hold the crest of these heights running east and west four kilometers south of the Aisne. The Germans seem bound to go back to the Chemin des Dames position, and perhaps they will go further.

Under the menace of the eastward push of General's Mangin's army north of Soissons and the constant pressure of the Franco-American troops south of the Vesle, they dared not hold the line any longer, and yesterday morning they started their withdrawal, closely pursued and pressed by the allied troops. The Americans are meeting stubbornly fought rearguard machine gun action in the many ravines between the Vesle and the Aisne, but no encounters in force are taking place.

Yesterday morning our patrols ascertained that the German withdrawal had begun. Fires sprang up at a large number of places, denoting German destruction of shells and material which they could not get away. We sent over small forces to try out the situation. They entered Bazoches without opposition, and passed by Fismette in the same manner. Other American troops quickly crossed the Vesle in force, and started a movement up the slopes and numerous ravines toward the heights which the Germans have held for the last four weeks since they were driven back from the Marne salient. The French on our left crossed the river at the same time at many points, and during the day the Franco-American troops have been advancing on a front of thirty kilometers.

Routed Machine Gunners.

The American forces got about a mile north of the Vesle when they met what they expected, that is, organized German machine gun nests placed at advantageous positions, making shooting galleries of the ravines, and commanding the sloping ridges between. While the terrain was favorable for this defense, it was also favorable for work in flanking and surrounding machine gun nests, which our men did most effectively. By nightfall the Americans were at Vauxcere and, further to the right, Blauzy.

This morning we continued the advance north of those points. Meanwhile the French troops on our right had pushed forward across the river

Americans Make Progress North of the Vesle—On the Hilltops Now.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Over a front of upward of ninety miles, from the posts of the Americans on the Aisne to the breaches in the Hindenburg line before Cambrai, the allied forces today continued to advance on the heels of the retreating Germans.

At some points their advance east of the Canal du Nord has reached a depth of more than six miles.

North of the Aisne they now hold all their old trenches along this front and are increasingly threatening the German hold on the Chemin des Dames by their advance to Vauxaillon ravine.

South of the Aisne the American troops have made progress in the region of Villers-en-Prayeres and Revillon.

Linking up with the French advance on Ham and the territory to the south, the forward movement of the British armies was continued eastward from the Somme. From its banks south of Péronne, Haig's troops have penetrated the German positions nearly seven miles on a twelve-mile front, having captured the villages of Monchy-Lagache, Vraignes, Pincourt, Longavesnes, and Lieramont.

FRENCH NOW SHELLING FOREST OF ST. GOBAIN

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 6, (Associated Press.)—At the present rate of progress the Allies will soon have driven the Germans from all the ground gained by them this year, and the offensive operations may enter a new phase.

French cavalry, after passing through Chauny this morning, are in the region of Viry-Noureuil and are advancing toward Tergnier, which is two and one-half miles west of La Fère.

Further north the Ham-Guiscard position has been turned, and the enemy is retreating all along the line with the utmost speed.

South of the Oise General Mangin's troops are pressing in close to the enemy's line from which he launched his Spring offensive. In the region of the lower Forest of Couchy French troops are within a mile of the [illegible] at Hill 75 and in front of Fresnes.

Near Laffaux General Mangin's men are within four miles of the Chemin des Dames and only about ten miles from the citadel of Laon.

The Forest of St. Gobain, which sheltered the first long-range gun that shelled the Paris region, and which was the cornerstone of the Hindenburg position at the angle where the line turns to the eastward along the Chemin des Dames, is under the fire of French guns over its whole extent.

Just south of the River Oise the Germans this morning were still resisting at Sinceny, between the river and the lower Forest of Coucy, with the evident object of gaining further time to save their material further south.

The line now follows practically the

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 6, (Associated Press.)—French troops this afternoon reached Petit Barisis, on the eastern side of the lower Forest of Coucy and immediately in front of the Hindenburg-line.

Foe's Machine-Gun Fire Weak.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 6.—The Germans are across the River Aisne, and this time they made no attempt to veil their retirement, or even to exact ordinary penalties for the advance of the Americans. The opposition which they put up between the Vesle and Aisne Rivers was of the softest character.

The Aisne region was illuminated last night by stores and villages set afire by the Germans to celebrate their first retirement from this part of their captured territory.

The machine guns left behind to check the American advance were quite inadequate even to slow up the pace at which the Americans were going, and the shelling of the roads along which they were marching and the villages through which they were passing was without any apparent plan. Further east the French are up against stiffer resistance, but the Americans everywhere have gained the crest of the hills.

Germans May Stand at the Aisne.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ALONG THE AISNE, Sept. 6, (Associated Press.)—The American line on the Aisne front extended this forenoon through Revillon and across [deleted,] and then southeasterly to the line held by the French. The latter had not yet left their positions westward from Rheims.

There are indications of another temporary stabilization of the lines. The Americans made progress during the night and this forenoon until the main line was just in front of the Aisne positions, and the American patrols were in contact with those of the Germans in the wooded slopes.

The Germans appear to have established themselves in force along the big canal parelleling the river, and there is little doubt that they will contest from there the advance of both the French and the Americans.

One indication that the Germans intend to delay their departure from the Aisne to the Chemin des Dames was supplied by the putting into action again of their long-range naval piece. Shells from this gun fell during the night upon Fismes and its environs.

The character of the fighting since yesterday has not changed. The machine-gun nests were found perhaps somewhat more numerous, and the artillery action at times was a bit heavier. But concentrated defensive action was still lacking.

The Americans are now in positions in the woods and hills just south of the Aisne.

Ailette Advance Cleared the Vesle.

AMERICAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 5, (Reuter.)—There never was a neater instance of a strategical offensive than the fashion in which the Germans along the Vesle were put to flight by a blow struck many miles to the west of them. If the Americans had attempted to force the line of the Vesle tactically they would have lost at least 10,000 men, and possibly three times that number. By the blow struck on the Soissons Plateau, however—a blow which in any case was inevitable—the Vesle has been cleared in the operations along the Ailette.

By those same operations some of the finest divisions of the German Army have been prevented from holding up the British advance, and the Hindenburg line thus has been broken by a battle nearly 100 miles away from it.

Though the German withdrawal from the Vesle is the most showy event in this sector, by far the most serious one was their defeat between Terny-Sorny and the Ailette. It is no wonder that their troops were commanded to resist to the last man, since if they are unable to hold the neck of the hill to the south of Vauxaillon they will have to withdraw their entire garrison from the Pont Rouge Plateau and fall back to the last ridge from which the flank of the Chemin des Dames can be defended.

Found Bases for Raids on Paris.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE AISNE FRONT, Sept. 5, (Associated Press.)—In their endeavor to keep up with the Germans who are retreating beyond the River Aisne the Americans have organized automobile machine-gun detachments, with three men in each car. More than thirty cars were operating north of the Vesle River early today.

As not much German infantry had been sighted, the automobile machine gunners were uncertain just where their advance might lead them. The outfit had supplies of food and equipment to enable them to keep after the Germans for days.

As the Americans pressed forward it was a different sight than that which had geeted them in their advance from the Marne to the Vesle. From the Vesle northward over the plateau the Germans had cleaned up virtually everything, taking with them all of value or of use, and were burning that which they could not move northward or which might be of use to the French and Americans. Between the Marne and the Vesle the Germans had left great stores of supplies and ammunition because of their hasty withdrawal.

The roads on the plateau north of the Vesle were in fairly good condition, although in some places over ravines the Germans had endeavored to destroy small bridges. Engineers quickly repaired the roads, and Americans on foot and on horseback and using mule teams, automobile trucks, and motor cycles, went ahead along grainfields overrun with weeds and passed villages with houses shot to pieces, but nowhere encountered anything of military value.

The plateau for every few miles was dotted with frames of German airdromes, from some of which, the Americans say, German raiders who bombed Paris operated. Three or four of these frames stand in aviation fields at a score of places. The American officers believe that this plateau must have been the principal German aviation site for operating against Paris.

The canvas coverings for the hangars were taken by the Germans when they retired, and the wooden frames were so damaged by shells that they are virtually worthless.

Behind the advancing Americans in the desolate valley of the Vesle between Bazoches and Fismette the Germans had burned the freight cars along the railroad, and twisted skeletons of The trees along the roadway between Bazoches and Fismette had been cut down by German saws and by German shells. The stone houses in Fismette have shellholes in their sides and roofs, and some were smashed by German bombers, who endeavored to drive the cars are standing on the tracks. out the Americans.

Germans Leave Deathtraps Set.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 6, (Associated Press.)—The retreat of the Germans during the last two days has assumed a strong resemblance to that of March of last year. The horizon at night glows with the light of conflagrations, for which, however, the Germans themselves are this time furnishing most of the fuel in their own stores of supplies that the pressure of the Allies has obliged the enemy either to leave on the spot or destroy.

The villages named in the reports were scarcely more than the ruins of the villages destroyed more than a year ago, with only a few frame buildings, erected for the returning inhabitants.

Deathtraps are being left behind by the enemy, as they were last year. Noyon, for instance, was full of them. The engineering corps is still at work seeking them out, and where possible making them harmless. Noyon, however, is three-quarters destroyed by explosions of mines to which time fuses had been attached, and by the intense shelling to which the town was subjected before the Germans were driven out of range.

The advance of the French troops over this region, devastated last year and upheaved again after having been only partially destored, is surprisingly rapid. The Germans are finding great difficulty in breaking contact with the advance guard at points from which they are quite ready to get away.

The marvelous organization of the French Supply Department and the undiminished ardor of the French troops are overcoming the greatest difficulties of communications and transportation.

A significant indication as the French troops approach the Germans' old line is a redoubling of the enemy's shellfire, principally from six-inch guns—a sort of formal notice that he intends going no further, for the moment, from behind the formidable positions upon which he has fallen back. This would seem to be no idle boast. But the French poilu is as capable of great things today as he was four years ago today, when he gave the first staggering blow to the Germans on the Marne.

Pershing Reports Gains on the Aisne.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Occupation by American troops of three additional villages north of the Vesle was announced in General Pershing's communiqué for today, received tonight at the War Department. The statement follows:

> North of the Vesle our troops have taken the villages of Longueval, Merval, and Glennes, and have reached the line Vieil-Arcy-Villers-en-Prayeres-Revillon.
> Elsewhere the way passed without incident.

lon and Lafaux, whence the front runs southwest to the hill crowned by Fort Condé, and then follows eastward the south bank of the Aisne.

Heart Taken Out of Defenders.

The abandonment of the good defensive positions around Folemeray and Coucy-le-Château, on our left, and around Marcival, at Mangin's centre, to say nothing of the Vesle, can only mean that the continuous fighting of the last week has taken all heart out of the crack troops which had been brought in and used up in defending the approaches to what is perhaps the most vital of all the enemy positions in France.

When von Eben has drawn all his forces back to the Chemin des Dames, and that event can hardly be long delayed, the familiar problem of the St Quentin-Laon-Craonne system of field works will present itself again, but not quite in the same form. This system is no mere multiplication of trenches and wirefields—it is a true, strategical creation covering the Oise Valley, and behind it (for there are many successive defense lines at some points) the valleys of the Sambre and Meuse.

The French armies spent long and bitter efforts during a large part of last year to force their way over the Chemin des Dames with a view to passing over the Ailette up to the gap of Laon and so out into the northern plain.

Let us suppose that the barriers called Siegfried, Albergich, and so on, have lost nothing of their original strength and even been reinforced. After Bullecourt and Quéant they will not seem as strong to the men on either side. We have, in fact, no longer to concentrate thousands of cannon to make such a breach, but the essential change lies in the increasing superiority of the allied resources, which makes it possible to challenge combat over lengths of front that we had not the means to attack last year and to pursue these wider operations with a continuity that at least breaks the enemy's will to resist.

Margival was terrible last year; today Mangin takes it in his stride. The finest trench system is worth nothing more than the will of its defenders. The system concentrated between Cambrai and Argonne, moreover, by no means completely meets the German requirements of today.

In brief, there are ways over and ways around, and the fertility of plan and expedient which Foch has shown in the last two months has certainly not been exhausted. The sweeping advances of this week may be finished for the time being. Armies are not carried forward by magic, and there is need of an interval in which to digest what we have gained. However, that does not mean that there will be any arrest of allied movement toward more decisive victories.

AMERICANS KEEP ON HEELS OF FOE

on a front of fifteen kilometers to the east of yesterday's movement. On the crest, where our men have now reached, one may see the buildings in Laon, up beyond the Chemin des Dames position, and the Aisne winds its way down at our feet.

The Germans have got most of their forces across numerous bridges over the stream. What has not got back will never get back over those bridges, for our artillery has been at work on them today.

The Americans expect much nasty work in overcoming the great number of machine gun nests the boche has surely left against them in the ravines both south and north of the Aisne, but by this time the doughboys have learned how to deal with this warfare without the losses sustained when first they experienced it in the region north of the Marne some six weeks ago.

The German retreat brings interesting speculation as to whether or not they will stop at the Chemin des Dames position. This position is very strong and, intact, would be costly to take frontally. But Mangin's advance from the east is moving along the Soissons Plateau on the crest on the east half of which lies the Chemin des Dames position. Should Mangin's army get around so that it could command the terrain in the rear of this position, it would be untenable for the boche. Will the boche, therefore, get further back than the line from which the Crown Prince started his "Victory Drive" last Spring, or will he try to halt for a while on the famed and much-fought-for Road of the Ladies?

Americans have reason for particular pride in the Germans' withdrawal from the Vesle. Than our troops, none of the allied forces along the Vesle has kept up a more constant pressure on the Huns, with constant shellfire by day and night on all his positions and lines of communications, since the boche squatted on the plateau north of the Vesle on Aug. 1, after the French and Americans had driven him there from his position along the Marne. Then, too, the pressure exerted by Mangin's army from the westward was due in part to the work of the American forces fighting with his Tenth Army, who, in the last week north of Soissons, wore down and overcame such bitter German resistance in the region of Puvigny and Chavigny. Our forces, therefore, have a proud part in the accomplishment of this victory.

Among the Americans pursuing the boche back to the Aisne today are units which helped drive him from the Ourcq to the Vesle, and they glory in the fruition of the colorless fighting of the past month. In our forces also are units which never before have taken part in an advance. They are the new type of our fighters, and from all accounts they are doing fine work today.

German artillery fire today was light.

The German work of destruction between the Aisne and the Vesle is complete. What they could not take away, they destroyed. There is some solace in the fact that of the destroyed material a large part is German, which they were unable to get away in the past four weeks, largely because of the harassing work of our heavy artillery on their back areas.

The positions held by the Americans, as this is written, absolutely dominate the Aisne, and indicate that the boche will have much difficulty in making any infantry stand this side of the Chemins des Dames. Our engineers are called upon for important work now, inasmuch as the Aisne is a considerable stream and cannot be forded, making necessary the construction of many bridges, which will have to be done, it may be expected, under shell fire from the German batteries.

GERMANS WEAKEN IN FACING THRUST

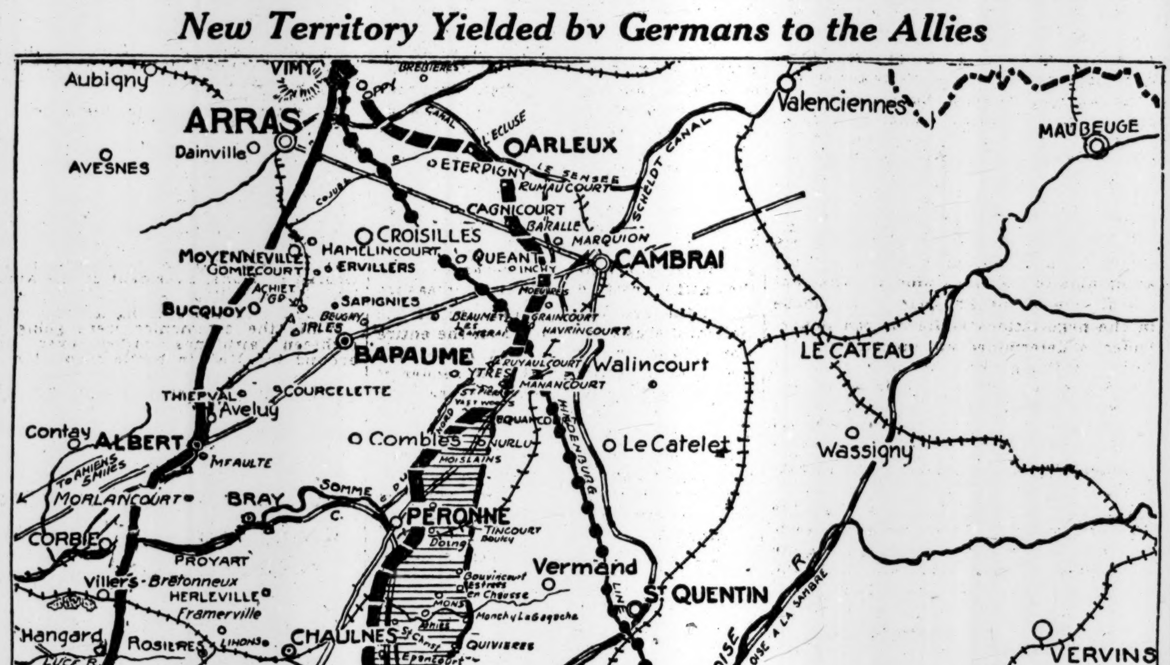
tins in which the enemy keeps his gas masks.

More of the French refugees who escaped on the Sensee River have reached the tented village prepared for their reception. Their tale gives intimate glimpses of the enemy's psychology and mood for some while. He treated the peasants decently on the whole, and even gave way when they struck on the mere question of insufficient rations. This kindness seems to have increased with his sense that victory was unlikely, and his fall in morale came when the knowledge spread that the Americans had arrived in large numbers.

This beneficent news was first imparted by a German soldier who also had a sight of some intelligence report giving figures of the number of American divisions likely to appear. He circulated the information among his company and apparently it led many to confess that the best chance of peace, which was the only thing that mattered, was an allied victory.

New Territory Yielded bv Germans to the Allies



Shaded areas represent the ground gained yesterday by the British east of the Somme and by the French in the diminishing Noyon salient.

GERMANS ARE BURNING VILLAGES IN RETREAT

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 6, (Associated Press.)—All day the Germans have been retiring gradually, but surely, toward the Hindenburg line in the face of steady pressure.

Substantial advances are again reported all along the southern part of the line. The Australians have crossed the Somme on a wide front south of Péronne and, after overcoming heavy opposition, have driven into the territory the enemy was holding. St. Christ, Brie, Le Mesnil, Doignt, and Athies Wood have all been taken, and progress is reported to have been made east of these places.

The enemy has also been driven back from east and northeast of Péronne. Over the whole area from which the Germans are retreating on this large section of the front many fires are raging, and numerous explosions have been heard. Whole villages are aflame between the points to which the British have reached and the Hindenburg line. Here and in the northern areas the Germans are burning vast quantities of war materials which they have not had time to save, as the British are pushing them too hard.

The British have reached the Athies-Ham Road and are on the eastern outskirts of Bussu. At Nurlu there has been heavy fighting. Strong German forces, fighting desperately with machine guns and trench mortars, caused the British to pause here for the moment, but Nurlu and Templeux-la-Fosse are now in British hands.

Along the whole front, from the southern extremity to the Bapaume-Cambrai road, the enemy artillery fire is gradually dwindling away, indicating that the Germans are making strenuous efforts to get their guns back of the Hindenburg defenses before the British catch up with them.

In the Quéant area the British, after sharp fighting, occupied the ridge south of Moeuvres and captured more German posts around Havrincourt Wood. South of Havrincourt Wood the advance north and south of Equancourt met with heavy resistance. Just east of here the whole town of Fins is aflame, and this resistance probably was offered to give the destruction squads in Fins a chance to complete their work.

British posts west of the Canal du Nord, north of Inchy, have been pushed forward, but patrols on the west bank of the canal were heavily fired upon from the east bank. One of the British patrols crawled across a damaged bridge and came upon an enemy outpost asleep. It pounced upon the sleeping Germans and captured three of them.

Firing Thousands of Gas Shells.

In the north, where the British are reported to be making advances, more fires are raging. In many places north of the Sensée River the Germans for several hours have been firing thousands of gas shells, so indiscriminately as to make it appear that they are trying to get rid of them.

On the Lys front a number of fires have been reported in the area south of the Estaires-Armentières road. There have been three counterattacks against Hill 53 and the surrounding positions. Two of these broke down completely, but during the third, north of the hill, the British were compelled to fall back slightly.

Further north the British reached the crest of the important ridge northwest of Wulverghem, but were unable to make further progress for a time because of the heavy enemy machine gun and trench mortar fire.

Still further north piece after piece of ground is being regained. The British have reached Canteleux and are pushing on toward Violaines. Weak enemy counterattacks south of Ploegsteert were easily smothered.

Fires are raging at many places, and great billows of smoke are rolling across the already devastated country. The Germans seem bent upon setting fire to everything that will burn, destroying what they had overlooked before.

In the Lens sector and northwest the retirement continues on various sectors. The British troops are speeding the retreating Germans wherever they do not move fast enough. In this region also many fires are burning, and the Germans are blowing up their stores and works.

British airmen everywhere are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy troops and transport with bombs.

GERMAN 1920 CLASS OFFSET IN A MONTH

FOE PREPARING NEW LINE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—What the American factor now means may be judged from one fact. During the month of August 400,000 American soldiers landed in France. This number is as nearly as possible equivalent to the whole German 1920 class, on which there is no doubt that the enemy has been very largely counting to compensate him for the enormous cost in man power which the Allies are causing him at present.

The German 1920 class has been in training since last March or April, and it is expected to be ready to take the field at the end of this month. The original intention of the enemy is believed to have been to send the bulk of these men to Russia to replace his 1919 class, which has been serving on that front for some months, but it is evident from the fact that youths belonging to the 1920 class have already been captured at several points on the French front that this plan has been changed.

This class consists entirely of callow youths of 18. Compared with the magnificent specimens of American manhood who have been arriving in France in hundreds of thousands every month, the chances of these weedy boys putting up any kind of a useful fight that will benefit the doomed Fatherland is more than remote.

Paris Expects New Foe Retreat.

Reviewing all the factors disclosed up to the present, Paris regards the fate of Germany in France as already settled. The great question is not how long will the enemy be able to hold on to the Hindenburg line or even whether he will be able to hold there at all, but how far back the present retreat will take him.

The turning and rapid evacuation of the Hindenburg line under British pressure north of Quéant was regarded here as a foregone conclusion, in which the Hun retreat from the Vesle to the Chemin des Dames was only an incident, but an incident which, it is believed, must under Mangin's batteringram effort against the western end of the Chemin des Dames very shortly involve the hasty retirement of the Crown Prince's badly beaten men to comparative, although only temporary, safety behind the Laon Bastion.

Some of the German Generals are believed to have recently advised that, with a view to shortening the front and to avoid disaster, they should retreat, first to the Hindenburg line and then to positions on the River Serre, which runs eastward from La Fère at a distance of about ten miles north of Laon. As things are going, however, it is felt here that the Germans are now in a much more unfavorable position than when this advice was given, and it is more than probable that they are now considering the possibility of having to retire much further toward the French northern frontier than the line of the Serre.

The Germans, beyond all shadow of doubt, have abandoned all hopes of a decisive victory and are fighting now to obtain the best terms of peace they can get. Their trump cards are to hold on in France in some shape or form, no matter if they are driven back to within a dozen miles of the frontier, but in any case to retain a grip on some portion of French soil, and, above all, to continue to occupy the Bassin de Briey, the great French iron field in Lorraine.

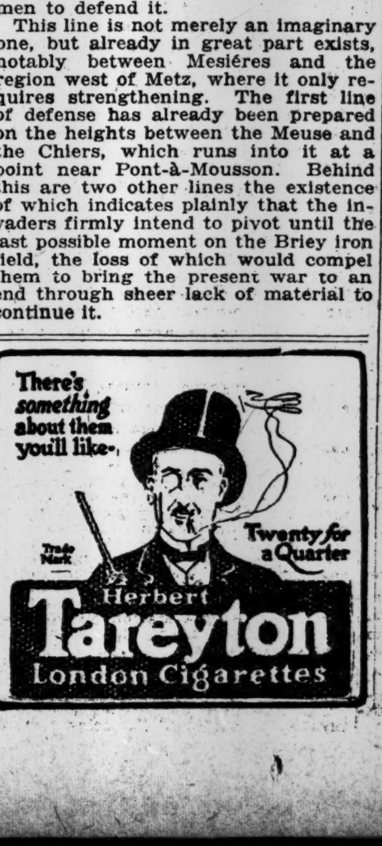
Without possession of the Briey Basin Germany would not have been able to find enough steel to fight the rest of Europe over four years. The last portion of French territory she will give up, therefore, will be the Briey iron field.

Germans Prepare New Line.

In view of their continued inability to withstand the allied pressure, the Germans are known to have been already getting ready an entirely new line of very strong positions upon which to rely for their last stand in France. This new line starts as at present from Nieuport and runs into France as far as just south of the front line, then turns sharply southeastward and follows almost a straight line just inside the frontier, passing west of Valenciennes until it cuts the Meuse at Mézières, thence following the Meuse as far as Dun sur Meuse, whence it runs right through northeast of Verdun to Pont à Mousson, where it joins up with the present front.

This new front would involve the enemy sacrificing the St. Mihiel salient, as well as much more, but the line to be held would be reduced to less than 375 miles and would consequently require a much smaller number of men to defend it.

This line is not merely an imaginary one, but already in great part exists, notably between Mesiéres and the region west of Metz, where it only requires strengthening. The first line of defense has already been prepared on the heights between the Meuse and the Chiers, which runs into it at a point near Pont-à-Mousson. Behind this are two other lines the existence of which indicates plainly that the invaders firmly intend to pivot until the last possible moment on the Briey iron field, the loss of which would compel them to bring the present war to an end through sheer lack of material to continue it.



Official Reports of the Day's Fighting

British

LONDON, Sept. 6.

Night Report—On the southern portion of the battlefront our progress continues in close touch with the French Army on our right. South of Péronne we already are nearly seven miles east of the Somme and advancing on the general line of Monchy-Lagache, Vraignes, and Pincourt, [Hancourt?] all of which places are in our hands.

The resistance of the enemy's countering troops who had attempted to delay our advance has been rapidly overcome, and a number of prisoners have been taken in this sector.

South of the Cologne River, on the high ground about Nurlu, the enemy has contested our advance with greater stubbornness. Sharp fighting occurred about this village and around Equancourt, in the valley north of it. Both these villages now are in possession of our troops.

Pressing forward beyond this line, we have captured Longavesnes and Lieramont and are approaching Metz-en-Couture and the southern portion of the Havrincourt Wood. A number of prisoners have been taken on this part of the battlefront.

North of La Bassée Canal local fighting has taken place west of La Bassée and east of Sac-St. Maur. We captured a few prisoners in the latter locality.

Day Report — Yesterday our troops forced crossings of the Somme south of Péronne in the face of the vigorous resistance of the enemy's rearguards on the east bank of the river. The villages of St. Christ-Briost and Le Mesnil-Bruntel were captured, with a number of prisoners, and our troops, pressing forward astride the Amiens-St. Quentin road, have reached Athies and Mons-en-Chausée.

East of Péronne we have taken Doingt and have made important progress on the high ground between Péronne and Nurlu. We hold Bussu and are close to Templeux-la-Fosse, Nurlu, and Equancourt. Sharp fighting took place last night on this line.

On the Lys front ground was gained by our troops during the night west of La Bassée, and an attack upon one of our new posts in this locality was successfully beaten off.

As the result of their continued progress yesterday and last night our troops are established in portions of the old German front line east of Neuve Chapelle, and the old British front line in the Fauquissart sector is again held by us.

By a successful attack carried out yesterday evening, English troops advanced on the line northwest of Armentières, capturing several prisoners.

French

PARIS, Sept. 6.

Night Report—On the whole of the front between the Somme and the Aisne the advance of our troops has not slackened during the day, in spite of the efforts of the Germans to stem it, particularly to the north of the Ailette.

We hold Ham and Chauny.

To the east of the Canal du Nord we have brought our front on a line running past Launchy, the forest of Villers-St. Christophe, Estoully, east of Ham, Brouchy, Villesleve, Ugny le-Gay, Viry-Noureuil, and northeast of Chauny.

Since yesterday our troops have made progress in several places to a depth of ten kilometers.

To the north of the Ailette we have occupied the lower forest of Coucy up to Petit Barisis. The Germans were compelled to abandon in the forest materials and considerable munitions dépôts.

Further to the right we hold the outskirts of Fresnes, Quincy-Basse, Lizières, west of Vauxaillon and the Laffaux farm.

We have reoccupied our old trenches on the whole of the front to the north of the Aisne.

South of the Aisne the Americans have made further progress in the region of Villers-en-Prayeres and Revillon.

Day Report—In the course of the night we continued to advance on the entire front between the Somme and the Vesle. Our troops continued to cross the Somme in the region of Epenancourt, and further south pushed forward at several points as far as the road from Ham to Péronne. South of Ham the French occupied Le Plessis-Patte d'Oie and Berlancourt and passed beyond Guivry, Caillouel, Crepigny, and Abbécourt.

North of the Ailette we attained the approaches to Sinceny and the plateau north of Landricourt. South of the Ailette we are along the Vauxaillon ravine.

On the Vesle front the Americans carried their lines as far as the outskirts of Villers-en-Prayeres and occupied Glennes.

German

BERLIN, Sept. 6, (via London.)

Night Report—The day passed quietly along the battlefront.

There were minor engagements in the areas fronting our positions.

Day Report—Enemy reconnoitring detachments which were feeling their way forward between Ypres and La Bassée, and which broke forward north of Lens under strong outbursts of fire, were repulsed. During the evening Hessian troops drove back several enemy attacks between Ploegsteert and Armentières. In these operations they made more than 100 prisoners. There was a successful thrust into British trenches near Hulluch.

In front of our new positions vigorous infantry engagements developed on the Bapaume-Cambrai road, at the Havrincourt Wood, and on the heights of the Tortille sector. Strong attacks which the enemy carried out from the Neuville-Manancourt-Moislans line were repulsed.

From Péronne and over the Somme the enemy yesterday only hesitatingly followed our rearguards. Between the Somme and the Oise he crossed after them more keenly, and in the evening he stood west of the Ham-Chauny line. Also between the Oise and the Aisne the freeing of ourselves from the enemy was completed according to plan. Our posts stand in fighting contact with him on the Amigny-Barisis-Laffaux-Condé line.

East of Soissons the enemy has followed us across the Vesle. Our infantry detachments and artillery, which held him up for a long time, have inflicted losses upon him. On the northeast of Fismes, strong American attacks were repulsed.

BRITISH MAKE DAILY RAIDS NEAR HELIGOLAND

German Vessels Destroyed by These Operations in Last Year Run Into Three Figures.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 5, (Associated Press.)—A number of interesting developments in and aspects of the present naval situation have just been made available from an authoritative source.

For one thing, when German submarines first appeared off the American coast naval experts in London formed the opinion that the move was merely a feint to draw off American anti-submarine craft from European waters. They argued that it was impossible for Germany to maintain such long-distance operations. However, it is pointed out, both cruiser submarines and mine-layers are working along the Atlantic coast.

The general tendency of the U-boats is now to operate further from the shore—at some points from 200 to 250 miles out.

There are no submarines in the Dardanelles, it is revealed, while the movable barrier established by the Allies in the Straits of Otranto, at the entrance to the Adriatic, is responsible for the diminution of sinkings in the Mediterranean. The losses to German submarines in the Adriatic since 1917 have been 25 per cent. of the total number operating.

The British are active in the Heligoland Bight, and are carrying out operations with various kinds of light forces in the North Sea, the average number of such operations being no less than five daily. The number of German surface craft destroyed in the Bight during the year runs into three figures.

The German short-distance submarine fleet, making its bases in Belgian ports, has been virtually wiped out. The enemy reinforced the Flanders flotilla with long-distance submarines, commanded by Captains with daring proclivities, some of whom have dashed through the allied naval barrage, but between the end of March and July the Allies definitely destroyed more than 50 per cent. of the flotilla.

Since the Jutland battle the German high seas fleet has not been in the North Sea except for some "tip-and-run" dashes of a few ships.

GERMAN PRINCE IS KILLED.

Ferdinand of Solms-Hohensolms-Lich Dies in Action.

BASLE, Switzerland, Sept. 6, (Havas Agency.)—The death of Princé Ferdinand of Solms-Hohensolms-Lich is announced today by the German newspapers. He was killed on the battlefront last Sunday while in command of an infantry battalion.

Prince Ferdinand was born at Weimar, the capital of the Grand Duchy of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, Germany, in 1886. He was a cousin of Prince Charles, the head of the reigning house of Solms-Hohensolms-Lich.

FRANCE HEROIC IN SACRIFICE

Willing to Stint Herself Further to Release Ships for Bringing American Troops.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The series of successes in the military field during the last six weeks are a striking tribute to the value of a single military command. There is nothing but praise of General Foch on all sides. The contrast between the rapid succession of blows at different parts of the line and what took place in the early part of last year, when the English and French Armies were operating independently, has demonstrated, even to those who doubted it, the wisdom of a single command.

In a less spectacular but perhaps equally important field, while the same degree of unity has not yet been attained, there has been growing up a coordination behind the lines which would have seemed unattainable at this time last year. This co-ordination in civilian war effort is indirectly the result of America's entrance in the war.

When Colonel House returned to America after his successful mission to Paris in November of last year, he made a frank statement of the results accomplished by the Paris conferences. It will be remembered how strongly he emphasized the necessity of unity in all lines. At the end of nine months it is possible to see some of the marked effects of the plans then instituted.

Classifying Allied Tonnage.

A few months ago, as a result of the Paris conference, the Allied Maritime Transport Council was formed. The council, with representatives from four nations, has classified the tonnage of the allied and neutral world. It reports to the heads of the several nations the work which the tonnage is doing, and recommends rerouting, which will enable more effective war effort.

This involves not only knowledge of the available shipping, but also knowledge of the necessary demands of the nations not only for war purposes, but for those civilian requirements that must be met in order that the peoples of the nations may be sure to receive their minimum needs.

There were gathered together in London last week at a meeting of the Allied Maritime Transport Council many interallied committees that are now making programs of the commodities needed by the four principal allies. Neither the Allied Maritime Transport Council nor the program committees are executive bodies. They are budget-making bodies. They cannot bind their Governments. They simply get the facts for their Governments, and upon those facts the Governments are enabled to take concerted action.

The war has meant a great sacrifice for the nations in Europe, just as it is now beginning to mean great sacrifices for America. Of course, the supreme sacrifice that the soldier makes stands by itself. The people at home, however, have had to change their habits. Each year that has gone on has required a greater change in habits.

One thing, however, is certain. The allied nations have at no time been rationed with anything like the strictness that Germany has imposed upon herself and her allies.

France Inured to Sacrifice.

We hear echoes in Europe of the war savings campaign at home and of the effort to stop consumption in order that labor and material may be freed for war needs. They have gone through these campaigns here in France, England and Italy. We hear little argument about the subject now. It is assumed rather than argued that unnecessary consumption cannot go on at the expense of effective war effort.

The problem, however, is how to distribute the sacrifice. How to use the available resources to take care of the necessary needs, so that the civilian suffering and inconvenince may be reduced to the minimum, has been the perplexing problem since the war started. It is natural for one country to point to luxuries still permitted in another country. It is recognized by all that equality of sacrifice can be secured only at the battlefront. At the front each nation gives the best it has—the life of its youth. No such complete equality of sacrifice can be secured back of the lines. The distance from the scene of the fighting and the length of time a nation has been in the war are factors that must be carefully considered. Changes in the habits of national life must necessarily come slowly.

In the last year, however, a marked thing has been the frankness of discussion of questions of this kind. Instead of a single nation asking or demanding what it needs or thinks it needs from the diminishing store of the world's ships and the diminishing store of the world's goods, the Allied Maritime Transport Council and various program committees have been gradually developing interallied avenues of communication and interallied machinery of action by which there may be submitted to the supreme authorities in the several nations programs of action which, if adopted, are designed to enable not only a more effective utilization of the resources of the nations in the common cause, but also to distribute more equally the necessary sacrifices imposed upon the civilian population by the increasing intensity of the war.

Credit to Wilson Leadership.

In the progress that has been made toward this unity there is a growing tendency in both France and England to recognize the wise leadership of President Wilson. Before America's entrance into the struggle many suggestions of pooling resources were made. The results of the last year, however, have not come from pooling so much as from the constant interchange of counsel and from the constant education as to each other's needs. The result has been that frankness is gradually being substituted for reticence and confidence is taking the place of suspicion.

All this has a definite and direct bearing upon the enlarged American Army program, which has been so frankly explained to the whole world by our Chief of Staff, General March. The reports of shipbuilding show clearly that the allied and neutral world is now building ships faster than Germany is sinking them. It is generally recognized over here that the submarine campaign has been for Germany a costly failure—a failure that is more and more being understood by the German people.

What would have happened in Europe if von Tirpitz had not misled the German people no man can tell. He is looked upon here as the original recruiting agent for the vast American Army. But while the submarine campaign has failed, it is still true that maritime tonnage presents a problem which will call for the greatest wisdom during the coming six months and for still further sacrifices of civilian need. Thanks to Mr. Hurley, the ships are daily increasing in number. But the demands upon shipping, with the vast American Army in Europe, will for a while increase more rapidly than the ships.

The British, French, and Italians understand that large American troop movements will mean a further tightening of belts in Europe. They are not shrinking from the added sacrifice. They see in the coming of this great American Army a definite settlement of the war in year 1919. They see their soldiers reinvigorated by the presence of the fresh American legions pouring into France. They see at the end of this war the coming of a new international understanding which will lift off their backs the great burden of armament under which they have lived for generations. They see in the mutual help that nations are now extending to one another and in the frank interchange of confidences a real and tangible basis for the President's hope of a partnership of the free nations.

All to Hurry American Aid.

No one has better expressed the problem of the allied nations during the next few months than M. Clementel, Minister of Commerce of France, in a recent London speech. He saw clearly what next year means to France. There runs through his whole speech, not heretofore published in America, that courage and idealism which has made the whole world love France. Clementel said:

"It is necessary to make new sacrifices. Who can think that France will not consent to them? For four years her soil has been the battlefield of the world, the battlefield where the Allies are fighting for liberty. France wants to contemplate at this moment only the grandeur of the end to be attained without thinking of desolation and ruins.

"For her manufactures, which lack material; for her fields too long unfruitful, France had hoped for new support this coming year. We must renounce this hope in order to permit American troops to continue to land on our soil in uninterrupted waves. We know that reinforcements of troops from the United States will be a decisive element in breaking the armies in front of us.

"France is searching only for a method of aiding in the acceleration of the American effort on the French front. To deprive herself to this end is to shorten the war. We are convinced that our allies will submit to the same sacrifices.

"M. Clemenceau, in his reply to the General Council, which had manifested its confidence in him—fired with the depth of his faith, a faith which has moved mountains—exhorted his fellow-citizens to salute 'the glorious dawn.' This dawn is arising from a very dark night, but it now illumines the brows of our soldiers. With the dawn will come a humane peace of right erected on the ruins of German militarism, a peace of which President Wilson has formulated the principles in his immortal messages, which will form the credo of a liberated world. Which of us would not be ready to make all the sacrifices demanded in order to bring a little sooner a new world—a world where human brotherhood will be a living reality—a new world which already is outlined on the horizon like a promised land."

ALL PARIS EAGER FOR FALL OF LENS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—There is a sense of victory in the very air of Paris this morning that the news of every hour only renders more positive. It is confidently expected here that the next day or two will see Ham, the gateway to St. Quentin, in the hands of the French, while the entry of the British into Lens is expected hourly.

Of all these, apart from strategical reasons, Lens in one sense is the most interesting to the French public. Lens means coal. The British penetrated its suburbs at what seems now to be years ago. Their classic victory at Loos brought them within sight of the pitheads of Lens, but an entry into the promised land of coal was not vouchsafed to them.

The economic gain to France, and indirectly to England, that will result from the recapture of Lens is almost incalculable. Of the sixty million tons of coal that France required before the war she received forty from her own mines, and 60 per cent. of this came from the pits in the north of France. The balance was made up of ten million tons from England, five from Germany, and five from Belgium. Owing to German occupation of the Lens coal field the French output has been reduced to a minimum, while the amount formerly received from Germany and Belgium has, of course, been nonexistent. France consequently had to depend for nearly four years on England to make up the deficiency. England, it is gratefully acknowledged, has done her level best to accomplish the impossible task of meeting French demands, but naturally has been unable, owing to lack of transport facilities and her own imperative demands at home, to furnish a full supply.

SHELL AUSTRIAN LINES.

Italians Also Repel Attacks on Mountain and River Fronts.

ROME, Sept. 6.—The official statement issued today by the Italian War Office says:

Along the mountainous front our artillery yesterday effectively shelled the enemy's front lines and rear areas. In the Concalaghi, Posina, and the Assa Valley our patrols engaged enemy exploring parties and drove them back.

North of Monfenera an attempt to raid our advanced lines was arrested by our garrison, which afterward, by a counterattack, put the enemy to flight with losses.

On the Lower Piave enemy scouts attempting to cross the river in small boats were driven back by rifle fire.

VIENNA, Sept. 5, (via London.)—A War Office communication issued today, dealing with the operations on the Italian front, says:

Dutch File Protest.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 6.—The Dutch Minister at Berlin has been instructed to protest against the destruction by German submarines of vessels within what is designated as the barred zone, and against the sinking of seven Dutch fishing vessels on Aug. 24.

The Minister also has instructions to protest against the fact that the skippers of the fishing vessels were forced to sign a declaration, the contents of which were unknown to them. The Minister also will make a request for the goods taken from the fishing vessels.

Hollis's Father on Way to France.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire, father of Lieutenant Henry F. Hollis, Jr., of the Army Aviation Corps, who committed suicide last Wednesday in Dayton, Ohio, where he was stationed, is now on his way to France. The Senator's office was advised of the suicide only today.

ARCHANGEL, Aug. 26.—As the day approached for concerted action against the Bolsheviki, Archangel lay ruddy and agleam in the bright sub-arctic sunshine. A new stillness, born of suspicion and anxiety, intensified the quietude that came of arrested industry and commerce. The persecuted majority, crouching out of sight behind their walls and windows, noted that among the companies of the armed minority passing through the street bluster and swagger had largely given place to confidential talk and hurried footsteps.

Some of these companies paid lengthy visits to the banks, even to the banks that had already been plundered, and to institutions which in former days were centres of public administration. For note that the Bolsheviki were at their old naughtiness of destroying records. Not only was a depositor to find his balance and securities gone, but also every ledger and memorandum testifying to their existence. The deeds of property, municipal archives—all the clerical furniture of civilization became material for bonfires.

Another movement was to the opposite shore, where the Bolsheviki, uncouth soldierly Germans, Letts, and jailbirds made double preparations for fight and flight.

Conceive the ensuing period of sleepless anxiety dragging through the interminable northern days that knew no nights.

The Bolsheviki, instigated no doubt by German counselors, dispatched two large icebreakers down the strait; nor could the watchers doubt that those vessels would be sunk in the fairway to block our naval and military forces. Thick fog rested on the water, and anon tired eyes saw a converging circle of the Bolshevist tugs.

With unprecedented slowness the hands of the clock moved on, until a certain hour was reached. Fitful rifle fire broke out from several quarters of the town, followed by silence. What was the upshot? There were anxious speculations on board; also, doubtless, in the Bolshevist camp on shore.

A listening operator heard the thrilling news that the naval vanguard, on reaching the fortified island some sixteen miles away, had been attacked by the Bolshevist garrison, whom it promptly subdued. Russia's authoritative citizens, issuing from their homes, had everywhere overcome usurping Russians with a minimum of violence and with only one death.

Archangel had changed hands, and the Red Guard garrison was already in prison.

Hope at the railhead was fear on the ship. Had the fairway been blocked? The answer came to those keeping a bright lookout. They espied the slate-colored plow and funnels of a swift and shapely unit of Great Britain's navy. The Bolshevist artillery bestirred itself, and a few shells flew rather wildly across the water. Then the slate-colored visitor got to work; and when the landing parties reached the beach, Kedroff and Eiduck with their punished forces were off by rail on a southward journey.

Soon other vessels arrived, for the unskillful Bolsheviki had sunk the icebreakers to no advantage. One brought Consul General Poole who, on learning how matters stood, issued orders for tooting on the siren. This had a remarkable consequence, wholly unforeseen. Other craft followed suit, then others, and still others, until from every sort of horn, hooter, and whistle the varied shipping of Archangel spread along her moles of water frontage sent up a sustained roar of triumph such as is seldom heard. Then crashing peals of bells from numerous churches contributed a new wave of joyous sound; and the citizens of Archangel, assembling along the quays, raised oft-repeated cheers to the accompaniment of waving flags and caps and handkerchiefs.

The elaborate and impressive service of thanksgiving, attended by newly recruited Russian troops, and set off by the rich trappings of the National Church, last Sunday, gave further expression to the town's gratitude for its delivery from the Bolsheviki. Already industry, commerce, and banking are being re-established under the Provisional Government composed of the National Assembly Socialists, who, as a matter of patriotism and common sense, recognize the need for restoring private enterprise in the land, and who, it is hoped, eventually will form the nucleus of a new, strong, democratic, independent Russia.

ALLIES DEFEAT REDS LED BY GERMANS

Capture a Town in the Archangel Region—Peasants Take Nizhni-Novgorod.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A British official communication dealing with the operations of the allied forces in the region around Archangel, Russia, says:

After further severe hand-to-hand fighting with the enemy forces led by the Germans, the allied troops have occupied Obozerskaya. Prisoners to the number of 150 were captured, and heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy.

The allied casualties were slight.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—Insurgent peasants have captured Nizhni-Novgorod, according to a Moscow dispatch to the Rhenish Westphalian Gazette of Essen. The town was partly destroyed and the Soviet troops were forced to retire to the southwest.

Nizhni-Novgorod, capital of the Government of the same name, is on the right bank of the Volga River, 265 miles east-northeast of Moscow. The fair of Nizhni-Novgorod, held in the second half of the Summer, is the largest in the world, and before the war attracted merchants from every part of the empire and from foreign countries.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Aug. 30, (Associated Press.)—General Semenoff, at the head of anti-Bolshevist forces in Siberia, is following up his success in capturing the Borgia station on the Trans-Siberian line near the Manchurian-Trans-Baikal border, the Bolsheviki having failed to destroy the bridge at that point. No serious fighting is yet reported from his operation, however.

The Japanese authorities are exercising strict control of the telegraph communications and news of what is going on at the front is consequently difficult to obtain.

A Red Cross train presented by the Chinese Eastern Railway to the American Red Cross arrived in Harbin this morning.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—A dispatch to the State Department from Vladivostok says Dr. Girsa of the Czechoslovak National Council has presented to the American authorities in Vladivostok a formal letter of thanks to the United States for sympathy and assistance given his people. He particularly thanked the American Red Cross for Winter clothing, supplies, and other assistance.

LENINE REPORTED WEAKER.

Girl Who Shot Him Also in Critical Condition from Mob's Attack.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The condition of Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevist Premier, against whose life an attempt was made last week, is weaker, according to a Russian wireless dispatch received here tonight from Moscow. His temperature is higher as the result of effusion of blood in the pleura and shoulder.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—Dora Kaplan, a member of the Social Revolutionary Party, who last Friday attempted to assassinate Nikolai Lenine, is in a critical condition at a hospital in Moscow as the result of rough handling by a mob after the attack, says a dispatch from Moscow to the Rhenish Westphalian Gazette of Essen.

The Bolshevist Commissary of Justice, the dispatch adds, has ordered that everything be done to save the woman's life, for the purpose of tracing the "plot which undoubtedly existed."

RED CROSS WORKERS CHOSEN.

C. T. Williams to Head Relief Mission to Archangel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The personnel of the special Red Cross Commission which is to direct relief work from Archangel, Russia, was announced today.

C. T. Williams of Baltimore will be in command of the mission, ranking as Major. His work as a member of the Red Cross Commission to Rumania in 1917-1918 is well remembered.

Dr. W. D. Kirkpatrick of Bellingham, Wash., is attached to the mission in his medical capacity and ranks as Major.

Captain Robert I. Barr of Orange, N. J., is another member of the mission. Captain Barr was a member of the Red Cross Mission to Russia last year and has recently visited Cuba as a member of the Sugar Credit Committee.

The other members of the mission who have had Red Cross foreign service experience are the two nurses, Miss Beatrice Gosling of Milburn, N. J., and Miss Alma Foerster of Chicago, who were attached to the Rumanian Mission in 1917-1918.

PRUSSIAN REFORM DOUBTED

Belief That Junkers Will Force a Compromise.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—The importance and gravity of Count von Hertling's speech, in which he warned the Prussian reactionaries that any delay in passing the Prussian franchise reform measure might have serious results for the Crown and the dynasty, are fully recognized by the German press. There is little hope expressed, however, that the matter will be satisfactorily settled.

The reactionaries are working hard to arrive at a compromise which will be acceptable to the Government. The representative of the Prussian upper house in the negotiations is Baron von Schorlemer, a determined opponent of the reform, so the general belief is that the bill will be gerrymandered in some sort of way to which the Government will agree, and that the measure will be passed with such a pale democratic complexion that the Junkers will be satisfied.

Vorwärts declares it hears that the Junkers will pay little heed to Hertling's serious words, and it is not quite sure even of Hertling himself, who clearly showed in his speech how greatly he feared a "far-reaching liberalization of the Government system."

As for the danger to the Crown and the dynasty, Vorwärts thinks that a lot more might have been said with profit on that point. It refers to the overthrow of the Russian throne, indicates how extensively the democratic idea has increased during the war, and declares that a different Germany will emerge from the war as compared with that Germany which entered it. Well, it maintains, may a confirmed monarchist like Hertling have some fear of the future. "Hertling wishes reform by means of the Prussian upper house," it says. "We wish it by the people and for the people. There is the abyss. Where is the bridge?"

Tries to Allay Junkers' Fears.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—In the course of a debate on franchise reform in the Prussian upper house today, Herr Friedberg, Vice President of the Prussian State Ministry, said that the Government respected the sentiments which had found expression and was, therefore, striving for an understanding which, however, must not conflict with the fundamental ideas of the Emperor's message of July 11, 1917.

He said he did not believe that the necessary sequel to the extension of the franchise would be parliamentarization of the Government. The appointment of Ministers was the privilege of the Crown, he declared, and would remain so.

BERLIN "UNDER SIEGE" TO CHECK UNREST

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5. — A decree signed by General von Linsingen, commandant of the Brandenburg Province, according to the Cologne Volkszeitung, places the City of Berlin and the Province of Brandenburg under "the law relating to a state of siege, which provides for a fine or imprisonment for persons inventing or circulating untrue rumors calculated to disquiet the populace."

A notice accompanying the decree calls attention to the circulation of frivolous and sometimes malevolent and traitorous gossip, exaggerating the transitory success of the enemy and casting doubt upon Germany's power for an economic resistance and depreciating the wonderful achievements of the German troops, who, it declares, are victoriously withstanding the enemy.

General von Linsingen expresses the hope that this admonition will suffice, and that it will not be necessary to enforce the decree. The Volkszeitung adds that similar decrees have been issued in Breslau and other cities, all operative immediately.

Henderson of Nevada Registers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Senator Henderson of Nevada has the distinction of being the first member of the United States Senate to register under the new draft law exteinding age limits to men under 46. He has filed with local draft authorities a registration certificate to be forwarded to his home at Elko, Nev. He is 45 years of age.

SPIRIT OF VICTORY MARKS MARNE DAY

FOCH AND PERSHING CABLE

Will Be No German Victory, Says Jusserand—Lafayette Day Also Celebrated.

Enthusiastic tributes to France and the warmest testimony to the national friendship between France and the United States and among all the Allies were paid yesterday at the joint celebration of Lafayette Day and the anniversary of the first Battle of the Marne.

Great impressiveness was added to the exercises in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall by cable messages breathing the spirit of victory from Marshal Foch, Marshal Joffre, President Poincaré of France, General Pershing, and others.

The hall was draped with American and French flags. Over the speakers' table hung a full-length picture of Lafayette. The floor of the chamber and the galleries were bordered with American soldiers and French, British, and American sailors, with bayonets fixed.

In the evening the day was further observed with a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria, at which Ambassador Jusserand of France and other noted speakers hailed the approaching dawn of victory and messages from President Wilson and others were read.

Roosevelt's Drastic Peace Terms.

Colonel Roosevelt, who was the principal speaker at the City Hall exercises in the afternoon, brought the audience to its feet with a statement of drastic terms of peace which must be dictated to Germany. After he had been introduced by Justice Victor J. Dowling, Chairman of the meeting, as an "ideal American," whose family was a source of pride to the entire nation, Colonel Roosevelt was applauded for several minutes by the audience which was on its feet. In his address he said:

"Lafayette Day commemorates the service rendered to America in the Revolution by France. I wish to insist with all possible emphasis that in the present war France and England and Italy and the other Allies have rendered us similar services. The French at the battle of the Marne, four years ago, and at Verdun, and the British at Ypres—in short, the French, the English, the Italians, the Belgians, the Serbians—have been fighting for us when they were fighting for themselves.

"Our army on the other side is now repaying in part our debt, and next year we have every reason to hope, and we must insist, that the fighting army in France from the United States shall surpass in numbers the fighting army in France of either France or England.

"We must win the war as speedily as possible. But we must set ourselves to fight it through, no matter how long it takes, with the resolute determination to accept no peace until, no matter at what cost, we win the peace of overwhelming victory. The peace that we win must guarantee full reparation for the awful cost of life and treasure which the Prussianized Germany of the Hohenzollerns has inflicted on the entire world; and this reparation must take the form of action that will render it impossible for Germany to repeat her colossal wrongdoing."

Colonel Roosevelt again told the drastic peace terms that he would dictate to Germany and her allies concerning the restoration of despoiled countries and the aims of subject peoples, and continued:

"The heroic Czechoslovaks must be made into an independent commonwealth. The southern Slavs must be united in a great Jugoslav commonwealth. Poland as a genuinely independent commonwealth must receive back Austrian and Prussian Poland as well as Russian Poland, and have her coast line on the Baltic. Lithuania, the Baltic province of Russia, and Finland must be guaranteed their freedom, and no part of the ancient Empire of Russia left under the German yoke. Northern Schlesswig should go back to the Danes. Britain and Japan should keep the colonies they have conquered. Armenia must be freed, Palestine made a Jewish State, and the Syrian Christians liberated.

Concerning League of Nations.

"It is sometimes announced that part of the peace agreemetn must be a League of Nations which will avert all war for the future and put a stop to the need of this nation preparing its own strength for its own defense. Many of the adherents of this idea grandiloquently assert that they intend to supplant nationalism by internationalism.

"Test the proposed future League of Nations so far as concerns proposals to disarm and to trust to anything except our own strength for our own defense, by what the nations are actually doing at the present time. Any such league would have to depend for its success upon the adhesion of the nine nations which are actually or potentially the most powerful military nations; and these nine nations include Germany, Austria, Turkey, and Russia. The first three have recently and repeatedly violated and are now actively and continuously violating not only every treaty but every rule of civilized warfare and of international good faith."

Warning from Jusserand.

Ambassador Jusserand foretold the coming of another German peace offensive, a desperate and audacious one, because of the fear of crushing defeat if it failed.

"When the days become gloomy for Germany," he said, "when the Germans are anxious, they begin to speak of peace and to use gentle words. But they make a mistake. We know how to read and we know how to read between the lines. They have on many occasions made proposals, they have asked us about indemnities to see what we would say, but we declined, and we shall much more decline now to consider any proposal of that sort. We are no reduced to supposition as to the character of German peace proposals, because we know of the four treaties which she has signed in a year, treaties said to be negotiated to liberate nations.

"They are all treaties of servitude, and the day they were signed they were violated by Germany. The treaty with Finland is a treaty of a protectorate; the treaty with the Ukraine is a treaty in which the Ukraine is bound to feed Germany; and the day it was signed Germany overran the Ukraine and reached the Black Sea, and just now there is an uprising of that nation which the Germans say they have freed, and they are rising against their liberators.

"They signed a treaty with Russia, the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, in March last, and removed from Russia an immense proportion of her population, physically bigger than Germany and Austria combined, and without speaking of the other nations. It was with the view of giving them German princes. We know what that means. They have given that to Albania.

"But that is not our way, it is not your way, and they shall not prevail. We know perfectly well what would be in store for us if we failed, if we stopped before we had finished our work—which does not consist in destroying Germany, but in destroying Germanism, and that we shall destroy.

"The Rumanian treaty, the worst of their treaties, the most monstrous, the one in which they reserve for themselves the possibility of having one supervisor for each department, for each municipal department of Rumania. And they bar Rumania from all access to the sea, and take all her natural resources. When those proposals were made to Rumania, and they were staggered by the sight and expressed their horror, the German delegate said, 'I know it, I know it.' They said the Allies will have worse conditions after the German victory. Heaven be praised, there will be no German victory!"

Maurice Leon, Chairman of the Executive Committee which planned yesterday's celebration, read this cable from Marshal Foch:

"It is in perfect communion of sentiment that I am with you in the celebration of Lafayette Day. Once more the union of our peoples will make our strength; the valor of the American soldiers testified to it. Those who die fall as brave men before God. If their eyes could open they would see the blue sky."

The following message was from Marshal Joffre:

"At the hour when you are celebrating at the same time the anniversary of the battle of the Marne and that of the birth of Lafayette, I join myself wholeheartedly with you, happy to be able to applaud on this great day the first successes of the American Army upon the soil of France."

President Poincaré's Message.

"The French people, which feels itself day by day more closely united to the American people, is deeply touched by and grateful for the warm feeling once again shown by the citizens of the United States in honoring the double anniversary of the birth of Lafayette and of the victory on the Marne. The celebration of these two events has now the grandeur and the lustre of a historical symbol.

"On the Marne France defended not only her own threatened liberty but the injured rights of mankind itself. She has acted as the vanguard of the nations whom enemy imperialism had dreamed of subjugating. She gave the world time to prepare itself for the necessary struggle, and thus saved it from slavery.

"It was for liberty, too, that Lafayette had fought by the side of Washington. The names of these two brothers in arms are inseparable, as are forever inseparable the hearts of America and of France.

"If America has not forgotten Lafayette, if she has not forgotten Rochambeau, De Grasse, La Luzerne, and so many Frenchmen who had the proud joy of fighting for her at the dawn of her independence, how could France ever forget the wonderful assistance that so many American soldiers bring her now? Every day I am witness of their magnificent ardor, of their courage, and of their enthusiasm for the common cause.

"In the name of France I send America a message of fidelity, affection, and admiration."

General Pershing cabled as follows:

"On this fourth anniversary of the great battle all people who love liberty and hate oppression unite in admiration and gratitude to those gallant soldiers of the French and British Armies whose heroic acts turned back the advancing hordes of the enemy and made possible the progress of allied armies now gloriously advancing toward the final victory that will save the civilization of the world to future generations. It is with deep emotion that today we of the American Expeditionary Forces offer our homage to those brave men, both the living and the dead, and again confirm our devotion to their cause, and again declare it to be our fixed purpose that their sacrifice shall not have been in vain."

Patriotic messages from Admiral Sims and Ambassador Sharp were also read, as was a poem on France by John Jay Chapman.

Yesterday's celebration began with a large gathering in Union Square, at which the principal speaker was former Judge Alton B. Parker. American soldiers, French bluejackets, and British marines formed a square about the naval band which played during the exercises. Five hundred children from the east side settlement houses were the leading feature at the celebration at the Central Park Mall in the afternoon. Dr. George F. Kunz, President of the American Scenic Historical Society, presided and delivered the opening address.

While the ceremonies were going on eighteen airplanes sailed over and around the Mall in battle formation.

FORCE ONLY LANGUAGE NOW, DECLARES LANE

That Is the One Germany Understands, Says Secretary of Interior at Lafayette Dinner.

A plea to Dr. T. G. Masaryk, Chief of the Provisional Government of the Czechoslovak nation, for the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary, "a Government created and maintained by violence," as an indispensable condition to the security of the world, and a promise by Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane on behalf of the Administration of a war to a military decision, complete and overwhelming, stirred the guests of the France-America Society at its Lafayette Day dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria last night.

"We are speaking in terms of force now," said Mr. Lane, "because that is the one language which the German Government understands. We will continue to speak in the language that comes from the cannon's mouth until we have achieved a military decision. A military decision will have been reached, as I understand it, when Germany knows that she has been whipped, and knows that she will be whipped again, if she continues to fight—that she cannot stand against the physical force of the world, or its moral force."

After urging support for his plan to use 250,000,000 acres of arable land in this country for the benefit of soldiers returning from the front, Secretary Lane told of his recent trip to Hawaii, where he reviewed newly recruited regiments of Hawaiians, who unanimously asked to be sent to France. He told of asking, in a little school on a mountain, if any one there could tell him why the United States was in the war. A thirteen-year-old girl, looking at the ocean, which was in sight of the school, said:

"To make the sea free and to help people that need help."

Fighting to Keep Seas Free.

Sir Henry Babington-Smith, the acting British High Commissioner, who spoke after Mr. Lane, used this as his text.

"In all the fluctuations of warfare during these four years," he said—"and we have seen many fluctuations, we have seen the tide of war rising and falling, the battle in France moving backward and forward—during all these four years, there has been one element which has not fluctuated, and that has been the sea.

"It is true, as the little girl said, we are fighting to keep the seas free, but the seas must be free before we can fight. The sea must be free for the use of the Allies. And if the sea had not been free for the use of the Allies, of the 23,000,000 men who have registered or are to register in this country, not one of them could find his place in the battlefield of France. That freedom of the seas for the use of the Allies is secured by the allied fleets, namely by the Great Fleet, English and American, lying in the mist of the North Sea."

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who presided at the dinner, was one of the speakers to warn against listening to any pleas of peace which Germany would have to offer in the near future.

"One of the German communiqués," he continued, "recently announced that a certain town now stood before the German lines. A cynical writer in the Socialist Vorwärts said that it would have been more frank if the communiqué had not been worded so as to give the impression that the German line had stood still and the town had changed its place.

"But the one natural feature of Europe that has got to change its relative position to the German lines is the River Rhine. When a German official communiqué announces that that river now stands before the German lines, the people at home in Germany will begin to understand what is going to happen."

President Wilson's Message.

Wilson to F. Cunliffe-Owen, one of the committee in charge of the dinner, was read:

The White House.

My Dear Mr. Cunliffe-Owen: I wish most sincerely that I might be at the annual dinner of the France-America Society on Sept. 6. Since I cannot be, will you not be kind enough to convey my greetings to those present, and to say how much I regret that I cannot have the opportunity to join with them in expressing the feelings of gratitude and deep admiration for the Marquis de Lafayette, which I am sure all our fellow-countrymen entertain, who love this great country, and who cherish the great memories of the days of the Revolution? We are in a better position now, perhaps, than we ever were before, to realize what it meant that men like Lafayette should join their fortunes with ours in a great struggle for liberty, and that the Government of the great country which Lafayette represented, should at the hour of greatest need have extended its hand of effective aid across the seas. Cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.

From Cardinal O'Connell.

The following message from Cardinal O'Connell was read:

Boston, Sept. 3, 1918.

My Dear Mr. Cunliffe-Owen: To speak for France at any time is an honor. But to speak for France in these days, when French heroism and French endurance have thrilled the world, is the highest privilege. My regret at being compelled to forego this privilege is as deep as it is sincere.

When your kind invitation reached me I instantly accepted it, not only gladly, but eagerly, for to voice in the presence of the Ambassador of France and the honorable company about him my profound love for the land of Lafayette and my enthusiastic admiration for the heroes of the Marne was something for which my heart yearned.

Alas! Events have conspired against me, and the coveted honor will be gained by another. Nobly as he is sure to acquit himself under the inspiration of so lofty a theme, he can never feel more deeply than I do a genuine and generous love for the glorious France of history, and a fervent admiration for the high heroism of the suffering France of today.

So that when about the banquet table your noble company rises to the toast, I will arise here too, and my message borne over the seas will be "Vive la France!" and my fervent appeal to Heaven, "Dieu protégé la France!"

May I ask you to kindly present my homage to His Excellency, the French Ambassador, and to speak for me my regrets.

I have the honor to be, very faithfully yours,

WILLIAM CARDINAL O'CONNELL,
Archbishop of Boston.

Dr. Masaryk, who was introduced by Dr. Butler as one of the six great personalities in the world, said in his demand for the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary that 30,000, perhaps 60,000 civilians have been executed in Austria-Hungary.

"Imagine what it means to kill men, women, and children, 30,000 or 60,000! That is Austria and the spirit of Austria; and therefore our conviction is Austria must be dismembered. Then, not only will Bohemia be free and Slavic. Only then will Russia be able to recover if Germany shall not be the direct neighbor of Russia," he said.

Ambassador Jusserand said that Germany had begun to "babble" of peace. "You will remember," he continued, "that Falstaff babbled of green fields, and a few minutes later he died."

He said that the present position of the war was best summed up in a cartoon representing the Kaiser, staggered at the size of the American Army in France, asking one of his Generals:

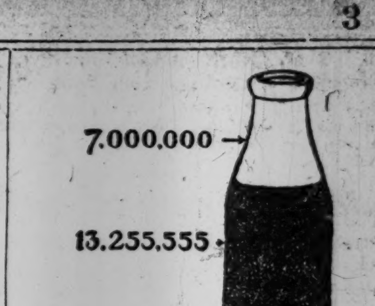
"What fleet brought this great army across the water?"

"The Lusitania," was the reply.

Enrico Caruso, who is an officer of the Legion of Honor, sang "The Marseillaise" at the end of the dinner. Dr. Butler gave him a medal struck in his honor by the society.

Telegraphers Strike in Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6.—Two thousand postal and Government telegraph employes went on strike last night for higher wages. They formed a parade at the Central Post Office and marched through the downtown district singing as they went.



Cream of the Country

In the top third of the population, the 7,000,000 families whose annual income is more than $900, lies your real market. These people read, write and speak English. Every "charge customer" of the stores, every social, financial, political and fraternal leader is included in these 7,000,000 families, each a worth-while prospect for the goods you manufacture.

INVESTIGATES DRAFT RAIDS.

The Department of Justice started an investigation yesterday of the slacker round-up in New York. John Lord O'Brien of Buffalo, Special Assistant to the United States Attorney General, arrived from Washington yesterday morning, and spent most of the day in consultation with Charles De Woody, superintendent of the New York division of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and with United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy.

Mr. O'Brien said his visit was undertaken "on his own initiative," because he was desirous of obtaining first-hand information regarding a procedure which had been so severely criticised by United States Senators, and by the New York newspapers. He also wanted to find out, he said, if subordinates of the Department of Justice had received unusual or unwarranted authority.

Mr. De Woody had neither apologies nor regrets for any act of his in connection with the round-up. He was sorry, he said, that members of the United States Senate had seen fit to criticise the work of himself and his associates without a more careful investigation of the facts. As to the newspaper criticism of the round-up, Mr. De Woody said that such criticism would have the effect of serving notice on all persons in this locality, between the ages of 18 and 45, that, if they did not register on Sept. 12, powerful influences will be behind them to get them out of trouble.

"But if there are any slackers in this new registration," Mr. De Woody added, "they will be rounded up as sure as they are a foot high. The draft law will be enforced."

The Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory was empty of raiders yesterday.

HINDENBURG WARNS OF WAR ON MORALE

similar lines, for they are now doing all they can to convince the German public that they can beat the Americans.

The two military leaders also evidently consider that their personal position is gravely endangered apart from that of Germany, and with a view to brightening things up they are giving interviews to ever-obliging correspondents adn Hindenburg send out today a "solemn warning to Germans at the front and Germans at home" to keep united.

The effect of this extravagant document will hardly be that which its author intended. Even Vorwärts criticises it ,though it knows the risk of suppression in doing so. The Socialist journal openly declares that "Hindenburg does somewhat too far," which is putting it mildly, "when he says that the Entente's description of internal conditions in Germany is false. On the contrary, many Germans, in fact the majority of Germans, believe that the enemy suggestions of reform are correct and therefore the Field Marshal has no business to say the contrary, though the German Socialists, like all other Germans, do not wish to accept any internal reforms from enemy hands."

Other newspapers so far do not comment on Hindenburg's warning, except respectfull yto suggest that it might have contained more information about the military situation, which is the subject of the whole nation's profound anxieties. The German people are far more interested in the continual changes in the war map than in the Field Marshal's inflated phraseology regarding the wickedness of the enemy.

What the independent Socialists have to say on the subject will probably remain unknown, as their journals have not been allowed to go out of Germany. I understand that one independent newspaper in Saxony has almost been suppressed for suggesting in a jocular way a few days ago that Hindenburg ought to return his Iron Cross with Golden Rays until better days. Another newspaper has been prosecuted for calling Hindenburg "Marshal Rückwärts," (Marshal Backwards,) in contrast with the popular name given to Blucher, the only other man who ever owned a golden rays Iron Cross, who was styled "Marshal Vorwärts."

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—The whole political situation in German is becoming daily more serious. As for the people generally, Hindenburg's manifesto is an excellent confirmation of all that I have recently telegraphed regarding this point.

The German correspondent of the Amsterdam Tyd, who is often well informed regarding affairs in the fatherland, states that important circles in Germany are even seriously considering the possibility of an armistice when Winter comes along. The Tageliche Rundschad confesses to deep shame that things should have gone so far that Hindenburg should have to issue a manifesto to teach Germans their duty, and the Weser Zeitung laments the evil effect caused by the publication of military commiqués.

Other papers, such as the Hamburg Nachrichten, think the best policy is to bring sweeping charges, mainly against England, for savagery toward German prisoners. Even at a time, the Nachrichten says, when Germany permitted subjects of enemy States to go about freely in the fatherland Germans in the Entente countries had all been shut up like wild animals.

All sides, indeed, show how severely shaken Germany is, and the possibilities of a serious political crisis increase daily.

HINDENBURG CHEERS AUSTRIA.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—Vienna newspapers received here continue to print interviews with Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff, the latest appearing in the Neues Wiener Journal and Az Est. Hindenburg, whose vigor and fresh appearance are emphasized by the correspondents, said:

"The fact that the Austrian offensive on the Piave was not carried out must not be taken too tragically. It certainly was not for a lack of courage, for the troops fought splendidly. The reason must be sought in the flooding of the Piave."

The Field Marshal said that he looked with confidence to Albania and Macedonia, "while in Palestine the English had not succeeded with numerous bloody attacks in shaking the resistance of the Turks." He also referred to the British expeditions in Persia and on the Murman coast of Russia, and then said:

"The decisive battle for the Central Powers, however, is taking place on the western front, where the Central Powers are standing shoulder to shoulder in a defensive battle.

"It is true we are suffering grievously from the war, but we shall emerge stronger from it. We shall return home after the glorious battle to assured peaceful labor and then pluck the fruit of our fight.

"To this end the watchword is 'Persevere.' We may look serenely into the future."

General Ludendorff is quoted as saying:

"The war has now been concentrated upon French territory, and by the enormous utilization of troops and materials has assumed proportions which have thrown everything hitherto accomplished in the shade. We thus far have stood the bitter struggle honorably and are confident that we will continue to do so.

"We may all be thankful that the war in the forms it has assumed has on the whole been spared us in our home territory. The armies of the Central Powers are safeguarding their homes."

HALT SENATE ACTION UPON SLACKER RAIDS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Opponents of Senator Smoot's resolution for an investigation by the Senate Military Affairs Committee of the slacker roundup in New York this week today succeeded in preventing action on it by the Senate, after a long and stormy debate.

When the discussion ended and the resolution went to the calendar Senator Smoot announced he would call it up again as soon as he had an opportunity, probably on Monday. At that time it is the purpose of those opposing the use of soldiers and sailors in the roundup to press the resolution to a vote. Those hostile to the Smoot resolution are prepared to force its reference to the Judiciary Committee if they can, believing that this committee will quietly put it to sleep.

Responsibility for the New York roundup was laid at the door of Attorney General Gregory and Provost Marshal General Crowder today by Senator Johnson of California. The Senator read an excerpt from the official instructions issued by Charles De Woody, District Superintendent for New York, of the Department of Justice, telling those engaged in the roundup that it was being conducted "at the direction of the Attorney General and with the approval of the Provost Marshal General."

Senator Johnson expects to present to the Senate further excerpts from the official instructions. He said today the instructions were mailed to him in a plain envelope, upon which his name and address were inscribed in printed characters. No note of explanation accompanied the instructions, nor was there anything about the communication to show by whom it had been sent. It was postmarked New York City.

Afraid to Sign Their Names.

"Whoever sent these instructions to me was afraid to sign his name, was even afraid that his handwriting might be traced, and so he printed my name and address," said Senator Johnson. "That shows you what degree of fear this proceeding has created. In addition I obtained further evidence today of the fear that has been thrown into the hearts of American citizens by the methods employed. I got sixty letters in today's mail from men who had been subjected to humiliation and indignity, commending my speech of protest in the Senate. More than two-thirds of these were unsigned. Many of the writers frankly confessed they were afraid to sign their names."

The instructions were printed on two pages, both headed "Department of Justice, New York, Aug. 29, 1918." They were marked, "Confidential," and were signed, "Charles De Woody, District Superintendent."

Under the heading, "General Instructions (A)" the document said:

"It should be the firm determination of every worker co-operating in this canvass that no man within the metropolitan district of New York shall avoid being requested to show his registration certificate, and by affirmative evidence establish his age and his status under the Selective Service act. There should be an equally firm determination in the mind of every worker that courteous treatment and the least possible annoyance and embarrassment be accorded to every person of whom inquiry is made during this work."

Today's Senate discussion began immediately after Senator Smoot called up his resolution for action. Senator Jones, New Mexico, moved that it be referred to the Judiciary Committee. Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, which the resolution named to conduct the inquiry, declared he would resent as an insult to his committee the reference of the resolution to any other committee.

Savor of "Prussianism."

Senator Chamberlain then launched into fiery denunciation of certain activities of the Department of Justice, declaring its methods in the slacker raids savored of "Prussianism."

"If the department would devote more time to catching pro-Germans and spies it would not have so much time to round up whole communities of innocent persons as draft evaders," said Senator Chamberlain.

Senator Calder read into the record a letter from a citizen of New York, whose name he withheld. This man, his letter said, was dining in Brooklyn with a woman on Tuesday night. Suddenly he was seized by the military police and taken to the Seventy-fourth Precinct police station. He was taken from there to the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, and was kept standing, with several hundred others, from 10 P. M. until 5 A. M.

Senator Thomas of Colorado interrupted to say that, "assuming the contents of the letter to be true, I think the author of this drive ought to be dismissed from the public service, and I do not hesitate to say so."

Senator Calder thanked Senator Thomas for his comment and said he hoped "that those responsible for this roundup will be punished."

Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, who saw part of the round-up, gave the Senate the results of this personal observation.

"Russia," said Senator Fall of New Mexico, "is the only place in the world where such actions could take place under civil rule."

Senator Fall's colleague, Senator Jones, declared he believed the people of New York would not approve the attitude taken by Senator Calder.

"We ought to hold up the hands of the people who are doing this work," said Senator Jones. "I think they are most patriotic. I believe all true Americans are willing to stand up and be counted, to make some sacrifices of personal comfort, if by so doing they can help their Government capture the slackers.

"I am informed that 1,800 slackers were caught, and 14,000 persons who were subject to the draft, as well as several hundred deserters from the army. I think the results justify the means."

"Can the Senator tell us by what authority of law this raid was made?" asked Senator Brandegee of Connecticut.

"There is no law to cover it," said Senator Chamberlain. "The fact is, men are afraid, in this wartime, to assert their rights and stand up for their liberties. That's why so many innocent men were dragged off to jail. In other times men would have resented arrest, and would have killed those who tried to seize them without authority of law."

Resuming his defense of the raid, begun yesterday, Senator Poindexter, Washington, declared every American ought to be willing to undergo considerable discomfort to help weed out "the skulkers."

As the resolution went to the Senate calendar, a majority vote will be required to call it up if any Senator objects to its consideration.

URGES EXEMPTION CLAIMS.

Crowder Wants Employers and Dependents to File Them.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Because many men of the new draft ages are expected to refuse to claim exemption regardless of the need for them at home, the Provost Marshal General's office suggested today that employers or interested dependents should not fail to file formal claims in such cases.

It is pointed out that the form of the questionnaire purposely leaves the exemption claim open to be filed by others than the registrant himself. General Crowder's staff feels that failure to present legitimate exemption claims for sentimental reasons will almost certainly work hardship and industrial [illegible] since the local boards are now [illegible] top speed. General failure to have such claims filed, it is said, also will serve to slow up the work.

New regulations to govern exemption under the occupational section of the law have been published in special pamphlet form to aid boards and registrants in providing the wider application.

Secretary Baker has ordered the chief of each bureau in the War Department to replace by Dec. 31 all men within the draft ages who would be classified in Class 1 now assigned to duty in Washington or in War Department branches elsewhere with men physically disqualified for general military service.

The positions thus vacated may also be filled by men in the deferred classes where such deferment has been granted on the grounds of dependency. Exceptions are to be made only where incumbents are indispensable and where men not within the draft age are not available to take their places.

The chiefs of bureaus are instructed to report to the Adjutant General on Dec. 31 the number and names of all men within the draft age then employed in their bureaus and to furnish a certificate that each of these is indispensable and that others not within the draft age are not available to replace them.

Sugar Ration Is Retained.

CASUALTIES AMONG THE NEW YORK UNITS

LIEUTENANT FRANK A. MELLY, wounded, is in Company H, 16th Infantry. He is a graduate of the 1917 Plattsburg Camp and has been in France for more than a year. His home is in North Tarrytown.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM F. FREEHOF, wounded, was commissioned from the ranks in 1916 and served more than twelve years with the regulars. He is in the 38th Infantry, the unit recently decorated for gallantry in action at Château-Thierry. In a letter to his relatives in St. Louis Captain Freehof wrote that his company lost six junior officers in one week.

SERGT. CHARLES QUEELE, a nephew of Griffith Kearns, of 836 Eleventh Avenue, Long Island City, has been wounded. He is a veteran of regulars and is in Company K, 23d Infantry.

CORP. CHARLES M. FRECKER, wounded, is a brother of George Frecker of 52 Third Street, Long Island City. Frecker is in the machine gun company [illegible] Infantry.

CORP. JOHN A. CRONIN, a sharpshooter of the 165th Infantry, Rainbow Division, has been killed. A letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cronin of 457 South Third Avenue, Mount Vernon, said that he was killed when leading his squad in the face of the enemy fire. The letter telling of the boy's bravery was from Major A. E. Anderson of the Second Battalion of the 165th Infantry. Cronin was 20 years old and was a student at Fordham University when he enlisted in the old 69th Regiment.

EDWARD CONNELLY, wounded, is 23 years old and is in Company F, 47th Infantry. His home is at 278 Court Street, Brooklyn. John Connelly, his brother, is in the same company and was recently listed as wounded.

JAMES W. HOLLY, a brother of Mrs. Charlotte Pouria of 154 Palisade Avenue, Yonkers, has been wounded. He is one of three brothers in the regular army. He is in the 38th Infantry.

PHILIP FINGER, reported missing, is a brother of David Finger of 118 West First Street, Mount Vernon. He is an Englishman, and went to France with the Thirtieth Infantry.

JOSEPH CERIONE, wounded, is only 16 years old. He is an Italian and lived in Vineland, N. J., when he enlisted in the regular army a few months ago.

FREDERICK C. HERBISON has been killed in action in Flanders. Word of his death reached his wife in Mount Vernon yesterday. Herbison was fighting with the 108th Infantry, New York Division.

EDWARD J. LANGE, who was in the 105th Machine Gun Battalion, has died of wounds. He was a son of [illegible] Lange of 11 Woodside Avenue, Winfield, L. I. [illegible] the army in France.

HERBERT T. MURPHY of the Machine Gun Company of the 107th Infantry, New York Division, has been wounded. He is one of three brothers in that division. Miss Mary Murphy of Hempstead, L. I., is his sister.

JOHN A. BACCUS, who went to France with the Headquarters Company of the 38th Infantry, has been killed in action. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Baccus of 3,814 University Place, Woodhaven, L. I.

CORPORAL GEORGE B. GRUBER, wounded, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gruber of 5 Folsom Place, Brooklyn. He is in Company G, 165th Infantry, and is a veteran of the 23d Regiment of Brooklyn.

GEORGE HOBLITZEL, a son of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Hoblitzel of 81 Bowers Street, Jersey City, has been killed. He was a member of Company L, 107th Infantry.

DEWEY BREHAUT, severely wounded, is a brother of Mrs. Mabel Dunning of 2,769 Marion Avenue, the Bronx. Brehaut was a moving picture director when he enlisted in the regular army in 1917. He is in the 7th Field Artillery.

Porto Rico Ends Wheatless Days.

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 6.—The Porto Rican Food Commission has issued an order abolishing wheatless and meatless days, effective this week. It is estimated that through the wheatless days 80,000 barrels of flour have been saved since last December.

WILSON SAVES UPTON MAN.

Decides Officer at Kerner's Trial Was Not Legally Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Private William A. Kerner, Company G, 306th Infantry, who was sentenced by a court-martial at Camp Upton, New York, to be shot because he refused to obey an order to drill, has been ordered released and restored to duty by President Wilson.

The President's indorsement on the record, made public today, merely says the sentence is disapproved because the Assistant Judge Advocate General who officiated at the trial was not legally appointed.

RABBIS PREACH ON PRESIDENT'S NOTE

Theme of Wilson's Message on Zionist Movement Discussed in New Year Services Here.

DR. SCHULMAN OPPOSES IT

Declares the Jews' Destiny Is Not to be an Oriental Nation in Palestine—Convention Call Likely.

The celebration of the Jewish New Year, which began yesterday, was marked in local synagogues and in the homes of associated organizations, by religious services last evening. Special care was taken of soldiers and sailors of the Jewish faith, and in some of the synagogues the preachers extended greetings to the men in uniform, and extolled their patriotic services to the country.

Rabbi Ephraim Frisch of the New Synagogue, Broadway and Seventy-sixth Street, who sent a telegram to President Wilson on Thursday, opposing the President's endorsement of the proposed homeland for the Jews in Palestine, in a New Year's message to Rabbi Wise announced yesterday the names of those serving on a committee which is taking steps to oppose Jewish nationalism in the establishment of a Jewish State.

The committee that will take up active opposition is as follows: Rabbi David Philipson of Cincinnati, Chairman; Rabbi Henry Berkowitz, Philadelphia; Rabbi Edward N. Calisch, Richmond, Va.; Rabbi Henry Cohen, Galveston, Tex.; Rabbi Leo M. Franklin, Detroit, Mich.; Rabbi Samuel W. Goldenson, Pittsburgh, Penn.; Rabbi Louis Grossman, Cincinnati; Rabbi William Rosenau, Baltimore; Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber, Chicago; Rabbi Samuel Schulman, New York; Rabbi Abram Simon, Washington, D. C., and Rabbi Louis Wolsey, Cleveland.

Rabbi Samuel Schulman, who represents New York on the Committee of Rabbis Opposed to Zionism, touched upon the President's indorsement of the Zionist movement in his New Year's Eve sermon preached in Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. He said:

"Our destiny is not to become a little Oriental people in Palestine. It is rather to persist in the world as Israel, Priest of God; to witness as God's congregation in the whole world, and, therefore, to be a part of every nation, abdicating political nationality as a thing too little."

> Hon. Woodrow Wilson, President,
> White House, Washington, D. C.:
>
> The Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America deeply appreciates your letterof New Year greeting and commendation of our Zionist aspirations. Zionism means a homeland for Jews only that thereby all the nations of the earth shall be blessed as so oft declared in the Law and the Prophets. Among its ideals are an ultimate Court of Appeal whose personnel shall represent ethics, law, and science, (Deuteronomy); an international Court of Arbitration, (Isaiah, Micah); a Fount of Knowledge of the Lord, or righteousness, justice,and compassion that shall fill earth as waters cover the sea, (Isaiah, Jeremiah.) In view of the great war, these ideals alone will appeal to you. Spread over earth, as Scripture pictures, the Jews in all lands will be loyal citizens of those lands, just as Catholics are loyal citizens in all lands, though the Vatican is their religious centre.
>
> DR. H. PEREIRA MENDES,
> Chairman Executive Committee.
> Dr. B. DRACHMAN, President;
> ALBERT LUCAS, Secretary.

Individual rabbis, all of whom are former Presidents of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, sent the following telegram to President Wilson:

> We, American rabbis, on the eve of our New Year holiday, wish to express to you our profound gratification at your expression of satisfaction in the progress of the Zionist movement and to reaffirm the full and perfect allegiance to American citizenship of the hundreds of thousands of Zionists in this country. We, as past Presidents of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, repudiate the telegram of remonstrance sent to you yesterday by a New York rabbi in the name of a nonexistent organization.
>
> BERNARD DRACHMAN,
> H. PEREIRA MENDES,
> D. DE SOLA POL.

Sigmund Elsner of Red Bank and New York has made a contribution of $50,000 to the Zionist organization of America in recognition of the indorsement of the movement by President Wilson. Another member of the organization is said to have given $12,500 to the cause.

San Carlo Company Sings "Faust."

For perhaps the first time here since Gounod's centenary, recently celebrated abroad, "Faust" was produced on Broadway last night by the San Carlo singers at the Shubert Theatre. It was their seventh opera in five days, with two more to fill out the week, "Romeo and Juliet" this afternoon, and "Trovatore" this evening.

Marcella Craft, heard last season as Marguerite, again gave to Gounod's heroine some interesting touches—even some exaggerations—of the modern European stage, and was not the less interesting for that. Marta Melis was a comely youth as Siebel. Mr. Agostini sang Faust, the performance being in Italian, and they were both an artistic Valentine, sung by Antola, and a Mephistopheles, by De Biasi.

Engagements.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mortimer Seaver of New York announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Dorothy Seaver, to Lieutenant Barnes Compton, C. A., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Key Compton of Roland Park, Baltimore, Md. Lieutenant Compton is now stationed at Fort Hancock. He is a grandson of the late Congressman Barnes Compton of Maryland.

The engagement has been announced of Mrs. Mary A. Heydecker of 4 West Ninetieth Street to Burnet T. Wenman, a member of the New York Cotton Exchange. Mrs. Heydecker is a widow, and this will be her third marriage. Her first husband was John Russell Crane, and Montgomery Crane, her son by this marriage, has just entered the Lehigh University unit Engineers' School. The marriage will take place next month.

First 1918 Cotton Bale for Soldiers.

The first bale of cotton of the 1918 crop stands in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria. It is the gift of Samuel Newburger of the New York Cotton Exchange to the fund for Soldiers' smokes, and will be auctioned tonight on the roof garden of the hotel, where a party is to be given for the benefit of this work. Many well known opera singers and theatrical stars have volunteered their services.

PROHIBITION PASSES IN SENATE, 45 TO 6

Agricultural Bill with "Dry" Rider Effective June 30, 1919, Likely to Go to Conference.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The twelve-million-dollar Emergency Agricultural Appropriation bill, with its rider for national prohibition from next July 1 until the American armies are demobilized after the end of the war, was passed tonight by the Senate without a roll call.

Before final passage of the measure the Senate voted, 45 to 6, to retain the prohibition rider. A final effort to postpone the effective date of the "dry" legislation to Dec. 30, 1919, was defeated.

The bill now goes to the House and, because of the many amendments inserted by the Senate, it undoubtedly will be sent to conference. Prohibition leaders, however, expect the House to agree to the "dry" rider, so that there will be no possibility of changes being made by the Senate and House managers.

Senators voting against retaining the "dry" legislation in the bill were Brandegee of Connecticut, Gerry of Rhode Island, Phelan of California, Pomerene of Ohio, Ransdell of Louisiana, and Underwood of Alabama, while it was announced that many members absent and paired favored the amendment.

As returned to the House, the prohibition clause—a compromise effected last week by Senate "wet" and "dry" leaders—would stop the sale of all intoxicating beverages on June 30 next except for export, medicinal, sacramental, and other than beverage purposes, and would prohibit the manufacture after May 1, 1919.

Conferees Friendly to It.

The compromise prohibition "rider" was regarded as the most important provision of the agricultural bill. It is a substitute for that of Representative Randall of California, adopted by the House last May, prohibiting use of the bill's appropriations until the President should exercise his authority in the food control law to stop the manufacture of beer and wine as well as whisky during the war, as a food conservation measure.

After passage of the bill these Senate conferees—all regarded friendly to the legislation—were appointed: Gore of Oklahoma, Smith of South Carolina, Smith of Georgia, Kenyon of Iowa, and France of Maryland.

Prohibition advocates believe the bill soon will go to the President, who participated in conferences culminating in the Senate compromise for extension of the effective date.

FAIL TO INDORSE 'DRY' LAW.

Life Underwriters Defeat Resolution at Convention Here.

An attempt to commit the National Association of Life Underwriters to an indorsement of country-wide prohibition for the period of the war failed yesterday at the closing session of the annual convention held at the Hotel Astor. John K. Voshell of Baltimore, Chairman of the Executive Committee, read among other resolutions one to the effect that the association favored the conservation of food, fuel, and man power for the winning of the war, and that as the production of alcoholic liquors during the period of the conflict was a nonessential, its manufacture should be stopped.

Members who had started to applaud the first part of the resolution quickly dropped their demonstration of approval when the prohibition clause was disclosed. Instantly half a dozen men were on their feet asking Chairman Voshell for an explanation of the bone-dry section of the general conservation resolution.

Two or three members took the floor to denounce the joker in the resolution, while some of the prohibition members asked for recognition. It was finally decided that as the Executive Committee had refused to take action on the conservation resolution, the latter could not properly be acted upon on the floor of the convention.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, John K. Voshell, Baltimore; Vice Presidents, A. O. Eliason, St. Paul, Minn; Warren C. Flynn, St. Louis, Mo., and P. A. Wintemute, Calgary, Canada; Secretary, Hiram M. Taylor, Wheeling, W. Va., and Treasurer, William M. Wood, Pittsburgh, Penn.

FORTY-FIVE

YOUR only interest in the statement that we have been serving the public for forty-five years lies in the fact that we are that much better qualified to serve you today.

You may profit in the year 1918 from the lessons we've been learning since 1873. It isn't easy to put your finger on the one thing that has enabled a business to grow steadily for nearly half a century. But we don't believe we would be far wrong if we summed up our whole business lifetime with the one word—Service. Overworked word that, but the only one adequate for our purpose.

And once you find out its true meaning and apply it with the best that's in you—there isn't a finer word in all Mr. Webster's dictionary.

THE RAILROAD CONTRACT.

Director General McADOO makes a startling admission and presents a terrible indictment against the Interstate Commerce Commission in his statement accompanying the publication of the Government's contract with the railroads. Justifying in the interests of the railroads themselves the Government's assumption of control and operation, Mr. McADOO says that "adverse conditions, coupled "with the extreme difficulty of bor-"rowing money, would probably have "resulted in the failure of some of "the most important railroad com-"panies in the country to meet their "obligations under private manage-"ment," if, as a war measure, the Government had not assumed control. There could not be a plainer confession that the railroads were starved under Government regulation. The first move under Federal control was to raise rates; wages were also raised. The privilege of raising rates, although demonstrably and imperatively necessary, was denied to private control, or most grudgingly and stingily granted here and there.

That is the reason, there is and can be no other, why the railroads were confronted with "the extreme difficulty of borrowing money," why some of the systems may have been within measurable distance of financial difficulty. The industries of the country were extraordinarily prosperous while the railroads were under private control. Industrial concerns made large profits. The railroads, subject to rapidly increasing cost of all their supplies, to higher taxes, and to largely augmented wage payments sanctioned and compelled by the Government, were yet unable to increase their charges in any reasonable proportion to increase of costs, because of the niggardly policy of the Interstate Commerce Commission. If Federal control averted financial difficulties for the railroads, then the Government merely cured evils which it had itself produced.

That is a chapter of history, something out of the past, though most important in the interest of truth and sound teaching. Interest now centres upon the fortunes of the railroads under Federal control, and after. The Executive Advisory Committee of the railroads is urged by its own appointed advisers to accept the contract Mr. McADOO offers. It has been made more acceptable by modifications and concessions granted in response to protests of the railroads and their stockholders. The most important point of difference was that relating to the right of the railroads to appeal to the courts for compensation for impairment of good-will and standing and loss of business due to diversion of traffic from some lines to others by the Director General under his authority for unified operation of all the lines. The effect of this diversion has been to deprive some systems of an important volume of traffic which was formerly their own. It is a grave question how, if at all, this diverted traffic may be recovered when Federal control ends. Old methods of competitive endeavor, by lower rates or by special advantages, have been abolished by law; there remain only the arts of persuasion and good luck, which are a rather insecure reliance for the roads and their stockholders.

The Director General denies the right of court appeal for special compensation under this head upon grounds which, we think, the railroads will be safe in accepting. He declares, and the Department of Justice in a written opinion sustains him, that the just compensation to be paid to the railroads "was intended to embrace "all of the damages which the own-"ers have a right to claim," including the loss of good-will and business due to diversion of traffic. Having secured the averment of the Director General and of the Department of Justice that this was the intent of the act providing for Federal control, the railroads and their stockholders may have pretty firm feeling of confidence that those among them who suffer from diversion of traffic will be compensated. This official interpretation of the act becomes, in effect, a condition of the contract.

Some of the other matters as to which the Director General denies the contention of the railroads are important, notably that which allows him to spend the money of the roads for improvements and extensions purely for war use, betterments which will be of no particular advantage to the railroads after the period of Federal control. This point might with justice have been conceded, but in the judgment of the Law and Executive Committee of the railroads themselves it evidently would not justify the refusal to accept the contract. In time of war the Government becomes the judge of its own needs, and the exigencies of war demand that it should have and exercise all the power needed for pressing the war to a victorious conclusion. That is the spirit of the country, it guides and prompts the people to make willing sacrifices in that great interest, and in that spirit the railroad systems of the United States will accept the conditions of Government control and operation of their lines.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE SENATOR.

Governor KEYES of New Hampshire, who appears to have won the Republican nomination for Senator to succeed Mr. HOLLIS, has shown the best of judgment in appointing as ad interim Senator, in the place of the late Dr. GALLINGER, Mr. IRVING W. DREW of Lancaster. Mr. DREW is one of the most eminent lawyers of New Hampshire and would be eminent anywhere by the force of his intellect and character. It seems as though New Hampshire bred a sort of luminous and penetrating mind, and in Mr. DREW one sees a successor of the old great race, JEREMIAH MASON, WEBSTER, JEREMIAH SMITH, ISAAC PARKER, and the rest, too often borrowed by Massachusetts.

Of fine cultivation and public spirit, Mr. DREW loves his profession, and he accepts the appointment, he says, "as it is for a very short time." He has been a member of the State Senate, was one of the chief figures of the last New Hampshire Constitutional Convention, and has done quietly a deal of hard work for the war. He used to be a Democrat, but Mr. BRYAN cured him in 1896.

It is particularly fortunate that New Hampshire, for some time Senatorless, is now to have at Washington so strong and variously competent a Senator. Mr. HOLLIS, the Democratic Senator, whose term ends in March, is in Paris and is going to stay there, unless imperatively called home. Mr. DREW will be New Hampshire in the Senate, and he is equal to the task.

The Democratic candidate for Mr. HOLLIS's term is former Representative in Congress REED. The nomination of candidates for Dr. GALLINGER's term will be made next week. Mr. MOSES, sometime Minister to Greece, a candidate for the Hollis succession, withdrew after the death of Dr. GALLINGER. To his withdrawal, doubtless, Governor KEYES, the popular "War" Governor, over former Governor SPAULDING owes his victory. Our old favorite, Mr. ROSECRANS W. PILLSBURY, who always runs, ran not too good a third. He should now try for the Hollis stakes.

THE BOLSHEVIKI CONFESS.

The account which the Bolsheviki give of the murder of Captain CROMIE and the sack of the British Embassy in Petrograd is, of course, not to be accepted at its face value. The Bolsheviki have devoted a great amount of energy for many months to proving that their word cannot be taken on any subject. It is hardly to be expected that they will be any more truthful on this one than they have been on others. But so far as they admit the crime it is safe enough to believe them.

They say, then, that they invaded the embassy, British territory, on Aug. 31 for the purpose of robbery, and on this point they can be believed. They say that they insulted the British flag, and that Captain CROMIE, as was his duty, resisted them, killing or wounding certain of the would-be robbers and invaders. This, of course, is not their language; their language is that they entered and "searched" the British Embassy, killed CROMIE in the course of a fight, arrested forty persons, and "found" weapons and documents, which they took away. But this is precisely the same thing, only phrased differently. The admission is precisely as we have stated it.

The American Embassy, wherever it may be, is by law American territory, and he who invades it invades America as truly as if he landed an army in New York. Some months ago a mob threatened the American Embassy in Petrograd. Ambassador FRANCIS appeared on the steps with a revolver in his hand, warned the mob that when they stepped foot within the embassy they would be on American territory, and told them that he would shoot the first who touched that territory. That particular mob was not official, not sent by the "Government," and did not have nerve; it melted away.

What is true of American Embassies and American territory is true of British Embassies and British territory. The part Captain CROMIE played was the part Ambassador FRANCIS was ready to play. The invasion of the embassy was an invasion of Great Britain and an attack on the British flag, which he gallantly resisted. Its purpose was robbery, the robbery of the British Government's documents, but he would have been justified in resisting if the attack had been made for any other purpose whatever.

The embassy was sacred under all the rules of international law. It is true that the Bolsheviki care little for law or Governments; but this particular rule of international law was not laid down by lawyers or by diplomats. It was laid down in the dawn of civilization, between savage tribes the memory of which has perished from the earth. No one knows how far back in the beginning of things it was that some wandering band of barbarians first came to a comprehension of the fact that, unless ambassadors were held sacred, not even war itself could be carried on successfully. The barbarian ancestors of the Bolsheviki acted on that discovery thousands of years ago. It is as nearly primal a thing as is to be found in any code of laws.

Civilized countries, accepting this ancient law from a past so distant, have put it into their codes and defined rules for it, but that is all they have done. It is a law the general acceptance of which antedates "Thou shalt not steal," and far antedates "Thou shalt do no murder." Savages have violated it, but have always come back to it again because they found that it was not a mere matter of morality, but a practical necessity for doing business, even the business of war.

According to the Bolsheviki, they have violated this law; they have not held an embassy sacred; they have invaded and robbed it. Their statement that their brigands were "met by shots" is true, we hope; for the moment they set foot in that embassy they were reduced to the status of simple bandits, and might legally be shot by the defenders. It was, in fact, the duty of the defenders to resent the outrage instantly; and the heroic sailor who faced that dastardly band, knowing that his death was certain, was not one to be slow or slack in the performance of his duty to defend his country's insulted flag. His record is enough to tell us that. Of course he fired first, and Great Britain has another slain hero to mourn over and be proud of.

We have not yet the other side of the story, the British version; we have no version except that of the Bolsheviki themselves. They have tried to make out as good a case for themselves as possible; and we do not need the British version. They have confessed an infamous crime; and they have demonstrated in their own story that it is not possible to treat them otherwise than as Great Britain proposes to treat them—as outlaws, who, when they are driven to flight from Russia, must find the whole world barred against them.

LORD READING TO AMERICAN SOLDIERS.

It was a new honor for Lord READING, a man of varied accomplishments and many experiences in a crowded career, to address American troops in the sound of the enemy's guns on the western front. He talked to them as an Ambassador with the approval of the United States and Great Britain, and it is significant that what he had to say is to be translated into French and distributed among the troops of France. Never, therefore, did a statesman in a great war have such an audience as Lord READING will be favored with.

It was not so much what the British Ambassador said on the field of Juvigny as his appearance there in a dual capacity—for he had a message from America—that distinguished the occasion. It is no longer possible to keep up formalities and make distinctions in the case of the statesmen of the Allies. They, like the rest of us, are enlisted for the war, all of us being comrades in the great adventure to save liberty and maintain civilization. Americans look upon Lord READING as one of themselves. Therefore it was not unseemly or singular that he should say to our veterans:

> I have come from America more recently than you and speak with my own knowledge, that the people of America are watching you with great pride and with great satisfaction. They realize all of the hardships and many of the sacrifices you are undergoing. They are ready to stand behind you. I shall take back to them the message from you, as I feel sure I rightly interpret your feelings, and I shall tell them to be of good cheer, that America is here, that you are taking a noble part and will so continue till victory is ours.

How our soldiers must have cheered when the Ambassador put their achievements in one terse, ringing sentence: "You have only to look at "the map to see what America is do-"ing." And they must have known that he spoke with as much feeling as sincerity when he told them what their presence had done "to encourage the British and French troops." "Liberty," he added in a fine phrase, "came nearer with every advancing movement of your troops."

The more use that is made of this human Englishman in the beneficent task of getting the two nations to understand each other and appreciate each other's sterling qualities, the better for their future relations in war or peace.

FOUR REPRESENTATIVES.

Of the New York Representatives in the Sixty-fourth and the Sixty-fifth Congress, renominated Tuesday for the Sixty-sixth, the Socialist MEYER LONDON of the Twelfth District has the unpleasant distinction of having voted for the McLemore resolution, did not vote, though present, on the Cooper amendment prohibiting American ships from carrying arms or ammunition, against the declaration of war, against conscription, against every measure of preparedness. Pretty near a perfect record for a perfect Majority Socialist.

WALTER M. CHANDLER, Republican, of the Nineteenth District, voted for the McLemore resolution and against conscription. ISAAC SIEGEL, Republican, of the Twentieth District, nominated this year by both parties, voted for the McLemore resolution and the Cooper amendment. He is the choice of both parties in the district, their bulwark against the Socialist candidate. His two bad votes will have to be forgiven. His record in the Sixty-fifth Congress has been straight. C. B. SMITH, Democrat, of the Forty-first District, voted for the McLemore resolution, against the increase of the navy, for the Cooper amendment. Most of the few offending New York Representatives have disappeared. In the present Congress only LONDON, CHANDLER, and SMITH have voted wrong on war measures, the first twice, the other two once.

THE LONGEST CONSTITUTION.

It is painful to abate an honest hope, but The New Orleans Times-Picayune is mistaken in assuming that the people of Louisiana will have the happiness next Fall of voting on "probably more amendments than any other State will have to vote on." To the Pelican folk only fourteen paltry amendments will be submitted; to the people of more fortunate New York nineteen. Honor to whom honor is due.

Our New Orleans contemporary, blind to the wisdom of the Legislature, disrespectfully asserts that the fourteen codicils to the State Constitution are concisely expressed in "be-"tween 10,000 and 12,000 words, are, "in the main, very verbose, and "cover trifling matters, hardly worth "while. This is the fault of our pres-"ent long and windy Constitution, "one of the faultiest in the country."

If the amendments are verbose and unnecessary, they are perfect amendments according to the approved theory and practice of our best Constitution-tinkerers. If the existing Louisiana Constitution be "much the "longest in the Union, five times as "long as those of some States," it is the nonpareil of Constitutions, and interminable amendment can but paint the lily and make perfection superperfect.

A Constitution should contain all the latest wrinkles in government, as much controversial matter as it will hold; and, being jocosely called "the fundamental law," should be packed with what old-fashioned lawmakers were content to provide by statute. In particular, if a statute, unsupported by public opinion, is found hard to enforce or not enforceable, stick it into the Constitution!

Doubtless it was the Louisiana joy in a long-winded Constitution that drove the Louisiana Legislature into ratifying the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution, too brief a document. So fatten it with "a police regulation."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Excellent Name for a Good Ship.

In the days "before the war"—in what we are apt to think were better days, though they were days filled with delusions and ignorances and negligences of which the horrors and tragedies of these days are the direct and natural consequences—most of us had seen the name of the Piave River in school geographies and a history book or two, but few of us could have said more about it than that it was somewhere in Northern Italy, and the majority of us had quite forgotten its existence. Today, over at Kearny, which is in New Jersey, a fine new ship will be launched, and as it starts down the ways it will be christened by an Italian, and the name given to it will be the name of that same river.

What changes the war has effected in the mental content of the average American mind is well illustrated by the fact that now it knows just where the Piave is and the great event that happened on its banks, while the uncertainty is as to the position and claim to fame of the nearby town. Not only has our knowledge broadened out till it includes all such parts of the world as the war has touched—which means the greater part of it—but we have arrived at a new appreciation—and depreciation—of faraway lands and peoples.

Hence is it that the inhabitants of every American town with a German name have become restless under the affliction and are trying to get rid of it, but there is nobody in the country who is not glad that the fine new American ship is to bear an Italian name—who is not still more glad that in this as in many other ways we can honor a nation which has rendered and still is rendering heroic service in the cause that has commanded, not too soon, all we can give of life and wealth.

In the diplomatic sense, our relations with Italy have always been friendly, but the friendship now is deeper and warmer. It is in no perfunctory way that we sympathize with the reverses she has encountered, that we rejoice in the triumph into which those reverses were turned. We know that she, like France and England, is fighting for us as well as with us, and is a worthy member of the Holy Alliance that so much better deserves that title than did its predecessor.

England Has Them on a List.

Not vindictiveness, but something infinitely better—the thought of justice to be done—is what must have given to multitudes of people a keen thrill of satisfaction when they read yesterday that the British Government had recorded, and was keeping carefully for future reference and action, the names of those submarine commanders who have obeyed their master's will with more than ordinary success. For the more than ordinary success means with more than ordinary brutality and murderousness. Some of the men who have attained this evil eminence are already dead, but others are either still at their work or are in different services ashore, and it is these whom the British have on their list—these whom they purpose to hold to personal responsibility for their crimes, whether opportunity for doing that comes while the war is in progress or if it is delayed until the day of imposed peace arrives.

To what extent this plan will be carried out remains for future determination. Theoretically, the entire responsibility for the execution of its orders, as for their issuance, rests on the German Government, and its military and naval agents can plead in defense that it was their duty to do without question whatever they were told to do by their superiors. Even theoretically, however, there is a limit to this duty, and the naval man, like the soldier, cannot lawfully be compelled to violate the laws of war. If he does it, he incurs a personal guilt and properly can be punished for his criminal deeds.

For him to refuse obedience for any reason whatever is, indeed, extremely dangerous, and is likely to cost him his life, but that fact does not give him immunity from other penalties if circumstances arise that make their infliction possible. It is more than presumable, too, that some of the German submarine commanders would be unable to produce explicit orders for many of the atrocities they have committed. They have exceeded orders in the exercise of their own discretion, though it is not probable at all that they ever did, or could, go beyond the spirit of orders based, as theirs were, on the irremovable Teutonic belief that "frightfulness" is an effective, and therefore a legitimate, method of cowing and terrorizing the foes of Germany.

A Failure Not at All Discouraging.

That the first aerial mail trip between New York and Chicago was a failure, at least to the extent that it was not made at the intended and expected speed, proves nothing as to the practicality of such a service between these two points, or between others still further apart. There were like failures at the beginning of the same sort of service between New York and Washington, but as soon as familiarity with the route was gained the daily journeys were made with a regularity comparing favorably with that attained by the best railway trains.

The possibilities of accident and delay are, of course, more numerous on a long flight than on a short one. There is nothing impracticable, however, in the newer undertaking, and the aviators will not be long in learning the landmarks of the longer route, and its metereological peculiarities.

The pity is that such work was not undertaken years ago. There has long existed, or at any rate certainly there could have been created, a sufficient demand for expedition of important mails to make the innovation self-sustaining, or even profitable, and if a large number of fliers had thus been trained, they would have been of inestimable value in hastening the end of the war. But the United States gave the airplane to the world, and then allowed half a dozen nations to get far ahead in the utilization of her invention. For this grave mistake our soldiers at the front pay a heavy penalty every day.

Germany as a "Great Power."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In various discussions of war settlements reference is regularly made by Germans to those considerations to which Germany is entitled because she is a "great power."

A man who can crack a safe, or rob a bank, or loot a railroad, or start a riot, or debauch legislators is a great power, too. Society is after these powerful evildoers to put them where their powers will do no harm. After Germany's demonstration of her criminal use of great power there will be no negotiations with her over colonies or anything else, but she will come in for a good, stiff sentence instead. No criminal at the bar ever pleads with the Judge on the ground that he is a "great power." Let the American nation get that point clear.

ANY MOTHER

To the Soldier Who Has No "Folks."

Who entered lonely on this White Crusade
That yet shall free the world and lift mankind
Above the abattoir the Beast has made—
Though you be very high of heart and brave,
There must be times when human ties you crave.

Dear soldier boy! The day you marched away
The streets were crowded with a cheering throng,
But none of them your folks; and who can say
But that thought stabbed you as you trudged along,
And eager eyes that seemed to fill all space
Passed over you in search of some loved face?

You never hurry when the mail arrives;
You know there isn't any mail for you;
And though the Red Cross for your comfort strives,
Its gifts are not marked "Mother," "Dad," or "Sue";
But you just whistle as you clean your gun,
And ask no sympathy from any one.

God keep you clean—make you His holy knight,
And guide your feet in safety past all snares,
Thus fitting you to battle for the right.
It matters little to you no one cares?
Ah, soldier boy! Your welfare is most dear
To many million mother hearts back here!

This thought take into battle when you go—
Hold it through wounds, through capture, even death:
You are the reason we shall never know
The blasting curse of an invader's breath!
May He whose Spirit walks with all brave men
Shield you, and bring you safely home again.

KITCHIN DEFENDS NEW INCOME TAXES

BIG JUMP IN EARNINGS

Some Men Have Increased Their Incomes 10,000 Per Cent.—Will Discuss Profits Tax Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Debate opened today in the House on the $8,000,000,000 War Revenue bill, which will occupy the attention of that body for the next ten days, with indications that it will be passed substantially unamended. The Finance Committee, at the same time, opened hearings on the bill so as to be prepared to report it to the Senate within the next three weeks.

There seems to be a general agreement on the general policies of taxation as laid down in the bill now before the House, but opposition exists, not only in the House but most strongly in the Senate, to the House committee scheme for war profits and excess profits corporation taxes. With Chairman Claude Kitchin of the Ways and Means Committee opposing any amendments, it is not probable that the House will attempt to modify those two sections which are not acceptable to Secretary McAdoo or the majority in the Senate. That changes will be made by the Senate Finance Committee and finally agreed to by the House in the conference report is the opinion existing tonight.

Chairman Kitchin opened the debate, explaining the general principles of the bill and declaring it absolutely necessary to raise this vast amount by taxation. He ventured the opinion that the United States could collect as much in taxes as England, France, and Germany combined if necessary.

Mr. Kitchin did not today discuss the two main controversial sections. He spoke at great length on the principles of taxation adopted, and asserted that the committee had tried to place the burden of taxation on those who could best afford to pay by reason of increased incomes due to the war. The excess profits and corporation income taxes will be considered tomorrow, when Mr. Kitchin will conclude his speech and be followed by Representative H. W. Fordney, the ranking Republican member of the committee.

How Incomes Have Jumped.

In his effort to justify the imposition of high income tax rates Mr. Kitchin quoted from Treasury reports to show how the incomes of many had mounted in the last year compared with 1914, in some instances 10,000 per cent. A striking instance of the swollen incomes cited by Mr. Kitchin was that of three officers of a concern manufacturing pipes. The combined incomes of these individuals in 1914 was $21,211, while their combined incomes in 1917 reached the figures $2,169,372.

The income of one of these, the President of the concern, in 1914 was $8,341, while his income in 1917 was $729,000. The superintendent of this same concern had an income of $4,347 before the war, and in 1917 he had an income of $725,000, while the Treasurer's income in 1914 of $8,523 jumped to $715,372 in 1917.

"Didn't this concern have a secretary?" asked some one.

"Oh, yes; I forgot to say that the treasurer was also secretary of the firm," replied Mr. Kitchin.

Representative Kitchin said that 90 per cent. of the business men of the country will pay the income taxes.

In reply to a question by Representative Moore of Pennsylvania, Mr. Kitchin justified the apparent slightly reduced rate in the higher "brackets" compared with those in the lower brackets. He said that out of a $1,000,000 income the Government would take in taxes $647,000 and leave to the individual $353,000.

"Why leave such a wide margin between the taxes and the income on the big incomes?" asked Mr. Moore.

"This was done for three reasons," replied Mr. Kitchin. "First, men of such large incomes do not expend them in living, &c.; they use them in expanding business. Second, if the taxes are made too high, men of these incomes would invest in tax-free bonds, and, in the third place, they would dump their securities on the markets if the taxes were made oppressive and unstabilize the market. I think that the graduations are equitable and will work out satisfactorily."

Mr. Kitchin said while he was unable to give the number of men who enjoyed incomes of from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, he knew that the number had increased in 1917 over 1916.

"I want to show you by some figures I got from the Treasury Department how the incomes increased during the war period," added Mr. Kitchin. "These figures might develop a spirit of Bolshevikism in the United States if I give them."

Then the Chairman read a long list showing first the incomes in 1914 and the incomes of the same individuals in 1917. He, of course, did not give the names of the individuals, as such names cannot be revealed under the law.

Mr. Kitchin said there had been a greater increase in incomes between $7,500 and $100,000 in 1917 over 1916 than in increases in incomes between $4,000 and $5,000.

$7,525	$70,275
6,028	112,119
3,560	115,123
8,918	102,000
6,756	245,375
11,000	295,000
16,000	352,000
63,000	565,000
80,000	582,000
78,000	546,000
73,000	502,000
8,341	729,000
4,347	725,000
8,523	715,372

"I would make a guess that probably most of these individuals making enormous increases in profits, a large majority of them at least, had directly or indirectly Government contracts," said Mr. Kitchin.

President Not Exempt.

"The committee felt that the Constitution did not mean that the salaries of the President and Judges, could be exempt from taxation," said Mr. Kitchin, discussing the tax on the President's salary. "If it is not unconstitutional I think every man in Congress will agree with me that no man, whether he be President or a Judge of the Supreme Court, should be exempt of paying his share toward carrying on this war."

"Is it a fact that every Judge would be barred by reason of personal interest from passing on the question of the constitutionality of the application of the income tax section to a Judge's salary?" asked Representative Hardy of Texas.

"I expect that's so," replied Mr. Kitchin, "but we will be safe until after the war, as I doubt if any one will make such a contest while the war is in progress. I believe we have prepared a bill which will be supported by the Treasury Department and the Administration," continued Mr. Kitchin, "and I believe these taxes, enormous as they are, will be paid cheerfully by loyal citizens. They know these taxes are levied to support our brave soldiers fighting on the bloody fields of France. I believe the achievements of the American soldiers will forever challenge the admiration of mankind and make the century ring with the glory of our nation.

"Even greater admiration, in my judgment, will be aroused over the miracle whereby this nation changed from a peace footing to a war footing in a few short months, and mobilized her tremendous resources, sent her armies across seas, created a merchant marine, and marshalled the genius of her people in behalf of the preservation of liberty. These accomplishments will be the marvel of the age.

"I call attention to the necessity for raising $8,000,000,000 at this time. The wisdom of trying to produce this sum has been questioned. Many wise business men have urged that we should issue more bonds.

"We will have issued in the near future about $26,000,000,000 of bonds, and on these there will be a fixed interest charge of about $1,105,000,000 every year. If we had not proposed legislation increasing our revenues, we would have had to raise more than $30,000,000,000 in bonds, with a fixed interest charge greatly increased.

"The time may come," continued Mr. Kitchin, "when we may have to levy consumption taxes upon such articles as tea, coffee, cocoa, and similar articles, but we must postpone this policy as long as possible.

"I want every taxpayer to know that every tax he pays is going into the Treasury to help save the existence of this Government and to preserve his liberties and business. The man who is not willing to contribute to such a cause is not a patriot. It is not enough for a man to say he is willing to do his bit. The time has come when every man must be willing to do his all."

MAIL ORDER MEN PROTEST.

Believe Tax on Them Is Unjust—Brokers Also Seek Relief.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Hearings on the new war revenue bill began today before the Senate Finance Committee, to continue until the measure is passed by the House. Few representatives of business interests appeared and their criticism was directed at minor points rather than the big revenue-producing income and war excess provisions.

The first protest came from representatives of mail order houses, for which the bill proposes a 1 per cent. tax on gross sales over $100,000 for business years ending June 30. G. H. Elswald, President of the Williams Stores Company of New York, objected particularly to the retroactive feature and also asserted the tax singles out the mail order business, exempting sales made by telegraph or telephone. His arguments were indorsed by William R. Heath, Buffalo soap manufacturer.

The special tax, ranging from $100 to $250 a year, on stock brokers, was opposed by John Hinkley, representative of the Baltimore Stock Exchange. Brokers, he said, already are heavily taxed and unable to pass along the special tax to their clients.

George M. O Lowes of the Chicago Exchange advocated a flat tax on brokers instead of on the value of their memberships. Thomas P. Maloney, representing the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York, arranged to send a representative with a brief for all of the New York exchanges and the Boston Exchange next week. Thomas F. Cunningham of New Orleans suggested that the brokers' taxes be based on the commodities in which they deal.

So few witnesses appeared that the committee adjourned until tomorrow after an hour's session.

SHIPS GAS IN QUANTITY.

Gen. Sibert Says Our Men Have the Best Type of Mask.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—That mustard and phosgene gases are being manufactured here in quantity and shipped abroad and that at last all of the American soldiers are being equipped with American gas masks, a type to which he referred as "better than that produced by any other country," were statements made today by Major Gen. William L. Sibert in his first interview with the newspaper correspondents since he was appointed Director of Chemical Warfare by President Wilson.

General Sibert was at the front with the first American Overseas Forces and had the opportunity to study the needs of the situation. His assertions today indicated that in his opinion the United States had reached a point in the matter of gas production and defense where it would meet the emergency and provide the means for striking a tremendous blow against the Germans.

Many of the details of the plans which America is carrying out were withheld, and General Sibert would not discuss the reports that a new gas was being perfected which would prove more effective than any now in use further than to say that no such gas was being manufactured at present. But he made it plain that America already was doing a big work in both gas offense and defense. He was asked if he was prepared to say that American troops were being supplied with "sufficient gas for offensive," and he replied:

Of reports that the Germans had invented a new gas which would totally destroy the sight, General Sibert said he had no knowledge of such a gas.

"We know all the gases that the Germans have used in the field," he said, "and we knew all those substances before. Mustard gas has been known for twenty-five or thirty years. Of course phosgene is well known. Practically all of these substances have been discovered in the laboratory and have never gone any further. The 'duds,' the shells that do not explode, are always picked up. We have a laboratory in France, and, of course, the other allies have laboratories, and we will know within a day or two after any engagement what kind of gas they use."

General Sibert said that all of the nations in the war were using mustard and phosgene gases, and that among the allied nations there was a strong tendency toward standardization in their manufacture. He reviewed briefly the development of the use of gas in the war and said:

"To this country the problem of manufacturing gas in quantity was a difficult one. We had all the necessary raw materials, but our lack of general manufacture of chemicals has necessitated the development from the ground up of the machinery that must be had. However, our people have met the situation and we are actually producing gas in quantity and are actually shipping gas shells abroad.

"Our two main divisions are the offensive and defensive divisions—that is, our two main production divisions. The defensive divisions comprise the manufacture of gas masks, protective suits, dugout blankets, alarm apparatus, &c.

"The American gas mask, I am quite sure, is better than that produced by any other country, and we are continually improving it. So our people can rest assured that our soldiers in France have at least as good a protection as those of any other nation."

General Sibert was asked if the defensive measures adopted had resulted in a decrease in casualties in spite of the increased use of gases by the Germans.

"Oh, yes, yes," he replied. "Though one of the great advantages of the use of gas is to force the adversary into a gas mask, which reduces his fighting capacity very much. He cannot fight so effectively, as it reduces his vigor because the resistance to breathing is increased in order to pull the air through the chemicals in the canister of the gas mask. The mask will protect against all gases, especially if you sit down and do not exercise too much."

In reply to a question General Sibert said that the mustard gas "does not go through any of the gas masks."

"Does it go through the clothing?" he was asked.

"It will go through the clothes eventually. We will not discuss that question now."

"Is the quantity production of masks, &c., sufficient?"

"We are meeting the needs of the army."

"Yes."

"There has been no shortage?"

"In the beginning a good many of our masks were bought in England, but we are now meeting the demands of the army, both men and horses."

The reports that the allied troops were unable to enter Lens early in the week because the Germans had "seeped" the town in gas were discussed with General Sibert, and he admitted that these reports might well have been founded on fact.

"Isn't that a new manceuvre on the part of the enemy?" he was asked.

"No, not new; that is, it has been new this year," he said.

"Since Spring?"

"Since Spring; that is, mustard gas. Mustard gas lasts a long time; it takes days to get away, and if an area is soaked with it it is not safe for troops to go in for several days without their gas masks on, and if they stay in any length of time the stuff will go through the clothing and burn the flesh."

FIND PEACE DRIVE IS HOPELESS NOW.

Hintze and Burian Decide at Vienna Conference to Defer New Move.

TRUST ARMY'S RESISTANCE

End Will Come in the West as in the East, German Foreign Minister Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The Daily Express reports from Amsterdam that Dr. Lederer, the Vienna correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, telegraphs that in the course of a conference in Vienna between Admiral von Hintze and Count Burian, the two statesmen agreed that in the present circumstances no action toward peace could have the slightest success. Their view was that after the present Entente offensive was over the enemy must admit they cannot count on breaking through the German front and that the battle to break Germany would last for years.

They consider it possible after the offensive to form a "constellation" which would view positive peace work favorably.

It is not quite clear what is meant by forming a "constellation," but the report, which could only be printed by request, proves that the only question with which the two Foreign Secretaries busied themselves was of the possibility of bringing about peace.

The Augsburg Abendpost, which represents the views of the Bavarian Government, lays stress on Germany's "most terrible losses," which, it says, are far worse than those of the Entente because Germany's casualties all occur among the German people, whereas the Allies are a group of many nations, European, African, white and black.

"Germany must admit," the journal adds, "that England has some reason to view our action with distrust. Our rejection of Lord Haldane's fleet agreement must have forced the English to the belief that we really planned war against them. The present war can only end by compromise and renunciation. Our enemies will only believe in our sincerity if we give up big words after each of our military successes. Let us not forget that the Central Powers are in the position of a besieged fortress and therefore the war cannot be won by purely military means. Our submarine hopes have been disappointed. We have muddled things with America, saying that America might send soldiers but not armies.

"All this shows we must bow to conciliation. This is our only salvation. Germany's Government must take the initiative in such a peace of renunciation without further ado."

Hintze Exhorts Waiting for Peace.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—"Intellectual weapons play in this as influential and important a rôle as the battlefield and diplomacy," said Admiral von Hintze, the German Foreign Minister, in a speech in Vienna in which he was emphasizing the importance of everything being done to bring about an honorable peace. The speech was delivered at a reception of members of the Diplomatic Corps and the journalists.

Complimenting the press for worthily buoying the spirits of the people, Admiral von Hintze said:

"This task is not always a light one, especially when the news does not tell of triumphs and laurels, when we often have to renounce these and for strategical reasons undertake a tactical withdrawal of troops.

"One knows from the experience of this war how short the duration of such fluctuations is—for example, Galicia and East Prussia. But they teach us that we have no reason to lose hope. When one wants to pluck roses one also must expect to be pricked by thorns.

"Just as peace came in the east, it will come in the west. Though perhaps it will take some time, we need not be discouraged by the enemy's cries of victory. Among our enemies the press works under State control, and the newspaper writer failing to represent the Government view is simply sent to prison.

PREDICT PEACE DRIVE LATER.

Hint of Overtures on the Basis of a League of Nations.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 6.—The Frankfurter Zeitung reports that Admiral von Hintze, the German Foreign Minister, remained in Vienna until this evening, but denies reports in the Austrian press that the Polish question made progress in the direction of an Austro-Polish settlement. "In reality," says the paper, "the Polish question was not discussed and no definite result was expected without the presence of the Chancellor."

The paper, however, says that an agreement was reached that the Teutonic war aims should be strictly defensive, but no political act is expected. It adds that the situation must first be cleared up in order to be able to speak with the enemy.

Then, however, according to a most authoritative source, "a political offensive will begin which will oblige the enemy Governments to remove the mask and to speak openly to their own people and say whether they really desire a league based on democratic principles. It will then be seen that it is no longer necessary to wage war on the Central Powers, and the Entente will no longer dare refuse passports to labor leaders who wish them."

FINDS HOME FRONT BENT.

German Paper Misrepresentations Were Made as to Drive.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—The Cologne Gazette says that the Entente offensive has been successful in one direction: "It momentarily buckled our home front, in that it bent the psychic power of resistance of the German people." That came about because the Germans were "wholly unprepared for the sudden change in the fortune of war." For that the paper blames the way in which the military happenings are reported.

"The manner in which the powerful German offensive was described by the Wolff Bureau," it complains, "roused the impression that the enemy could not recover again from our blows, that the hostile reserves were exhausted, and that it only required a last effort to give the enemy the coup de grace. Thus the successful offensives of the French and of the English came upon our people as a surprise."

But, it is also pointed out, the same policy of deception was followed with regard to economic matters, as, for instance, in connection with the provision of food supplies by Rumania and Ukrainia. Little wonder, it adds, that deception and mistrust have been produced and service rendered to the enemy. This false policy also has been pursued, it goes on, with reference to the general conditions in the enemy countries, regarding which it says:

"It may comfort many of us to know that the enemy fares as badly as we do. We must, however, renounce this pleasure. Despite all the successes of our U-boats, it is probable that we shall not succeed at an early period in reducing our enemies' imports so that food and other necessaries of life will become as scarce with them as they are with us."

SECOND GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES IS A TRIUMPH FOR CUBS

RIVAL COACHERS IN FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—The bitterness brewing between the Chicago Cubs and the Boston Red Sox came to a climax in the second game of the world's series at Comiskey Park this afternoon when Charley Wagner and Otto Knabe, the rival coachers of the two clubs, held a vivid revival of the Donnybrook Fair on the Cubs' bench. After the second inning, when the clawing Cubs bunched four hits and three runs on Bullet Joe Bush, which resulted in Chicago's 3 to 1 triumph, the smoldering Chicago-Boston fire flared into a conflagration.

The Chicago and Boston players had been nagging at one another from the start of the game, and Wagner, on the third base coaching line, had resorted to a sizzling brand of conversation to rattle Tyler. Knabe appointed himself Tyler's protector, and his retaliation of Wagner's remarks resulted in Knabe inviting Wagner into the Cub dugout.

In a jiffy the two coaches were locked in an embrace which was not one of affection. Like a bird of prey Knabe perched on top of Wagner as he fell to the ground. They were merrily mauling each other all over the dugout when Claude Hendrix and other Cub players pulled Knabe off his tormentor.

When the Boston players saw Wagner disappear into the Chicago trench and fail to return they immediately organized a vigilante committee and the posse proceeded toward the enemy's ramparts.

Crowd Eager for Fight.

The ball game was forgotten. The crowd of 20,040 spectators ceased shouting cheers of approval over the Cubs' great rally and turned their attention to the hostilities on the Chicago bench.

By the time the Boston convoy had reached the Cub lounging room Wagner emerged all mussed up and excited. From the appearance of his uniform it was plain that Knabe had brushed up the floor of the dugout with Wagner, for his uniform looked as if he had been repairing a flivver. The umpires volunteered soothing words to the combatants and a truce was declared.

In turning the tables on the Red Sox today and bringing the series to a deadlock, Lefty Tyler not only pitched the Cubs to victory but also whacked in two of Chicago's trio of runs. He got himself into plenty of trouble but also was able to twirl out of the deep excavations which threatened disaster. Up to the ninth inning Tyler held the Red Sox runless.

In the last inning the Boston Club started a rally which would have knocked all the fight out of a twirler less game than Lefty.

Amos Strunk opened the ninth with a terrific triple which bruised the fence in front of the right field bleachers. George Whiteman followed this with another three-base smash to deep centre and Strunk crossed the plate with Boston's first run.

Jack McInnis, who drove in the winning run Thursday, was up, and the hilarity of the Chicago fans began to lessen. It was a happy moment when McInnis bounced a hopper at Tyler, who threw him out at first, holding Whiteman at third. Scott was patient and got a pass.

Dubuc Wastes Efforts.

Manager Barrow then tried to surprise Tyler by sending Jean Dubuc, the former Detroit pitcher, in as pinch hitter for Jackie Fred Thomas. Every one had expected that Babe Ruth would be the choice if any extra hitters were wanted by the Boston club. But after Ruth's experience against the other Cub southpaw, Jim Vaughn, on Thursday, it was decided to steer the slugger clear of left-handers.

Dubuc had the greatest chance of his baseball career at this moment, for he is a hard hitter, and even a long fly would have brought in another run. He was overanxious to hammer the ball out of the park and fouled off half a dozen twisters before the count on him was two strikes and three balls. Umpire Hildebrand tossed out a brand new white ball that Dubuc could see plainly, but after making a tremendous effort to connect he struck out.

There was still another long chance for Boston for Wallie Schang, a seasoned world's series performer, was the next batsman. Schang failed almost as miserably as Dubuc and popped a high fly to Hollocher for the final out.

Today's game was not so well played as the first contest, but, although the work in the field was more ragged, the battle bubbled over with excitement most of the time. The intense rivalry and bitterness which has sprung up between the players was taken up by the spectators, and they began to give demonstrations against the Boston performers resembling the outbreak against Heinie Zimmerman of the Giants when he played here last season.

Shean Interferes With Catcher.

Both clubs showed signs of cracking in the first inning, and it was to be seen early in the fray that the game was not going to be one of technical perfection like the first tilt. The Red Sox started to rough it when they first came to the bat. After Harry Hooper, the first batsman to face Tyler, had reached first on a pass, Dave Shean struck out, and as he whiffed, Hooper started to steal second. Shean deliberately forced himself in Bill Killifer's way and spoiled his throw to second to cut off Hooper. Umpire Hildebrand saw this bit of foul tactics and immediately called out Hooper on account of Shean's interference.

Flack nailed Bush for a single to left in the Cubs' initial effort of the afternoon and Hollocher forced him at second. Mann hoisted a fly to centre and Strunk, his vision mixed up with the sunlight, muffed the ball. Hollocher was not quick enough to take advantage of this break. Strunk recovered the ball in time to force the Cubs' shortstop at second. Paskert sent an easy fly volplaning into Whiteman's hands for the third out.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Boston	2	1	1	.500
Chicago	2	1	1	.500

Tyler had his most perilous moments in the second inning, when it looked as if the Red Sox had him on the run. After Whiteman walked McInnis dribbled a tantalizing little grounder down along the first base line, and Killifer, Merkle and Tyler all assembled quickly to investigate. The ball was unmolested as the trio of players looked at it in wonderment, and when the convention adjourned, McInnis had been credited with a hit, and the play was laid on the table by the Chicago delegates under unfinished business.

Scott's sacrifice sent the two runners along a station, and Thomas hit a hard grounder to Pick, who threw out Whiteman at the plate, which was a rather fortunate occurrence for Mr. Tyler. Agnew skied to Flack for the third out.

Now comes Chicago's inning of joy. The Cubs struck while the iron was hot, Tyler himself delivering the blow which played the biggest part in the Cubs' merrymaking. Fred Merkle got a pass from Bush and Pick hammered a grounder down toward third which looked like an easy chance for Thomas. Thomas seemed to have the ball completely surrounded and ready to surrender, when all of a sudden it flickered through his hands and rolled out toward left field. Pick was credited with a hit for the tap, although it was a pretty scratchy kind of a hit. However, it was a lucky break for Chicago.

Deal did not do much for the cause when he hoisted a pop fly to Shean. Bill Killifer, who has been looked upon as one of the stars of this series, and who is living up to this prediction, then struck a blow which started Bullet Joe tottering to his downfall. A wicked smash bounded off Killifer's bat to right field for two bases, and it was only the great fielding of Hooper which prevented it from being a triple. Merkle crossed the plate on the big bang and Pick raced around to third.

Tyler Responds Nobly.

Here was a situation that was apple pie for a cool, tried veteran like Tyler. He soaked as pretty a single as you ever looked at down through the infield and it rolled out of every one's reach into the uninhabited wilds of centre field.

As Pick and Killifer both scampered over the plate the Chicago crowd burst into the first bit of genuine enthusiasm which has greeted any play in this wartime world's series. Long and loud the cheers rang out for Tyler. The bleacherites, who have not had a single chance to turn loose all the enthusiasm they have been saving up, began to thunder and it was many minutes before Bush recovered from the shock of Tyler's rap and the burst of excitement which followed it.

Max Flack caught Bush while he was still upset, rolled a grounder to first, and beat McInnis in a wild chase for the bag. Bill Klem was doing the umpiring at first, and when he called Flack safe on a mighty close decision, McInnis rushed at the umpire and made many wild efforts to change the umpire's mind. McInnis has been playing ball long enough to know that while an umpire may have a mind, it is not within the bounds of human reason for him to ever change it.

Flack made a bold attempt to steal second, but Agnew threw him out and ended the tumultuous round. Bush pulled himself together after that staggering experience and the Cubs could not score again.

Hollocher Gets Triple.

Young Charley Hollocher lived up to all that has been said for him in the sixth by crashing a steaming triple to right field. He was not able to harvest it into a run, as he was thrown out at the plate when Paskert rolled a grasser to Scott.

Bush's wildness in the eighth gave the Cubs another fine chance, but the Boston pitcher closed up tight as a miser's heart before any damage was done. Pick walked in the eighth and Deal sacrificed. Bush was pretty careful of Killifer this time and gave him a pass. The Red Sox flinger then settled down to his work and Tyler and Flack both went out by the sky route.

Boston, game to the very end, started to make trouble for Tyler in the eighth. Schang was sent in to bat for Agnew and punched a hit through Hollocher. After Bush had flied out to Paskert, Harry Hooper's bat got hold of one of Tyler's shoots and he belted it on its singing way to right field.

Schang made a flying trip to second, and started out for third as if the Sheriff was at his heels. Flack, after a quick recovery of the ball, made the most gorgeous peg of the series when he fired the ball over to Deal and Schang was tagged out as he tumbled into third in a cloud of dust and gleaming spikes. That throw took much of the starch out of Boston for the time, and Shean was an easy out, Merkle to Tyler.

The Cubs' chances took a big jump this afternoon, and they feel that if they can subdue the shoots of Carl Mays or Sam Jones tomorrow they will be able to take care of themselves in Boston next week, for big Hippo Vaughn is just aching to get back at the Red Sox and get revenge for his downfall in the opening game.

Dode Paskert pulled up lame when he raced to first in the sixth inning. His ailment is a charley horse, which is baseball chatter for a knotted tendon. This is an old ailment of Paskert's and may affect his playing in the coming games.

Chicago is slowly waking up to the baseball carnival, and fans flocked to the cheaper seats at today's game. While the attendance was slightly larger than at the opening game, the receipts were not as large, only $29,997 being taken in at the box offices. Around the hotels tonight there is much world's series gossip, and a world's series gathering of normal proportions is looked for at the Saturday game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Mays probably will be selected to face the Cubs in the third game of the world's series tomorrow, according to Manager Barrow of the Red Sox tonight.

"Today's game was a tough one to lose, especially as we nearly broke it up in the ninth inning," Barrow said. "The Cubs had the better of the breaks, I think, and piled up a lead in the second inning too great for us to overcome. I do not mean to take credit away from Tyler, who pitched great ball, and deserved to win. I expect to start Mays tomorrow, and hope to make it two and one."

"The task of the Cubs is now easier," said Manager Mitchell, of the Chicago club. "We are on even terms with Boston. The Cubs certainly recovered their batting eye, and they are confident of retaining it. Tyler pitched a wonderful game, and never was in danger, except in the ninth, when he grooved them over for Strunk and Whiteman. Those two triples saved Boston from a shutout. I expect to send Hendrix against the Red Sox tomorrow."

TYLER BIG FACTOR IN SECOND CONTEST

Play-by-Play Story of Game Brings Out Strength of Cub Pitcher.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Despite the return of good baseball weather today, the crowd for the second game of the world's series between Boston's Red Sox and Chicago's Cubs was almost as slow in assembling as yesterday's. Half an hour before game time the increased attendance was visible in only a few sections of the bleachers and stands.

FIRST INNING.—Red Sox—Tyler sent up two wide ones to Hooper. The next was also a ball. Tyler then put over one strike but on the fifth pitch sent Hooper to first. On the hit and run Shean fanned. He interfered with Killifer's throw and Hildebrand called Hooper out at second. This gave a double play, Killifer to Hollocher. Strunk popped to Deal. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FIRST INNING.—Cubs—Flack began for the Cubs with a line single to left. Hollocher forced Flack, Bush to Scott, the batsman taking first on a fielder's choice. Strunk purposely dropped Hann's fly to short centre and then forced Hollocher by throwing the ball to Shean at second. Mann reached first on the play. Paskert signaled the hit and run but fouled. He then flied to Whiteman. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.—Red Sox—Tyler again had trouble finding the corners and walked Whiteman on four pitched balls. McInnis dropped a bunt between Killifer and Tyler, and when the fielders collided beat Killifer's throw for a hit, Whiteman going to second. Scott sacrificed, Killifer to Pick, the latter covering first. Thomas hit to Pick and Whiteman was out at the plate, Pick to Killifer. McInnis went to third and Thomas to first on the fielder's choice. Agnew put up a tall foul which Flack caught on the line. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING. — Cubs — Merkle walked. Pick dumped a swinging bunt down the third base line and when Thomas missed the ball the official scorers called it a hit. Merkle went to second. Deal popped to Shean. Killifer hit to right for two bases. Merkle scored and Pick went to third. This was the first extra base hit of the series. Tyler singled over second, scoring Pick and Killifer. He tried to reach second on the throw to the plate but was out, Strunk to Agnew to Scott. Flack hit to McIntnis and beat the first baseman to the bag. McInnis made no attempt to throw to Bush, who was running to cover first. On Flack's attempt to steal Agnew threw high and wide, but the runner overslid the bag and Shean tagged him. Flack was credited with a stolen base, Agnew with an assist and Shean with an out. THREE RUNS. FOUR HITS. NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.—Red Sox—Bush walked. Hooper forced him, Tyler to Hollocher. The shortstop made a fine stop of a wild throw. Hooper took first on a fielder's choice. Shean forced Hooper, Hollocher to Pick, and reached first when the second baseman's throw filtered through Merkle. Strunk fouled to Killifer. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING. — Cubs — Hollocher grounded out, Shean to McInnis. Mann bunted hard to McInnis and was out at first. Paskert popped to Shean. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING.—Red Sox—Whiteman popped to Pick. McInnis out, Hollocher to Merkle. Pick made a one-hand running stop of Scott's grounder and threw him out at first. The play cut off what looked like a sure hit. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING.—Cubs—Whiteman dropped Merkle's fly close to the line and the batsman reached second on the error. Pick bunted to Bush, whose quick throw to Thomas got Merkle at third. Pick took first on a fielder's choice. On the hit and run Deal flied to Hooper, but Pick managed to beat the throw back to first. Pick was out stealing, on the first pitch to Killifer, Agnew to Scott. NO RUNS. NO HITS. ONE ERROR.

FIFTH INNING.—Red Sox—Thomas out, Deal to Merkle. Agnew skied to Flack. Deal missed Bush's grounder and the latter reached first on the error. Flack ran to deep right for Hooper's fly. NO RUNS. NO HITS. ONE ERROR.

FIFTH INNING.—Cubs—Thomas threw out Killifer at first. Tyler fouled to Agnew near third base. Flack out. Bush to McInnis. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING.—Red Sox—Shean drove a hit to centre, Paskert holding it to a single by a one-handed stop. Strunk forced Shean, Pick to Hollocher and reached first on a fielder's choice. Whiteman hit into a double play, Hollocher to Pick to Merkle. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING.—Cubs — Hollocher tripled down the first base line, the ball rolling to the far corner of the field. The Boston infield came in on the grass. Mann out, Scott to McInnis, Hollocher holding third. Hollocher tried to score on Paskert's grounder to short but was out, Scott to Agnew, Paskert reaching first. On the hit and run, Merkle singled to centre, sending Paskert to third. With Pick up, Merkle started a double steal. Agnew's throw to Scott turned him back and he was out when the shortstop threw to McInnis. NO RUNS. TWO HITS. NO ERROR.

SEVENTH INNING.—Red Sox—McInnis hit to Hollocher in deep short and Merkle grabbed a wide throw and tagged Stuffy on the line. Scott flied to Paskert. Thomas flied to Flack. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNING.—Cubs—The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," bringing the crowd to its feet. Pick walked. Deal sacrificed to McInnis, unassisted, Pick taking second. Killifer walked. Tyler flied to Whiteman. Flack lofted to Strunk. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING.—Red Sox—Schang batted for Agnew. He singled off Hollocher's glove. Bush flied to Paskert. Hooper singled to right and Flack's great throw to Deal cut down Schang at third. Shean out, Merkle to Tyler. NO RUNS. TWO HITS. NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING. — Cubs — Schang now catching for Boston. Shean caught Hollocher's fly back of first. Mann flied to Whiteman. Paskert fouled to Schang. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—There were slightly more fans at the second game of the world's series here today than on opening day, but still the attendance was many thousand under that of last year. The figures on today's game follow:

WOMEN TO PLAY AT ARCOLA.

Last Golf Tourney of Season Expected to Draw Crowd.

Many of the leading feminine golfers are planning to take advantage of the Red Cross golf tournament, which is to be held for the women of the district at the Arcola Country Club course Sept. 18 and 19. It will be about the last chance that the women will have to compete in tournaments this season, and because of this fact the entry list should be large.

The tournament will be medal play handicap with thrift stamps as prizes on each day for the best gross and net scores. On the first day of the contests there will be putting and approaching competitions, and on the final day a mixed foursome is to be played for which the men who take part will be taxed 10 cents a stroke. All of the proceeds are to go to the Red Cross.

Pete Herman, the bantamweight champion, restrained himself for eight rounds last night in his bout with the Zulu Kid of Brooklyn at the Jersey City Baseball Park, and then had such a lead that he won easily. The Brooklyn boy was much too small and too crude in boxing to bother the champion, and the bout suffered thereby. Frankie Burns, the veteran Jersey City boxer, however, made up for the poor showing of the champion by hammering Battling Reddy of the east side all over the ring in another bout. Burns had much the better of this argument.

Grand Circuit Abandoned.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 6.—Rain today caused cancellation of the final day's Grand Circuit card at Charter Oak Park, which included the special match between Mabel Trask and Miss Harriet M. The horses were shipped to Syracuse, N. Y., which has a Grand Circuit meet next week.

HILDRETH COUPS GO AWRY AT BELMONT

The Belmont Park brand of racing continued yesterday and but little improvement is promised for today when the Lawrence Realization will be fought out by Johren, the best three-year-old in the country; Whippoorwill, one of the worst of that age, and Papp, which this season must be placed in the mediocre class. Of those entered for the two-year-old feature only Terentia and Questionnaire have shown quality to warrant their contesting for such an important stake as the Champagne.

Before the races yesterday the impression was general that the card was a picnic for S. C. Hildreth. He was expected to win three events with Poacher, Regal Lodge, and Deckmate, but Regal Lodge was the only one to succeed. Poacher, a 1 to 4 favorite in a three-horse field, bled and was beaten by Game Cock, while Deckmate got down in front only to be disqualified for an unnecessary foul committed by J. Bell, and which caused the rider to be set down for the meeting.

Deckmate came round his field at the turn in the fifth race at a mile, and had the race at his mercy after Peep Sight had made the early pace. Little Bell, however, was too anxious to get to the front, and on turning into the stretch crossed over too quickly, with the result that a large portion of the Preece family was strewn on the track. Quentin Preece was the first to fall as Mr. Specks stumbled, and the next moment Godfrey Preece, Jr., was sent sprawling as Broom Peddler fell. Deckmate went on to pass the judges five lengths in advance of J. L. Price's Oenone, which received the purse on the disqualification of Deckmate. Neither of the Preece boys was seriously hurt.

America's Peace Terms.

The attitude of the United States toward peace proposals, as stated by Senator Lewis, is presented in the September issue of CURRENT HISTORY MAGAZINE. The vast problems which peace will bring up are more clearly understood after a reading of this splendid article. Hoover, Kerensky, and Lloyd George are represented in this issue. 20 pages of international cartoons. At news stands, 25c a copy—$3.00 a year. —Advt.

Costly?

Just because beautiful landscapes are seen so often on the estates of the rich doesn't mean that they "run high." You'll be amazed to learn for how little money (with lots of taste and 60 years of knowing how) we can give a small suburban house-lot a setting that a millionaire would envy. Just ask us—and see. It's all a matter of clever planting of shrubs and trees—and now's the time to do it!

SECRETARY LANSING INDORSES SMITH

PRESIDENT MAY HELP, TOO

Through Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, the National Administration yesterday put its stamp of approval upon the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, who defeated William Church Osborn in the Democratic primaries for the nomination for Governor this Fall. Secretary Lansing sent Mr. Smith the following letter, warmly congratulating him upon his nomination and wishing him success at the coming election. This is the letter:

The Secretary of State,

Dear Mr. Smith:

As a Democrat of New York State I wish to offer to you my sincere congratulations upon your nomination as Governor. I do this with real satisfaction because I feel that your public career is convincing proof that you possess the true spirit of public service and are eminently fitted to fill with distinction and ability the office for which you have been chosen a candidate.

With my warm personal regards and best wishes for your success in the coming election believe me,

Very cordially yours,
ROBERT LANSING.

Hon. Alfred E. Smith.
New York City.

Friends of Mr. Smith said yesterday that when the campaign gets under way one or more members of President Wilson's Cabinet will come to New York and make speeches in favor of Smith. Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield and Secretary of the Treasury William McAdoo, both of whom live in New York, are expected to take the stump here for Mr. Smith sometime during the campaign. Whether other members of the Cabinet who do not live here will do likewise is not known, but Mr. Smith's friends are hopeful that before the election President Wilson will go even more explicitly on record as supporting the Democratic candidate. They said they hoped that a letter from the President would be forthcoming before many weeks.

Democratic leaders here predicted that right after the primaries the President would either send a letter indorsing Mr. Smith's candidacy or that one of his official family would do so, and it was expected that such a letter might come from Secretary McAdoo. It was pointed out yesterday that the National Administration is extremely anxious to have a Democratic victory in New York State this year, because of its effect upon the national situation two years hence. While Mr. Smith's friends are hopeful that the President will personally go on record as supporting him, others point out that this is unlikely, as New York is not the President's State, and that the letter from Secretary Lansing will have the same effect.

Democratic leaders were greatly elated over the Lansing letter, and predicted that it would have a telling effect upon the campaign. The keynote of the Democratic State campaign this year is to be the indorsement of the National Administration's war policies, and with the National Administration's indorsement of the Democratic candidate kept well to the foreground it is expected that the Democratic State ticket will obtain many votes from independents and Republicans. Mr. Smith, who has already opened his speaking campaign up-State, returned to the city last night, but would make no comment upon Secretary Lansing's letter other than to express pleasure that it had been received. No actual campaign plans have yet been formulated by the Democratic leaders, but this will be done when the Democratic State Committee meets at the Hotel Knickerbocker on Monday, Sept. 16. The present arrangement is for Mr. Smith to confine most of his campaigning up-State.

Members of the New York County Committee of the Democratic Party will meet at Tammany Hall Thursday night, Sept. 12, for organization. Officers will be elected and business concerning the committee's work in the campaign will be outlined.

Gov. Philipp Leads by 197 Votes.

GERMAN AIR RESERVES NOW SHOW WEAKENING

British Have Downed 137 Machines in a Week, and 665 Since Aug. 8.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The storm centre of British aerial activity throughout the week has been the sector from Lens to Péronne, the airmen materially assisting in piercing the immensely strong Hindenburg defenses and harassing the retreating enemy. German works of organization behind the Wotan line, including the vital railways radiating from Valenciennes, have been heavily bombed.

In the course of the week 166 tons of explosives were dropped in the battle area. Ninety-two enemy machines were destroyed and 45 disabled, while 75 British machines were reported as missing.

There are indications that the aerial reserves of the enemy are seriously depleted. A captured document lays stress on the necessity of saving to the uttermost all bits of airplanes which have crashed behind the German lines. The document says:

"In view of the situation as regards raw material, our airplane industry is more and more reduced to relying on the working up of instruments and motors saved from destroyed airplanes. The supply of material for the front has become essentially dependent upon the return of waste material from the front."

"By withdrawing much needed machines from wide sectors of her front, Germany still is able to effect aerial concentrations of considerable strength, but to defend adequately her long air frontier upon the Rhine and in Belgium, and at the same time maintain battle squadrons in effective strength, probably is now definitely beyond her power."

Much reconnoissance and photographic work was accomplished by the air force on Sept. 4 and a large number of artillery and contact patrols were carried out. The weight of bombs dropped by us during the day was twenty-three tons. No bombing was possible after dark.

Enemy machines, working in large formations on the German side of the lines, showed considerable activity. Twenty-five hostile machines were brought down by our airmen and no less than nine balloons were shot down in flames. In addition, fourteen hostile machines were driven down out of control. Sixteen of our machines are missing.

In the course of the weeks which have elapsed since the commencement of our offensive on Aug. 8, 465 enemy machines have been brought down by our airmen, their destruction being in every case clearly established. In addition, the total of enemy machines proved to have been driven down out of control, many of which must actually have crashed, is exactly 200.

The above figures are exclusive of the considerable number of enemy machines brought down by gunfire from the ground. Sixty-one German balloons have been set on fire. Nine hundred and eleven and one-half tons of bombs have been dropped by us.

Practically the whole of the air fighting has taken place on the enemy's side of the line. The number of our machines which have failed to return during this period is 262.

J. HAMPDEN DOUGHERTY DIES

Lawyer, Political Reformer, and Author Expires at 68 Years.

J. Hampden Dougherty, lawyer, political reformer, and author, of 116 Riverside Drive, died yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock, in the 69th year of his age.

Mr. Dougherty was born in New York City, a son of Charles H. and Elizabeth Taylor Dougherty. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York in 1871 and from the Columbia Law School in 1874, taking up the practice of law immediately. For several years he was President of the Law Department of the Brooklyn Institute; three times President of the Brooklyn League and nine years Director of the Merchants' Association of New York.

He served as Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity under Mayor Low and was Chairman of the special committee for legislative investigation into gas and electric light conditions in New York City in 1905. He took part in a number of political reform movements and instituted many taxpayers' actions in public interest, and in August, 1911, he vigorously attacked the so-called Gaynor charter before the City Club. He was the author of several books pertaining to legislative and constitutional topics. He was also well known as an orator, and appeared before many important meetings in behalf of various political reforms. He was independent in politics.

Mr. Dougherty was a member of both the City and State Bar Associations, American Bar Association, Academy of Political Science, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Civil Service Reform League, New York State Historical Association, and Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Gamma Delta fraternities. He was also a member of the Reform and the Hamilton Clubs.

Veils Very Much in Fashion.

Fashions have favored veils for women all Summer, and from present indications the vogue is to continue through the coming Fall and Winter seasons. Retailers all over the country are said to have ordered substantial supplies for Fall delivery, and further business is still being placed for the approaching season. Small sizes seem to be more or less neglected for the larger ones. Whether the veil be square or long and narrow, whether it have large or small dots, or flowered designs, ample proportions are invariably wanted. Black, blue and tan are spoken of as the leading colors.

French Calfskins Most Liked.

It is said that the popularity of cordoban, which has been in vogue for several years, is waning, and that French calfskin is coming to take its place. This has been particularly noticeable in the early Fall business in retail stores, and is most pronounced in men's shoes. The reason given for the ascendency of French calfskin over cordovan is that the former has all the wearing qualities of the latter, with none of the latter's disadvantages. Both black and tan shoes are selling, but black seems to be the most generally sought. Conservative lasts are usually preferred.

Phonograph Trade Grows Active.

Business in phonographs is becoming more active as the season develops. There has been during the last few weeks quite an increase of interest in the better quality machines. Some very expensive table cabinets in period styles have been sold. It is said that this type of cabinet, whether in period styles or in simple but artistic modern designs, is coming more and more into general favor. Though it is not anticipated that this table variety will displace the upright type of cabinet, there is every indication that it will figure prominently in the season's business.

Lace and Embroidery Wanted.

Local wholesale distributors report that there is a keen demand just now for laces and embroideries suitable for trimmings on dresses and fancy underwear for women. Supplies, however, are not over-plentiful, particularly in the most desired lines, and prices are strong with a tendency toward higher levels. It was pointed out that production at the mills has been seriously curtailed, partly on account of the scarcity of labor, but chiefly because of the fact that the mills have been quite heavily engaged on netting for the Government.

Advance Business in Dress Goods.

Whether they are warranted by facts or not, the reports that have been so long circulated through the dry goods trade concerning a shortage of woolen goods have certainly resulted in some active buying by members of the retail trade. In more cases than one the advance Fall business booked this season by jobbers of dress goods is the largest in the history of the business. So large was this buying in one case that the wholesaler involved has already reached last year's dollars and cents total in the matter of goods sold. With three very good months still ahead, he expects the books to show considerable "velvet" by the end of the year.

Dress Goods Buyers Mark Time.

Retail buyers of dress goods are marking time at the moment, with the result that house trading in this market is not very active. Not a great deal of interest is apparent, aside from the general scarcity of novelty cloakings and the increasing scarcity of velours and broadcloths. A good call for plaids for immediate delivery is reported. One of the big jobbers is doing a nice business with the South American trade in all-worsted black voiles, and within the last three months has disposed of at least 5,000 pieces of these goods for export. Indications are that no more of them will be manufactured for a long time to come.

Gray Goods Sales Limited.

Sales were again light in the local gray goods market yesterday, buyers showing little interest and sellers even less, if such a thing were possible. Much of the day was given over to looking for goods that were not to be found, which, naturally, did not swell the sales totals to any extent. Sheetings had another quiet day, and in the printcloths about the only interest shown was in second-hand holdings of such staple constructions as 39-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 64-60s. In the fine yarn goods what little buying interest there was centred on combed lawns.

Will Stop Tentative Bidding.

The reported action of the Quartermaster's Department in throwing out bids for 8.20-yard bandage cloths that were made on the basis of the revised price to be announced about Oct. 1 will, it was said here yesterday, doubtless put a stop to that kind of bidding in the period remaining before the new figures are given out. Bids of this kind have already come in for condemnation here, and the report that the Government did not intend to regard them seriously was well received by those who made the adverse comment. The question now to be answered is how the Government will go about getting the goods it wants, particularly the 8.20s, since the tentative bids have been thrown out and the quantities bid on thereby lessened substantially. To begin with, the bids put in covered scarcely more than a third of the quantity desired.

Cheese Cloth Bids Opened.

Bids for contracts to supply the Government with 31-inch 28-36 comber cheese cloth were opened yesterday afternoon in the local office of the Quartermaster's Department. Only seven bids were received, one of which was for the whole amount, 1,331,500 yards, asked for by the Government, the other six totaling not much more than half of the full quantity. Prices ranged from 14 to 16¼ cents, the high bid being the one which offered the total yardage wanted. It was made by J. P. Stevens & Co. and specified deliveries as asked for. There were two bids at 14 cents, one from Eldredge & Snyder offering 25,000 yards weekly for October and November, the other from the Paul Whitin Manufacturing Company offering 18,000 to 20,000 yards weekly for these two months. The latter company offered to double its offering if deliveries would be accepted through December at the same price.

Jobbers' Committee May Meet.

The committee named at the recent meeting of the dry goods wholesalers in this city to make recommendations regarding the prices at which the jobbers should sell goods on which the Government has set maximum mill prices, has enough material in hand now to warrant calling a meeting, and it is said here that this action may be taken in the near future. One of the problems the committee will face will be getting its figures ready for recommendation to the War Industries Board before the Price-Fixing Committee of that organization makes new prices in keeping with the belief that mill quotations should be adjusted quarterly. As matters stand now, the jobbers' committee has less than four weeks in which to work out its prices, new mill quotations being scheduled, under the quarterly idea, for Oct. 1.

HYLAN ASKS BARUCH'S AID.

Wants War Board to Release Materials for New School Buildings.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to Bernard Baruch, Chairman of the Priorities Committee of the War Industries Board, appealing to him for help in the matter of the building of new schoolhouses in this city. The Mayor said that new elementary school houses were urgently needed. In his letter he said:

"The people of the city are entitled to and must have sufficient schools to properly house the children and give them an elementary education. We are not desirous of making a record, but desire only to give the people what they need and are entitled to. It will be a grave mistake for your board not to release materials sufficient to construct the needed schools. I can assure you that we do not intend to construct new high schools or schools of any character except for elementary education until the war is over."

READY FOR WAR STUDENTS.

Colleges Here Will Soon Be Devoted Largely to Military Training.

On and after Oct. 1 Columbia University, New York University, and the College of the City of New York will become United States military training schools and United States Army posts. These institutions will cease to function as purely academic universities, and will become part of the nation's war machine. There will also be 396 other important collegiate institutions in other parts of the country which will undergo similar transformation. The curriculum at each will not lead to an academic degree, but will fit young men to become officers in the United States Army. An army officer will be in command of each collegiate camp and strict military discipline will prevail. The students will wear the regular army uniform and will receive the pay of a private, $30 per month, and maintenance.

At Columbia the dormitories in Hartley, Livingston, and Furnald Halls will become barracks. Colonel John P. Finley, who has been in command at Plattsburg, will be in command at Columbia, and it is estimated that he will have under him a cadet corps of about 4,000. It is the intention of the War Department to train at the institutions designated between 60,000 and 70,000 officers.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia issued a statement last night in which he said:

"The entire work of the university at once will be radically reorganized, and on Oct. 1 Columbia will become a military camp. All male students between the ages of 18 and 45 who, after registration on Sept. 12, are put by the draft boards in class 1A, or who are accepted for limited service, may, instead of awaiting assignment to a cantonment, enter Columbia and, if accepted after physical examination, become members of the Student Army Training Corps. They may enter in the hope and expectation of fitting themselves to obtain commissions.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

NATIONAL ICE AND COLD STORAGE COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA.

Notice is hereby given that a General Meeting of the Holders of the First Mortgage Six Per Cent. Thirty-Year Gold Bonds of the above-mentioned Company secured by First Mortgage dated December 1st, 1912, and made between National Ice and Cold Storage Company of California, of the first part, The Union Trust Company, Limited, (therein called the "Corporate Trustee,") and George E. Stevenson, (therein called the "Individual Trustee"; the Corporate Trustee and the Individual Trustee being therein collectively called the "Trustees,") of the second part, will be held at 6, Grafton Street, Bond Street, in the County of London, England, on the thirtieth day of September, 1918, at Twelve o'clock noon, for the purpose of considering and if thought fit passing Extraordinary Resolutions sanctioning such alterations in and modifications of the rights of the bondholders against the Company and against the Company's property, and assenting to such changes, additions to or omissions from the conditions contained in the said First Mortgage as may be deemed advisable under the following heads, namely:

By Supplemental Trust Deed hereinafter referred to to provide for all or any of the following:

(a) To Authorize the Company up to and including December 1st, 1922, to expend for any of the purposes for which bonds may be authenticated and delivered as recited in sub-section A of Section 2, of Article II. of the said First Mortgage, the whole or any part of any sums which otherwise would have been payable by the Company to the Sinking Fund, and for that purpose to amend Section 1 and Section 2 of Article IV. of said First Mortgage accordingly.

(b) To amend Section 3 of Article IV. of said First Mortgage by substituting therein throughout the date December 1st, 1922, for the date December 1st, 1917.

(c) To authorize, direct and empower the Trustees to pay over to the said National Ice and Cold Storage Company of California the sum of $40,608.20, which on or about the 1st day of December, 1916, was deposited by the Company with the Trustees pursuant to the provisions of Section 1 of Article IV. of said First Mortgage.

(d) To direct the Trustees to concur in and execute a Supplemental Trust Deed in such form and containing such provisions for the action, guidance and protection of the Trustees as shall be approved by the Investment Registry, Limited, to make such resolution binding and effective.

This Notice is issued by reason of and pursuant to request of the National Ice and Cold Storage Company of California under the provisions contained in the said First Mortgage.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

If there persisted in the minds of brokers or traders a suspicion that the warning issued a week ago by the President of the Mechanics and Metals Bank against enlargement of speculation was an empty threat it was dissipated with great suddenness yesterday afternoon, when the Governors of the Stock Exchange made public a letter addressed to their President by the head of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, who is also Chairman of the Money Committee, notifying the brokers that loans would not be increased over the total then in force. As the committee, at the same time, called upon the Exchange authorities for a record of the members' loans to check with the figures supplied by Clearing House banks it was assumed that the banks might find it necessary to call in some of the funds.

The market's reception of the news was what might have been expected; there was an immediate rush on the part of some big operators and pools to get out from under part of their commitments, with a resulting decline in a few active issues. Elsewhere the reaction was moderate. In Steel common a big speculative position had been built up, and this issue had to bear the brunt of the selling. Large blocks of the stock were taken over at 111½, but the offerings finally proved too large for the support and the price broke to 110⅛, representing a decline of four points from the final price on Thursday, or of nearly five for the two days. The last few minutes saw a partial recovery. Steel supplied more than one-third of the day's total, the largest in more than three months, with United Cigar Stores, Mercantile Marine, Union Pacific, Tobacco Products, Reading, and Baldwin all yielding easily at the height of the movement. One of the most astonishing sides of the market was steady buying of St. Paul common, which carried that issue to a new high for the year. In this case the completion of the terms of the standard railroad contract outweighd money considerations.

The situation to which the Money Committee so forcibly called attention by its letter yesterday had not reached such proportions as to constitute a menace, but the bankers have served unmistakable notice this time that they do not propose to allow any further absorption of funds into speculative channels. It is for that purpose that they will require daily reports from brokers for the next few weeks. They issued a warning against undue speculation, and it was not heeded, the volume of call loans showing a steady expansion. Now they have flatly declared against a speculative market.

The railroad contract is likely to improve with study; it is more satisfactory than those who worked for much greater concessions than were granted are yet ready to admit. There is ample ground for questioning the Director-General's interpretation of the clause concerning payments as covering all possible claims for damages sustained by the companies by reason of Government control, but the approval of the railway executives was not given wholeheartedly to the contract.

TRADING QUIET IN LONDON.

Reactionary Tendency Noted on Some Recently Active Issues.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Trading on the Stock Exchange today was generally quiet and cheerful, with a reactionary tendency in some of the recently active issues on profit taking. There was no demand for shipping shares, owing to the denial of rumors of an amalgamation. Allied funds were firm.

Consols and French 5 per cents were the features, but the war loan eased to 95, probably because no sinking fund purchases were made above that figure.

Money was still wanted. Discounts were steady.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 64 francs 10 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 26 francs 10 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Youngsters' Turn.

When the Stock Exchange suspended business for a day to facilitate the draft registration last year only a comparatively small part of the men who thus got an unexpected day's vacation had to register. The older ones welcomed the chance to see a ball game, or to play golf. Those of the younger men who, because of deferred classifications, are still at work in the financial district, will have their chance to play next Thursday, when the men from 31 to 45 register.

Investigating Themselves.

With the new taxes carried by the proposed law now before the House many men in important positions will have to turn at least half of their income for the current year over to the Treasury Department. They do not look for any modification of the surtaxes as written. That being the case, they will have to exercise greater care with their expenditures, lest they find themselves without enough money on hand next year to pay their tax bills. With a new Liberty Loan less than a month away numerous wealthy men who have not had to think twice before putting their names to a check have begun to make up budgets to see where they stand. Unfortunately, a large part of the cut they must make in their expenses will fall on favorite charities.

Relief for Steel Shorts.

Yesterday's break in prices for stocks proved a boon for numerous shorts in Steel, Tobacco Products, and other issues which suffered the heaviest setback. The 4 point gross decline of Steel carried the price back to where it sold on the morning after the last dividend came off the quotation. Traders who went short immediately after the stock sold "ex" the dividend, believing that the quotation would move off further, experienced considerable discomfort when their calculations proved incorrect, and the stock advanced steadily to a level above 116. They had opportunity yesterday to get out about even.

A Federal Trade Commission Opinion.

In discussing the petroleum situation, including the products made of crude oil, the Federal Trade Commission in its recent report on profiteering said: "No price for the public has been fixed upon petroleum and its products by the Government. Unlike the situation in steel, flour and coal, there there has been as yet no Government interference with the law of supply and demand, except in the instances of Government purchases. Under that law large profits may eventuate through the bidding up of prices by anxious buyers. And, moreover, even in the absence of this element, prices may be forced up by spreading false and misleading information concerning the condition of supply and demand. Reports, for instance, have been circulated that the supply of gasoline was endangered for the purpose of maintaining the high price of that product, and the heavy profits from it." Oil men have pondered over this reference to gasoline supplies since the Fuel Administration acted to conserve the fuel by asking the public to refrain from driving their automobiles for pleasure on Sunday.

Inspiration's August Output.

The Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company produced 9,000,000 pounds of copper in August, the same amount as in July. In June the output was 10,300,000 pounds, and in May 10,250,000 pounds. While July and August showed a falling-off from the two preceding months, due to labor conditions, the production should be considered satisfactory when compared with a year before. The mines were totally closed down during July and August last year, because of a strike, and the average monthly output in the remaining months was not much more than 3,000,000 pounds.

Supervising Bank Loans.

Although the District Committee on Capital Issues of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston has advised banks in its district that hereafter bank loans of $100,000 or more, made for capital purposes, would have to be reviewed by the committee, no such letter has yet been issued by the committee representing the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Whether or not the New York committee will, at a later date, take similar action, could not be learned yesterday.

PEOPLES BANK PURCHASED.

Chatham and Phenix Acquires Canal Street Institution.

The Peoples Bank of the City of New York, at 393-395 Canal Street, has been purchased by the Chatham and Phenix National Bank, which will operate it as a branch. The Peoples Bank is one of the city's oldest institutions, having been organized in 1851. It is capitalized at $200,000 and has deposits of about $5,000,000. It has been paying dividends at the annual rate of 10 per cent.

The officers of the People's Bank are: Scott Foster, Chairman; William Milne, President; Adolph Wimpfheimer, Vice President; John B. Forsyth, Cashier, and Wyckoff I. Dey, Assistant Cashier. The Directors are Messrs. Foster, Milne, Wimpfheimer, and Alfred B. Maclay, Theodore W. Morris, Stevenson Taylor, Theodore Tiedemann, and Thomas Williams.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The City of Cambridge, Mass., has sold a temporary loan of $200,000 in anticipation of taxes to S. N. Bond & Co., at 4.25 per cent. discount, plus $2.30 premium. The loan matures March 1, 1919.

The Bankers Trust Company, as trustee, will receive up to Sept. 27 proposals for the sale to itself of $226,040 two-year convertible 6 per cent. notes of the Marlin Arms Corporation, dated March 1, 1917, at a price not to exceed 105 and accrued interest.

The Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad Company announces that consolidated mortgage bonds to an aggregate cost of $1,115,801 will be bought for the sinking fund on Oct. 1 at the agency of the company, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. Proposals are to be in the hands of the trust company by the close of business, Sept. 30.

The Yorkville Bank yesterday voted a quarterly dividend of 5 per cent., payable Sept. 30, to stockholders of record, Sept. 18. Dividends for some time past have been 6 per cent. quarterly.

COAL TRAFFIC AIDS PROFITS.

Minneapolis & St. Louis Reports New Record of Freight Handled.

The heavy movement of coal through the Middle West last year finds reflection in the annual statement of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company, which was issued yesterday. While receipts from grain haulage and passenger traffic declined, due to a slackened movement, the total freight handled was the greatest in the road's history and gross earnings were larger than ever before. The expansion of coal transportation overcame the deficiencies in the other items.

The gross income from operations amounted to $11,005,062, a gain of $9,839 over the preceding year. Running expenses, maintenance costs, &c., totaled $7,869,191, an increase of $580,842. The net income was $3,135,871, which was $571,002 less than in 1916.

"The 1917 grain crop in the territory served by the lines," said the report, "was generally better than the crop of the previous year, but, due to a severe car shortage in all of the Western territory, the movement of grain was greatly delayed and considerable grain was carried over on the farms and in elevators and will be handled in the year 1918. Wheat tonnage handled during the year decreased 130,743 tons. Corn tonnage decreased 11,558 tons. Sand, stone, and other like commodities decreased 131,542 tons. Bituminous coal tonnage for the year increased 329,902 tons. The total number of tons of revenue freight handled during the year was 6,607,644 tons, of which 3,674,189 tons, or 55.61 per cent., originated on the lines."

Strong Demand for Entente Bills.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—The feature of the money market today was the strong demand for Entente bills. Sterling exchange made a record rise from 9.72 to 10.02. Dollars jumped to 2.10.

EXCHANGE MEMBERS MUST REPORT LOANS

SHARP DECLINE IN STOCKS

Action Taken to Insure a Closer Supervision of Money Market and Curtail Credits.

In response to a request from Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Chairman of the so-called Money Committee, the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange, at a special meeting held at noon yesterday, adopted a resolution authorizing the Business Conduct Committee of the Exchange to require the members to furnish daily statements showing the amount of money borrowed on time and on call. The request for the information was conveyed in a letter by Governor Strong, addressed to H. G. S. Noble, President of the Stock Exchange.

It was shortly after noon that Governor Strong's letter and the Stock Exchange's resolution were made public, and immediately there was a wave of heavy selling, and sharp declines were recorded in a number of industrial and railroad shares. United States Steel common, which had sold up to 114⅝, dropped to 110⅛. It closed at 111¼. Union Pacific, which had been quoted at 127, declined to 122½, closing at 125½. In the break the losses of more than two points were recorded between sales in the case of Union Pacific. While most of the railroad shares were declining, St. Paul advanced from 50 to 54, establishing for itself a new high record for the year. Yesterday's total sales on the Stock Exchange amounted to nearly 834,000 shares, the largest day since May 28 last, when transactions totaled 948,320. Of the 834,000 shares dealt in, about three-eighths, or 311,000 shares, were in Steel.

Governor Strong in his letter to President Noble explained that the Money Committee had heretofore received information regarding loans from the banks and trust companies, and that now, in its effort to exercise a still closer supervision of the money market, it felt that detailed figures furnished by Stock Exchange houses would be valuable. The letter states that, in view of the demands of the Government, the credit devoted to the security market should not be expanded. Governor Strong added that the data asked of the Stock Exchange was only one of a number of measures being undertaken by the Money Committee with the object of exercising, by mutual understanding among the institutions and firms of this city, such reasonable and necessary control of the employment of credit as will insure no interference with the financial operations of the Government in conducting the war.

It will be recalled that about a week ago Mr. McGarrah, as Acting Chairman of the Money Committee, issued a warning to the effect that in the event there appeared to be a disposition to increase the volume of business on the Stock Exchange, which would call for the consumption of additional credit, the committee would check the movement by advancing money rates to the point where the increase would prove "corrective." Trading on the Exchange has been relatively small in volume, the recent daily average being about 400,000 shares, although there has been a tendency toward an expansion in view of the favorable war news developments.

Governor Strong's letter, which was made public by the Stock Exchange, follows:

Federal Reserve Bank of New York,
Sept. 5, 1918.

My Dear Sir:

As you are aware, a sub-committee of the Liberty Loan Committee of this district was appointed on Sept. 5, 1917, and has undertaken certain duties in connection with the New York City money market, for the purpose of securing the most complete co-operation with the Government in its financial program by all the financial interests of the city. The members of the sub-committee are the following gentlemen:

Benj. Strong, Chairman,
James S. Alexander,
George F. Baker,
Walter E. Frew,
Gates W. McGarrah,
James N. Wallace,
Albert H. Wiggin.

The work of the sub-committee has met with the cordial co-operation of the important interests connected with the New York money market, and there has been maintained an orderly course of affairs in which the supply of funds has been ample for the essential needs. We believe this condition can be continued. It is obvious, however, that for the present there should be devoted to the security market no additional credit beyond the funds now so used. Any tendency to expand the collateral loan account should, for the general good, under present conditions, be checked.

In order that this important situation may be handled in a way that will result in the least possible inconvenience, it is desirable that we should have a complete daily view of Stock Exchange loans. We recognize the disposition of the Stock Exchange to co-operate in every way toward contributing to the orderly conduct of the money market, and, depending upon that patriotic disposition, we now ask the Governors of the Stock Exchange to collect, for the confidential use of this committee, daily statements from each member of the Exchange showing, in such detail as may be agreed upon in conference, the amount of time and call loans of each Stock Exchange house.

This information will be for the confidential use of the committee, in whose hands has been placed the responsibility for maintaining an orderly money market. The reports will be asked for during a temporary period. At the present time it is impossible for us to say for just how long a period they will be needed. We will be obliged if you will ask the members of the Exchange to begin these reports at the earliest date practicable.

Lest any possible misunderstanding arise as to the object of this request, I am directed by the committee to explain that this is only one of a number of measures being undertaken by the committee with the object of exercising, by mutual understanding among the institutions and firms in this city, such reasonable and necessary control of the employment of credit as will insure no interference with the financial operations of the Government in conducting the war.

Accurate information as to the amount of bank credit being employed for Stock Exchange purposes will be useful in attaining these objects.

I am also directed by the committee to express its cordial appreciation of the spirit of co-operation which has always been shown by the officers and members of the Stock Exchange in matters of this kind, which feeling is shared by the officers of the Federal Reserve Bank.

Very truly yours,
BENJAMIN STRONG,
Chairman of the Liberty Loan Sub-Committee on Money.
H. G. S. Noble, Esq., President New York Stock Exchange, New York, N. Y.

George W. Ely, Secretary of the New York Stock Exchange, advised the membership that the Board of Governors had adopted the following resolution:

> Resolved that the Committee on Business Conduct be and it hereby is authorized to require from members of the Exchange, or their firms, a daily statement of the amount of money borrowed on time and on call.

The Stock Exchange firms will begin to supply the information immediately. It is understood that the Business Conduct Committee will confer with the Money Committee and determine the form in which the data should be prepared.

RAILWAY COMMITTEE APPROVES CONTRACT

UNTERMYER STILL OBJECTS

Counsel for Security Owners Asks That President's Proclamation Taking Over Roads Be Carried Out.

The Railway Executives' Advisory Committee approved the contract of the Government with the railroads at a meeting yesterday at the Grand Central Terminal. The committee, which was consulted by Government officials when the terms of the contract were being drawn up, represents eighty-two of the leading railroads of the country, controlling 90 per cent. of the existing mileage. As the result of the meeting Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Chairman, was empowered to write to the heads of each road, advising them to accept the agreement as made public by Director General McAdoo.

The National Association of Owners of Railway Securities took quite a different attitude, however, and Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the organization, seized the opportunity presented by the Advisory Committee's decision to reiterate the objections which the association has been making all along to particular features of the contract. Mr. Untermyer, further, criticised the action of the Advisory Committee in accepting the terms. Mr. Cuyler reviewed the steps taken by the Advisory Committee as the contract was rounded into shape.

"We kept constantly in view," he wrote, "the fact that the possession and use of our properties had, for the period of Federal control, gone from us, and that the only chance, of practical value to us, to secure compensation from the Government depended on the Federal Control act, approved March 21 last, and on these negotiations.

"In the contract we are assured that, no matter how great our indebtedness to the Government for deferred maintenance which we should have, but did not, put upon the property while we were charged with the responsibility of operation, or for additions and betterments which we should provide for our properties to meet our public obligations, the Government will not exact payment for itself until after our corporate organization is supported and our sinking funds, taxes, rentals, and interest (which together may be classed as our current mortgage obligations) are provided for."

Remedies for Any Loss.

The letter stated further that the contract provides remedies for any loss through ill-advised Governmental requirement as to additions an betterments, and guarantees against forfeitures and losses arising through Government omission.

"We have the choice between the acceptance of this contract," Mr. Cuyler concluded, "and the guarantee it gives of immediate compensation on the one hand, and its rejection and resort to litigation on the other. The committee cannot regard litigation, with its attendant uncertainties and delays, as a practical remedy in the circumstances, and cannot consent to become responsible for the disorder in our national finances and the weakening of the nation's financial power which would inevitably follow. If there is to be litigation the responsibility for it must rest elsewhere."

Mr. Untermyer took up the cudgel in behalf of the owners of railroad securities in the shape of a direct reply to the Advisory Committee.

"After all," he said, "these gentlemen do not happen to own the properties, the fate of which they have been attempting to decide. It was because of their action that the security holders reluctantly intervened in the negotiations, and they acted none too soon, as subsequent events have demonstrated.

Quotes McAdoo Statement.

"In a statement by the Director General published in this morning's newspapers referring to the fact that for the first four months of this year the roads would have lost $136,116, as compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year, the Director General says:

> These conditions, together with the necessity railroads would have faced for raising wages and the difficulty of borrowing money, would probably have resulted in the failure of some of the most important railroad companies in the country to meet their obligations under private management.

"This is the most scathing arraignment of the governmental policy toward the roads that has ever been uttered, either from official or unofficial sources. Unfortunately, it is only too true.

"It now appears that the two vital points that are still the subject of controversy between the Government and the security holders really turn upon questions of law, involving the construction of the act of Congress under which the roads were taken over. Both these questions the Director General decides shall be now conclusively determined against the roads, without the opportunity for a hearing before any judicial tribunal, and so written into the contract that the roads shall never hereafter be able to raise these questions in the courts. This, we insist, is most unreasonable to the many millions of people who own the roads through the holdings of the great life insurance companies, savings banks, &c., that are their trustees and are making this protest on their behalf. The security holders are entitled to know and to have decided what Congress intended.

"They claim that the clear language and intent of Congress, as expressed in the law, is to have the roads returned to their owners at the end of Federal control, 'in substantially as good repair and in as substantially complete equipment as it was in at the beginning of Federal control.'

Cannot Extract Kernel.

"The compensation fixed, based on the average annual earnings for the last three years, is expressly stated, in the law, to be for the use, possession and control of the property, and did not include the right to destroy the business, divert the traffic and return the mere shell with the kernel extracted. The Director General states that he is advised by the Solicitor General as follows:

> The contention made by counsel for the security holders as to Paragraph (a), Section 3, should be rejected. They are not entitled to have the contract so framed as to leave them after the acceptance of the agreed compensation with a right of action for further damages based upon the loss of good-will and the division or diversion of traffic.
> Unquestionably the just compensation which the statute provides is intended to cover these as well as all other elements of loss and damage.

"If the law be capable of any such construction, the roads cannot, in justice to their security holders, and should not be permited to sign an agreement which gives to the Government blanket authority, without compensation, to dismember and emasculate the roads in the process of unifying the properties. We do not believe that the law is capable of any such construction, and have an abundance of eminent independent legal advice to support that contention.

"What the Government demands is, in fact, that even if it is wrong and we are right in the construction of the law, the roads must now release their claims in any event. All that is, or has ever been, asked throughout this long negotiation is that the letter and spirit of the President's Proclamation on which the roads were taken over shall be carried out. These demands are out of joint with that proclamation. A few of the great, prosperous trunk-line systems can well afford to take the risks of this clause. Their properties are not likely to be disrupted, while, on the other hand, they would naturally reap the benefits of the losses that are likely to be suffered by the smaller roads without having to pay for them."

COTTON PRICES CLIMB WITH TRADING QUIET

October Contracts Gain 32 Points and December 36 in Spite of Recessions.

The cotton market yesterday was less active than on any previous day of the current week, and the general tendency appeared to be upward, despite the fact that at the opening and during the afternoon there were slight recessions. Opening prices were 5 points lower to 5 points higher, and later in the session the advances carried quotations about 85 points higher. Late in the morning and during the afternoon the market became decidedly firmer on bullish spot advices and favorable weather news. On buying by Eastern mills, the rise in prices showed a gain of 83 to 97 points.

The market closed barely steady, with October contracts showing a net gain of 32 points and December 36 points.

The market showed considerable interest in the report from Washington that Southern Senators were planning to oppose the Government fixing prices for cotton. Brokers expressed the view that no steps looking toward stabilization of prices were likely to be taken in the immediate future, although it is generally believed that the War Industries Board is not likely to drop the matter, but will no doubt proceed to appoint a committee to make an investigation.

GOLD CO. STOPS DIVIDEND.

Yukon Mining Says It Operates for Patriotic Reasons.

The Yukon Gold Mining Company, which operates dredges and placer claims in Alaska and California, decided yesterday to suspend the payment of dividends in order to conserve cash resources. Of the company's $17,500,000 stock more than $14,000,000 is owned by the Yukon-Alaska Trust. In a letter to stockholders, William Loeb, Jr., President of the Yukon Gold Company, said the estimated income for the year was a disappointment, due to abnormally high cost of labor, materials, supplies, and freight.

"Notwithstanding these increasing burdens," he added, "the value of our product is stationary. If these were not war times and we were free to exercise our business judgment and leave patriotism out of account, the proper course to pursue would be to leave the gold in the ground, to be mined when times were more normal. As long as we can show a profit, or break even, we consider it our patriotic duty to keep up the production of gold, one of the most essential of war metals, trusting that the Government will see the necessity of coming to the relief of the industry."

The Yukon-Alaska Trust declared the usual quarterly dividend of $1 a share, payable Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Sept. 6.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Comparatively Few Changes Noted During the Past Week.

A rather sharp contraction in the number of fluctuations was shown this week by Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices. Out of the more than 300 articles listed only 34 showed levels different from those of last week, and of these only 20 were advances. Last week, in a total of 50 revisions, 31 were upward. The features this week were the declines in some of the more important foodstuffs.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week at this city, unless otherwise specified. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week, and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Government maximums. †Government basis.

Flour prices did not change this week. In the major provisions at Chicago there was less revision than usual. Live hogs, mess pork, and short ribs did not change.

The dairy products, save for eggs, were generally firmer. All grades of butter and cheese were higher, but the fancy nearby eggs showed a drop of 2 cents a dozen for the second week in succession. The best Western eggs declined one cent a dozen. Both are still above the corresponding 1917 prices, fancy nearbys being up 10 cents a dozen, and the Westerns 4 cents.

Dried fruits showed no change this week, but in the fresh ones there was further weakness in the price of apples. The sole revision in the vegetables was a decline in potatoes to $4 a barrel.

The grains produced but two changes—a rise in malting barley and a drop in corn. The metals changes also were few, and for the first time in quite a while contained no advances.

The textile lists were again pretty largely without feature. Further maximum mill prices were sent out from Washington in the course of the week.

Mayor, by Proclamation, Urges Citizens to Give Up Sunday Riding.

Mayor Hylan issued a proclamation yesterday asking citizens of New York to refrain from using automobiles except for necessary business on Sundays until the Fuel Administration withdraws its request that no automobiles be used for pleasure on that day. The Mayor said in the proclamation that the patriotism of New Yorkers had enabled him to telegraph President Wilson that out of 103,000 cars ordinarily used on Sundays in New York, only a few hundred disregarded the request last Sunday. The proclamation reads in part:

"Those whom you have placed in high places during this time do not feel that they wish to command you in a matter of such vital importance. They feel that merely by letting you know that you can do something to help Old Glory you will be only too glad to do it. It is my most earnest desire to be able to report to President Wilson next Monday that there was not one single pleasure car in use in New York on the second Sunday."

The Mayor received a letter yesterday from President Wilson thanking him for his telegram concerning the use of automobiles last Sunday. The President wrote:

"It is very gratifying indeed to learn of the response of the people of New York City to the request about the use of gasoline on Sunday, and it was very thoughtful of you to give me the explicit statement contained in your message."

The National Petroleum War Service Committee, of which A. C. Bedford is Chairman, was in session most of yesterday at its headquarters in the Standard Oil Building. M. L. Requa, Director of the Fuel Oil Division of the National Fuel Administration, met with the committee. The general condition of the gasoline market, both here and in Europe, and the condition of the gasoline reserves of the United States were discussed. Returns on gasoline saving in the territory east of the Mississippi as a result of not using motor vehicles for pleasure last Sunday, were gone over as far as they were available. Mr. Requa said that the reports from producers and sellers, so far as they had been tabulated, showed that the gasoline reserves in the territory where the Sunday saving had taken place, had considerably increased.

HAMLIN ASKS CURTAILMENT.

Sends Letter to Public Utility Boards and City Officials.

Charles S. Hamlin, Chairman of the Capital Issues Committee, in Washington, has issued a letter to public utility commissions and municipal officials urging them to postpone until after the war all extensions and betterments which public service corporations are accustomed to make in normal times. He also asks the consideration of the propriety of deferring even the performance of contractural obligations arising from franchise or other legal requirements in cases where no military or local economic necessity is served by such expenditures.

Mr. Hamlin's letter says in part:

"The Capital Issues Committee feels certain that your commission will recognize the paramount need of the National Government when passing upon proposed additions and extensions by public utility companies, and asks that you co-operate in giving effect to the purposes of the Government by restricting every unnecessary use of capital, labor, and materials for extensions, betterments, street paving or other purposes, even waiving, if in your power, the legal requirements that obtain in times of peace, until the present emergency has passed."

AIR MAIL IN CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill. Sept. 6.—Pilot Max Miller, carrying the first air mail from New York to Chicago, completed a flight covering two days when he made a safe landing at Grant Park at 7:04 o'clock this evening. The mail was rushed from the airplane in a motor truck to the Post Office. Policemen cleared the streets to facilitate the passage of the truck. At 8:20 o'clock a letter from Henry Woodhouse, from the New York headquarters of the Aero Club of America, was delivered to the editor of The Chicago Tribune. The first air mail also carried copies of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

A crowd of officials of the postal service, of the War Exposition, and of various aero clubs were at Grant Park to greet Pilot Miller when he arrived.

He left Bryan, Ohio, at 4:32 this afternoon and had been expected at 6:30. As his was a pathfinding trip, however, he did not hurry.

"I had an uneventful trip from Cleveland," said the tired aviator before he was hurried off to the Union League Club for dinner, rest, and a bath. "I had no trouble locating Grant Park. I would have been here last night, but I left New York in a storm and then ran into another one which blew me out of my course. I had to make a dangerous landing, and after that my progress was hampered by a leaky radiator."

Edward Gardner, pilot of the second machine, was reported to be a few hours behind Miller. He was expected to reach Bryan, Ohio, at 5 o'clock this afternoon and then to start on the final lap of the trip to Chicago.

NEW POLICY FOR SHIPYARDS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—The Emergency Fleet Corporation, through Director General Schwab and Vice President Piez, is working out a new shipbuilding policy whereby each Eastern yard will confine itself to the construction of one type of vessel.

"It ought to increase ship production next year by several hundred thousand tons," said Mr. Schwab. "It will place Eastern yards on the same footing as those of the West. It also will help to improve the distribution of steel and increase the production of each yard."

The present contracts will be allowed to run to completion, but every new agreement will be for one design of ship for each specific plant.

D. W. Cooke to be Cunard Director.

The Cunard Line announced yesterday that Delos W. Cooke, Vice President of the Erie Railroad Company and Fuel Administrator for the State of New York, would resign on Oct. 1 and join the Cunard and associated steamship lines as Associate Director. He would not take up his duties with the company until after the war, it was said.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Selling in heavy volume, following the statement of Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank, declaring for credit curtailment and that any tendency to expand collateral loan accounts under present conditions should be checked, for the general good, caused declines from 2 to more than 4 points in the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. In the final half hour of trading part of this loss was recovered, final quotations being from 1 to 2 points above the low levels of mid-afternoon.

which they could aid in refunding the notes if they chose to do so. The four banking and bond houses which had joined Messrs. Morgan & Co. a year ago in placing the notes were also duly advised of this telegram.

"No reply was received to this telegram until midday Sunday, Sept. 1, when Messrs. Morgan & Co. declined to provide for the notes on a 6 per cent. basis and offered no counter suggestion except one in effect necessitating the Director General himself providing for the maturity of the notes.

"The result is that the only rate of interest on which Messrs. Morgan & Co. suggested a renewal was equivalent to 9¾ per cent. for the one-year loan, which terms both the Director General and the officers of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company regarded, and still regard, as excessive and unwarranted."

Correspondence with Morgan.

Upon receiving advices from the officers of the company on Aug. 23 that their bankers had made no progress toward renewal of the loan the office of the Director General sent Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. this telegram:

"The officials of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company informed this office that their note issue for $15,000,000, placed by your firm and your associates one year ago, matures on the 1st proximo; that they have no funds with which to meet the notes; that they have applied to you to arrange the renewal, but that you have declined either to advance them the money with which to meet the maturing obligations or to make an effort to extend the note issue. The company has applied to the Director General for advance of the funds with which to meet these obligations due to you and your clients, but no convincing grounds for this request have been submitted.

"Let me also add that the Director General received no communication from the company's bankers or fiscal agents to indicate that there was any danger of these obligations not being provided for, or that they felt any concern over the situation.

"It would seem to be unfortunate to have this issue default without at least some effort being made to secure renewal. May I inquire whether you have endeavored to gain consent of holders to renewal of these notes, or whether you intend to do so. As at present advised, the Director General is not willing to advance the funds, and hopes that the company and its bankers will find some way to avert default and failure. A copy of this telegram is being sent to the First National Bank of New York, the National City Company, and Harris, Forbes & Co., who joined you in placing these notes a year ago. May I suggest that this matter is of sufficient importance for you to take it up immediately with the executive officers of the several railroad companies which have guaranteed the bonds, and which are dependent upon these terminals, and enlist, if possible, their aid?"

"Replying to your wire of the 23d, our position as set forth in our correspondence with company since June differs materially with impression which you have received. Our representative will call on you tomorrow with regard to the matter."

"I have your telegram stating that the impressions upon which my telegram to you of 23d instant was based were not in accordance with the correspondence between your firm and the officials of the Chicago & Western Indiana Company. You are advised that my telegram to you was shown to the officials of the Chicago company, and was approved by them as stating the facts of the case before it was dispatched to you.

"You state that your representative will call today. I am advised that Mr. Anderson, who stated that he is the manager of your bond department, called today on my assistant, Mr. Porteous, and informed him that your firm had not taken up this matter with the five railroad systems controlling the terminal company, giving as a reason your reluctance to appear to go over the heads of the officials of the Chicago Company. I do not consider that such a suggestion furnishes any excuse whatsoever for the omission to take action and make efforts in a direction which might furnish relief in this serious situation threatening failure of a company for which your firm is understood to be financial agents and holding property which I understand your advertisement claimed is worth over $100,000,000, and also threatening default in notes amounting to $15,000,000, placed by your firm and associates only twelve months ago. I again urge that you communicate promptly with the railroad companies immediately concerned in this situation with a view to developing some plan which may afford relief and avert if possible failure and default. Please show this telegram to the First National Bank, the Nataional City Company, and Messrs. Harris, Forbes & Co., who joined you in the public offering of the notes referred to."

The Offer and Rejection.

In response to this Morgan & Co. telegraphed on Aug. 28, the offer quoted by Mr. McAdoo above. Mr. Williams, the Director of the Division of Finance, on Aug. 29 replied as follows:

"Your telegram 28th instant has been received. You state that if the Director General will agree to assume rentals payable to the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company by Belt Railway and by the five proprietary companies, you will use your best endeavors to negotiate renewal of $15,000,000 note issue maturing 1st proximo. You are informed that the Director General is willing to assume terminal rentals, which under the Interstate Commerce Commission's classification are classed as Joint Facility Rents, and in this particular case is willing to insure the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company a rental, which added to its other current income will be sufficient to enable the company to pay the interest on its present outstanding bonds and one-year notes and sinking fund requirements on bonds, and also taxes and other miscellaneous rentals; this, it is understood constituting the total fixed and other charges of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company. This would enable the company, during the period of Government control, to pay promptly, interest upon the $15,000,000 issue at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, which interest the notes now bear and which it is assumed they will bear upon renewal.

"The Director General understands from your telegram that you propose to endeavor to renew or effect the renewal of these notes for twelve months under the conditions set forth in your telegram, at the equivalent of approximately 10 per cent. per annum, including bankers' commissions. This would mean an additional charge of approximately $600,000 to the company for twelve months, which the Director General regards as excessive and without justification under the circumstances. This amount the Director General is not willing to assume or to approve.

"It is hoped that with the assurance that the company's income during the period of Government control will be adequate to enable the company to meet its current fixed charges, including 6 per cent. per annum upon its note issue, if renewed on the 1st proximo, that if the holders of the obligations will consent to renewal or that you may be able to take or place elsewhere at 6 per cent. such notes as may not be renewed.

"The terms of the existing lease do not require that the lessee shall pay to the lessors discount on bonds sold, and bankers' commissions, and the Director General would not be justified in regarding this as a part of the joint facility rental. Please show this to your associates who joined you in placing the notes."

On Aug. 30 a copy of this telegram was sent to each of the twelve railroads using the Chicago & Western Indiana terminals. No reply was received to the telegram of Aug. 30 until midday Sunday, Sept. 1. In this telegram Messrs. Morgan & Co. declined to provide for the redemption of the bonds on a 6 per cent. basis, and stated that if the Director General desired they would submit the proposition to the holders as the notes might be presented for redemption, and suggesting further that the Government make a loan to the company to pay the notes. They repeated their former suggestion that after the Government had put up the money they would later on, provided the contract with the Government were satisfactory to them, endeavor to form a syndicate to arrange an extension.

J. P. Morgan said he had no comment to make on Director General McAdoo's statement last night when he was informed by telephone of the main features of its contents. The Chicago & Western Indiana, he stated, was in the hands of the Government and its affairs were being administered by the Government and the officers of the company.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,272 packages. The needs of the trade are still exceeding the supply, and prices are again higher and firm, particularly on choice and fancy grades of fresh creamery. Renovated also doing a little better, and there is a firm, confident feeling on both ladles and packing stock. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 51@51½c; extras, 92 score, 50@50½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 47½@49½c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 44½@47c; thirds, 42@43½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 52½@53c; extras, 51½@52c; firsts, 49@51c; seconds, 46@48½c; State dairy tubs, finest, 49½@50c; good to prime, 47@49c; common to fair, 41@46c; renovated extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 42@43c; lower grades, 38½@41c; imitation creamery, firsts, 40@41c; ladles, current make, firsts, 38@38½c; seconds, 36½c; lower grades, 35@36c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 36@36½c; No. 2, 35½c; lower grades, 33@35c.

EGGS.—21,784 cases. The market is a little quieter, affected somewhat by the approaching Jewish holidays near at hand. The sales reported some change in the range of values, but outside figures are a little more extreme, and are being shaded in some instances for marks previously salable at top figures. There is an accumulation in the market this week, consisting chiefly of medium qualities, held in range of, say, 45@47c, but for which lower bids are generally drawn. Storage eggs steady. Nearby white eggs are quieter, most of the Jews being out of the market. Strictly fancy new laid stock is in comparatively light supply, and held steady. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 51@52c; extra firsts, 48@50c; firsts, 44@47c; seconds and poorer, 30@43; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 37@38c; No. 2 and poorer, 28@30c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 32@34c; under grades, 25@31c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 43½@44c; firsts, charge paid, 42½@43c; seconds, charges paid, 38@42c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 62@67c; ordinary to prime, 45@60c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@62c; Pacific Coast whites, first to finest, 61@63c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 42@60c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 54@56c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 38@52c.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade, Bradstreet's says:

Government buying and manufacture on war account make new records, but civilian trade reflects more irregularity, due to a combination of varying crop reports, more acute labor scarcity and increased and still growing difficulty in getting supplies of merchandise and of materials for the manufacture of civilian goods. Over and beyond this, also the new draft legislation, signed at the close of the last week, is reported to have had the dual effect of still further discouraging buying of men's apparel, and in some instances of causing closer scrutiny of credits by wholesalers pending clearer views of the extent to which their customers are likely to be affected by the raising of the draft age.

ANTI-HEARST DEALER WINS.

Order Revoking Newsstand License Is Now Withdrawn.

John Williamson, the newsdealer whose license to maintain a stand in Borough Park, Brooklyn, was revoked by Acting Park Commissioner William H. Muldoon because Williamson refused to sell the Hearst newspapers, yesterday withdrew his petition for an injunction after John N. Harmon, Commissioner of Parks in Brooklyn, had notified the newsdealer through the office of the Corporation Counsel that the original order from Commissioner Muldoon would be withdrawn.

Commissioner Muldoon revoked the license after Mayor Hylan had written a letter to the Commissioner of Licenses on Aug. 21 requesting that the privileges of the newsdealers be withdrawn if they "refused to sell the daily papers published in this city."

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

Pursuant to resolution duly adopted, the trustees of the village of Nassau, New York, will sell on sealed proposals at the hose house in the village of Nassau, N. Y., on the 20th day of September, 1918, at 3 o'clock P. M., bonds aggregating $3,900.00, with interest thereon at five per cent. per annum, in denominations of $300.00 each, to be numbered from one to thirteen inclusive, each to be dated October 1, 1918, the first one payable October 1, 1923, and one annually thereafter until the thirteen are paid, interest to be payable April 1 and October 1, each and every year during the term of said bonds, which are to be registered.

JAMES W. BECKER, Clerk.

GUARANTY COLLATERAL TRUST SECURITIES

Offer an excellent war-time investment for individual investors.

The largest banks and trust companies in the United States and Canada are regular purchasers of these securities. More than $44,000,000 sold to banks to date.

Denominations $1,000 to $10,000; Maturities and Rates attractive.

Continental Guaranty Building,
Madison Avenue and 38th Street, New York.

THE FARMERS AND MECHANICS NATIONAL BANK, located at Philadelphia in the State of Pennsylvania, is closing its affairs. All noteholders and other creditors of the association are, therefore, hereby notified to present the notes and other claims for payment.

JOHN SCHLAGLE, Cashier.

TAKE NOTICE THAT THE TRANSFER Books of The Lake Superior Corporation will be closed from three o'clock in the afternoon of September 11th, 1918, to ten o'clock in the forenoon of October 3rd, 1918, for the purpose of holding the annual meeting of the Corporation.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Two Washington Heights apartment houses and an unimproved block front in the Bronx figured in an exchange transaction yesterday. Abraham Ruth sold to Mrs. B. B. Newkirch the northeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 178th Street and 285 Audubon Avenue, adjoining, two five-story apartment houses on a plot 100 by 95.

In part payment the buyer gave the block front on the north side of 168th Street, from Third to Fulton Avenue, in the Bronx, a plot of twenty-four lots, fronting 337 feet on 168th Street, by 176 feet on Third Avenue by irregular. Frederick Zittell & Sons were the brokers in the deal.

The Bronx Market.

Frederick Brown bought from Morris F. Wood the three-story dwelling at 118 West 190th Street, on a lot 25 by 85, corner Devoe Street; also from the same seller the three-story house at 2,743 Kingsbridge Terrace, on a lot 25 by 112. J. A. Wood was the broker.

William Fullerton bought, for occupancy, from Harry Aronson, the two-story frame dwelling at the southwest corner of Heath Avenue and West 193d Street, on a lot 25 by 100. B. H. Weisker was the broker.

Schwab & Co. resold for the Benenson Realty Company the five-story new-law apartment house at 2,615 Jerome Avenue, opposite St. James Park. The property was held at $70,000.

Tenements Traded.

James H. Cruikshank sold to Alicia L. Laird the three five-story tenements at 1,846 to 1,850 Second Avenue, on a plot 75 by 100, assessed by the city at $51,000. As part payment Mr. Cruikshank has taken the five-story flat at 546 West 165th Street, on plot 20 by 119. Harry Sugarman was the broker in the transaction.

Queens Borough Sales.

Commercial Leases.

William A. White & Sons leased to Louis Levy, for a long term, for the manufacture and sale of corrugated paper boxes, at an aggregate rental of $68,000, the building at 186-188 Wooster Street.

The Charles F. Noyes Company and M. & L. Hess leased large office space on the seventh and nineteenth floors of 220 Fifth Avenue, for the Croisic Realty Company to the United States Employment Service.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Pressure is still low in the Atlantic States, with the principal centre of depression off the Maine coast, where the disturbance is moving rapidly northeastward. A moderate secondary depression is over the south Atlantic States. Pressure is also moderately low over the Canadian Northwest and the Pacific States, and moderately high, although falling, over the interior.

General, though mostly light, rains fell in the Atlantic States, and showers along the Gulf Coast and in the upper Lake region, while elsewhere the weather was fair.

It is cooler in the Atlantic States, and temperatures are generally below the seasonal average throughout the country except in the Northwest, where they have risen. Light frosts occurred Friday morning in Wyoming, northeastern Colorado, western Nebraska, and at points in central lower Michigan.

Temperatures will rise somewhat Saturday and Sunday in the Lake region, the Ohio Valley and Tennessee, and on Sunday in the interior of the Atlantic States.

Winds for Saturday and Sunday along the north Atlantic coast will be fresh northwest, with fair weather; middle Atlantic coast, moderate northwest, fair weather; south Atlantic coast, moderate, variable, showers.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND SUNDAY.

New York, Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday and Sunday.

Northern New England—Fair Saturday; cooler in Southwestern Maine, showers at night or on Sunday in Northern Vermont and Northern New Hampshire, but fair elsewhere.

3 A. M.	62	70	4 P. M.	72	66

Education Notes.

The new building of the Manhattan Trade School for Girls will not be finished on Sept. 9. It will be open partially, however, and the primary organization of classes will be effected.

The new building of the Evander Childs High School, 184th Street and Creston Avenue, will not be completed, either, on that date. The building, however, will be opened for pupils. Because certain parts will not be available an annex will be opened in P. S. 46, 196th Street and Bainbridge Avenue.

Morris High School will open on Monday without a Principal. The Board of Superintendents some time ago nominated Joseph K. Van Denburg Principal of P. S. 40, to fill this vacancy, caused by the resignation of John H. Denbigh, who was elected President of Packer Institute, Brooklyn, but the Board of Education did not confirm the nomination. Morris High has 5,000 pupils or more.

Public school teachers hereafter must be citizens of the United States; but those who are not may be continued if, within one year from the day the Amos law went into effect, they make applications to become citizens.

Evening Elementary School 52, Queens, will open for the Winter term on Monday, Sept. 9. It is located on Elm Street and Stewart Avenue, Richmond Hill. In addition to the regular elementary school subjects, elementary and advanced mechanical drawing will be taught. Owing to the present conditions, the mechanical drawing courses should appeal more than ever to those who desire to enter the industrial field as tracers and draftsmen, or to secure advancement in their present position. Individual instruction will be given to suit the needs of the pupils. The classes will be open to men and women.

ALMIRANTE SUNK; FIVE BELIEVED LOST

CRASH OFF JERSEY COAST

Vessel Goes Down in Four Minutes—Rescues Made by Other Ship Which Stands By.

Seven passengers, including four women, suffering from the shock of shipwreck and ninety-three survivors of the crew of the United FFruit Company's steamship Almirante landed here late last night from another ship which ha drammed and sunk their vessel early yesterday morning during a fog off the Jersey coast. Five members of the crew of ninety-eight were reported missing by Captain Farquhar Grant of the Almirante, who was also on the ship that arrived here last night. They were met by officials of the company at the pier, but no attempt was made to talk with the survivors, as they had not recovered from the shock of the collision and the abandoning of their ship. Members of the crew said that the accident took place at 2 A. M., just after the wheel had been relieved on the bridge, and that the steamship went down in four minutes.

When the Almirante left New York on Thursday afternoon bound for the West Indies boat stations were allotted the seven passengers, and they were warned by the officers to practice putting on their lifebelts and have them handy in case of a submarine attack. The crew were put through a lifeboat drill and also were cautioned to have their lifebelts ready at all hours for any emergency. There was a heavy sea running at the time, and this made it difficult to lower the lifeboats from the sinking steamship, and the fog added to the risks in getting the boats out. Many of the crew jumped over the side with their lifebelts on and were picked up later by the boats from the other vessel, which anchored after the collision to render assistance to the steamship she had rammed.

No definite statement regarding the cause of the collision could be given out, it was said last night, until the Captain had made his report to the company.

DEPTH BOMB STUNS CREW.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 6.—The first details of the sinking of the American steamship Lake Eden by a German submarine on Aug. 21 off the English coast with the loss of her Captain and sixteen of the crew, was brought here today by eight of the survivors who arrived on an American transport from England.

The story was told by Walter Ramon Hersey, 19 years, a messboy, who was making his first trip to sea in search of adventure. He had left an office in Wall Street, where he was a clerk, to sail for England on the Lake Eden. While trying to swim to the surface, after he had been drawn under by the suction as the steamship went down stern first, Hersey and his mates were stunned by the explosion of a depth bomb dropped from a destroyer trying to get the U-boat.

"We had left a port in England," he said, "on the way to France with 3,000 tons of coal when the Lake Eden was struck by a torpedo on the port side by the engine room at 1:20 P. M., after we had been out eight hours. I was taking a nap on the hatch at the time and was blown over to starboard with the coal that was in the port bunker. Two sailors standing by the hatch were blown fully ten feet in the air, struck their heads against the boom above, and fell down on deck, while the two naval wireless operators were knocked out of the radio house. The explosion wrecked the galley and killed the two cooks, who were eating dinner inside at the time, and three oilers, the bo'sun, two firemen, first and third engineer, and the Captain were all killed by the torpedo.

"We were about four and a half miles off the shore and within sight of a lighthouse when the attack was made. Directly after the torpedo struck the Lake Eden the officer on the bridge ordered the crew to lower away the boats. Two were smashed by the explosion, the third boat was smashed against the ship's side, and only the No. 1 lifeboat was left. Ten of us tried to get into it, and the last man who jumped from the deck caused it to turn over, and we were all thrown into the water. I was drawn down by the suction, and while trying to swim to the surface a British destroyer dropped a depth charge, which was the most terrifying sensation you could possibly imagine. Everything was black before my eyes, and my ears hurt me most dreadfully. Then I lost consciousness, and when I recovered I found myself clinging to the upturned lifeboat with sixteen other survivors of the crew."

13 Norwegian Ships Sunk in August

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Norway lost thirteen vessels, aggregating 22,976 tons, through war causes in the month of August, according to an announcement made today at the Norway Legation here. Two Norwegian sailors lost their lives.

Keep In Step With The Band

THE American business man should make it his business to look prosperous, feel cheerful and be optimistic. While our boys are marching to Berlin, every man over here should throw his shoulders back and his head up—and keep in step with the band.

There's no reason why you should look "seedy" just because it's necessary to save—there's a better way to economize than showing it in your appearance.

There's no necessity for wearing last year's hat when you can buy this season's style—any hat in my stores—for $2.85. I have all the conventional shapes and colors that the conservative hatter carries—and something different for the young fellow who wants something new.

Wallach Hats

The fact that the rising cost of things has made it hard for us to give you Wallach style and quality at the usual low prices doesn't matter at all.

The point which interests you is that we have done it—we have kept the quality of Wallach Hats way up while holding the prices down—and at $2.50 their color and wear are absolutely guaranteed.

ENTERTAINMENT OF SOLDIERS

The New York Branch of the Jewish Welfare Board has arranged for the entertainment of Jewish soldiers and sailors on furlough in New York over the Jewish New Year and Day of Atonement. All of the synagogues in the city will find a place for such soldiers as may apply for seats, and in addition plans have been made whereby all Jewish soldiers in the city will be lodged and boarded during their furlough. Provision will be made for convalescent soldiers at the base hospitals, and extra foodstuffs have been forwarded to the hospitals for distribution on the Jewish New Year to all soldiers, irrespective of their religion.

The Welfare Board is planning an entertainment for soldiers from the various camps who come into the city on furlough from time to time. In order to carry out this work effectually, it will be necessary to procure the assistance of such persons as are willing to loan their automobiles, which will be used among other things for taking convalescent soldiers for an airing. Persons willing to loan their machines should communicate with the New York Branch of the Jewish Welfare League, at 89 Park Avenue. Telephone Murray Hill 5798.
